Bad Blow For Lord's Day Act

When the people of sedate old Victoria turn down the enforcement of the Lord's Day Act by a vote of practically 8 to 1, the unpopularity of such a measure in the province as a whole may be pretty safely assumed. The city of Victoria is generally looked upon as a city that might lead in British Columbia in the enforcement of such measures as this and is inclined perhaps more to "pure" laws than any other in the province. Other cities have not called for the strict enforcement of the Act and the adoption of it at Victoria by the police commission has now been repudiated by the people. By the vote in the capital, the Lord's Day Act, as far as the province is concerned, may be said to have been practically dealt a death blow. While the Act will probably remain on the statutes it will continue to be one of those rules that were made to be broken.

Methods For High School Promotion.

The Prince Rupert School Board, after an experience of five years or so with promotion to the High School by recommendation of the principals, has deemed that plan unsatisfactory and has decided to revert to the old system of government set examinations as the test of qualification. There is much to be said in favor of either plan—and at the same time either plan may be severely criticized. Much depends on individual cases. One pupil, whose general fitness judged by the teacher on the term, as a whole to be good or excellent, may not be able to make a showing at a government test on account of nervousness, excitement or other reasons. On the other hand, a student whose classroom work may not be so satisfactory may excel on a written test. Thus neither plan is fully satisfactory. It seems that a combination of the two might more fully and fairly fill the bill. That is the plan that will probably be adopted after both plans separately have been further experimented with.

Advertising Dentist Mayor of Seattle.

It must have been a terrible shock to some of the very "ethical" dentists of Seattle, not to mention the rest of the country, to see an advertising dentist elected mayor of the Puget Sound city. What a despicable thing, in their opinion, an advertising dentist—and yet he received a majority of more than 11,000 votes in the city election.

Possibly it will awaken some of the moss backed gentlemen who are still living in the age of the civil war. And yet, while it is possible, it is more probable that the majority of them, self satisfied and bumptious, will continue on as they have in the past, observing the "professional ethics" and playing the hypocrite.

It is a well known fact that in every city in the country professional men and women who are loudest in their cry for "professional ethics," chief of which that they shall not advertise, are always attempting to get cheap advertising. They are the worst pests of the city editor's room, attempting to break into print about this, that and the other thing; that they delivered an address before the Nobody At Home Club and said so and so, and so and so; that they have discovered a new cure for leprosy, cancer and a few other things.

How It Pays To Advertise.

Like E. J. Brown, 99 44-100ths per cent of the dentists, doctors and lawyers and everybody else start into anything because they hope to make money out of it. Dr. Brown pursued one method and others pursued the other, and if the latter hold the other in contempt they may now see through the Seattle election that the public do not have the same views. Admitted by dentists to be a high class workman, Dr. Brown succeeded, and because he told the people through his advertising columns what he had to offer. He accomplished that which he started to do, to make money and lots of it, until today he is one of the wealthy men of his city. He not only made money but now he wins honors for himself, such honors as practically any dentist, any "ethical" dentist or other professional men of Seattle, would be glad to have.

Imagine what the situation would have been if Dr. Brown had never advertised. Instead of having a big suite of offices with many "ethical" gentlemen in his employ, he would probably have a back room somewhere with a straggling patient or two daily and would not only not be mayor but in fact would be unknown to the majority of people.

The day of the mossback is over and the sooner the ethical gentlemen throughout the whole country learn this, the better it will be for them and for the public, and the sooner will the quack be driven out.

Dr. E. J. Brown, financially, politically, and professionally is the personification of the maxim: "It Pays to Advertise."

STOMACH ULCER AND GALL STONES

After Suffering 25 Years, Completely Relieved by "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

MR. EDWARDS

MAPLEHURST FARM, HILLBURST, P.Q.
"I am in my 78th year. About 25 years ago, I began to have trouble with my Stomach. One doctor said I had Cancer; another said, Ulcer of the Stomach; another, Gall Stones; others, Ulcers of the Liver and Inflammation of the Gall Bladder.

Three years ago, I consulted one of the best specialists in Montreal. He said I must go to the hospital, have an Ulcer cut out of my stomach and gall stones removed. I was then 74 years old. I said "NO."

Then, I began to take "Fruit-a-tives". I found they helped me a lot, and I still take them occasionally, and I am so much better that my old friends often ask me what I have done to myself to look so well. I am gaining in weight and enjoying life very much."

MAURICE SHOCKLEY GETS HIS DEGREE WITH HIGH HONORS

Local Boy Makes Envious Record at University of Toronto
—Is B. Sc.

Maurice Shockley, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Shockley, of this city had graduated from the University of Toronto with honors as Bachelor of Applied Science, word to this effect having been received by his parents last night.

This year the percentage in the examinations was raised and only four out of the class of 40 received honors, the local boy being one of the four. This together with the fact that he passed last year with honors in a class of 12 has entitled him to his degree with honors.

In the whole year out of a class of 151, 38 passed with honors or twenty-five percent. In Maurice's class, the honor list was only ten percent.

Mr. and Mrs. Shockley do not know definitely yet whether or not Maurice will be returning home this year. He may take up practical work now with some electrical firm in the East.

Maurice passed with honors in his first year at the University of B.C. and in the second year won a scholarship.

FRED STORK SPEAKS IN PARLIAMENT ON ORIENTAL QUESTION

Fred Stork (Liberal, Skeena) in speaking in the debate on the Oriental question in the House of Commons last week, traced the history of the spread of Oriental immigration over this continent since 1849, when they first came to California at the time of the gold rush, and the legislative enactments to curb their spread, beginning as far back as 1872. Ever since the agitation against them had been increasing, but the matter had never been dealt with in a comprehensive way. He believed it was good policy to settle the question with the Oriental while the white population was still in possession of the province of British Columbia, rather than to defer it until the time when the Oriental himself was in possession. Indifference to the claims of the Pacific Coast was at the root of the matter as it had been of so many other problems in which British Columbia had suffered, including the Oregon and Alaskan boundary matters.

In every industry the Japanese were working up from mental positions to control. They were rolling up the map of Western Canada so that one day the summit of the Rocky Mountains would be the western boundary for the white people, and the Oriental, "the human ferret," would own the California of Canada.

This is Our Country
The people of British Columbia, he said, regarded this as our country and the Commons as the proper tribunal in which to state the case. The remedy they asked was the absolute exclusion of all Orientals.

LIGHTHOUSE KEEPER WHO DIED LAST WEEK IN VANCOUVER CITY

Going to Vancouver for medical attention after being alone with his wife for three years at Cape St. James, "Bob" Smith died suddenly in St. Paul's Hospital early Wednesday morning. His wife is alone, tending the beacon of the Oddenbrooke light, 275 miles from Vancouver, to which they have been transferred recently.

Four hundred miles from Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. Smith nearly four years ago established a little colony of their own at the light. Although they got mail only once in six months, they found entertainment in their family of four Spitz dogs, two billy goats, and some chickens. They made a garden at the foot of the ledge of rock on which the lighthouse is built, but a 90-mile gale swept it away, gouging out the soil to a depth of a foot. After that "Bob" rigged up a hothouse.

In the fall of 1918, "Bob" found three bodies from the wreck of the ill-fated government steamer Galiano, and on another occasion they sheltered 15 Japanese fishermen whose boat had been wrecked off the Cape.
