BRINGING UP FATHER

WORK TO START IMMEDIATELY ON BOOTH SCHOOL BUILDING—ARCHITECT JEFFERS IN CHARGE.

three weeks. There would be no trouble in obtaining cement locally and the repairs to the floors would be simply a matter of day labor. Before he could start the work personally he would first have to make a trip back to Edmonton to look after some of his own business there and make arrangements for coming here. There would be no necessity for his being here more than four or five weeks. He would like to supervise the brick work, repairs to fire walls and roof which would have to be done in sections. A carpenter could look after the floor repairs. The best plan for doing the brick and fire wall repairs would be to engage a working foreman with two or three assistants. There were three men in the city that he knew of, who would be capable of and willing to become foremen. It would perhaps take four or five weeks to do the fire walls and the other work could be going on at the same time. Mr. Jeffers stated that before he would want to go onto this work, however, he would want to see Mr. Potter taken care of. Dr. Kergin replied that Mr. Potter could hardly be engaged to carry on this work, anyway.

Temporary Financing.

The question of financing the work was touched upon. Mr. Vance said that the temporary financing might be arranged pending the passing of a bylaw. Mr. Jeffers pointed out that the brickwork would have to be done anyway and he did not think anyone could reasonably oppose it. Mr. McLennan said the work had to be done and he did not think three percent of the people would oppose it.

Later at the council meeting, Dr. Kergin explained the progress that had been made by the school board. It was necessary if they were to act at all to act immediately because the suitable weather of the summer should be taken advantage of and also the school would be needed after the holidays.

In answer to a question by Ald. Dybhavn, Dr. Kergin said that the estimate of $12,000 to $15,000 would cover the cost of supervision from now on but would not include the cost of advice already received or future suggestions included in the list.

Unwise to Delay.

Ald. Dybhavn felt that the matter of policy was a question for the school board to decide. Where the council was concerned was in the financing. The work however, should not be held up for the passing of a bylaw. He thought it would be unwise to have the building stand as it was for the sake of $15,000. Temporary arrangements for the financing could possibly be made.

Ald. Kelly said he was in accordance with the idea that immediate remedial measures must be taken. Since both Mr. Jeffers and Mr. Whittaker had signed the suggestions and the school board had adopted them it was up to the council to support them.

Mayor Doubtful.

Mayor Rochester wanted to know what guarantee there was that the work would be completed for $15,000. Two architects had reported and there was great discrepancy in the reports as between $15,000 and $15,000. Before anything definite was decided upon they should have a pretty concrete undertaking. If the building was perfectly safe as had been declared he could not see where $15,000 expenditure would be necessary. It would be a question for the people to de-side as far as he was concerned. Ald. Montgomery said he had views himself on the question although the council had little to do with it outside of providing for the raising of the money. The reports of the three architects practically tallied as regards the weakness of the building. The difference came in the method proposed for making it safe and sound so people would have confidence in it. He was not satisfied that full protection would be given in the suggestions now proposed. He would never feel satisfied if this proposition was carried through. He would rather pay $45,000 or more and ensure safety. He did not think $10,000 or $15,000 would bring it up to the proper standard. Money did not count where a question of the safety of the children was involved. He had lost confidence in the building altogether, especially when all three architects had condemned it. No makeshifts should be suggested but something sure should be put forward.

Safety First.

Ald. Perry said that Ald. Montgomery had spoken wisely. The safety of the building was the main consideration. Mr. Jeffers and Mr. Whittaker had inspected the building under favorable conditions while Mr. Cox had been here during heavy rains and gales. That might account for the severity of the latter's report. He felt, however, if the school board was perfectly satisfied that this program for the repairing of the building would produce 100 percent safety that the only thing to do was to go ahead with the work. He would favor the money being raised temporarily. It was no use having the building deteriorating and he did not think that the bylaw would be turned down. The money must be found and the main thing was to ascertain if the expenditure was legitimate. If the building could be made as good as was originally intended it would be a very happy conclusion.

School Board Responsible

Ald. Dybhavn, in moving that the council undertake to provide the finances with a view to submitting a bylaw if necessary, pointed out that the technical aspect of the matter was up to the school board to decide upon and they were responsible.

Mayor Rochester said he did not see why they should act until they had at least received a written report from the school board.

Ald. Montgomery said he did not believe in the principle of spending money before they had a bylaw. If the people did not wish to pass the bylaw then it was up to them.

The mayor said he was free to confess that he did not see where $15,000 would put the school in shape. It was his opinion that there was faulty mortar throughout the building.

After Mr. Jeffers and Mr. Whittaker, who were both present, had spoken on the general safety of the building and had backed up their opinions that $15,000 would cover the cost, the resolution was put and carried with Ald. Montgomery and Mayor Rochester voting against it as recorded.

NARBETHONG OWNER AND INSPECTION LAW

Capt. Freeman Refuses to Have Regular Inspector on His Boat and Appeals to Ottawa

Capt. Freeman is continuing his fight against the steamboat inspection service. He has applied for inspection but refuses to have the regular inspector aboard his boat. He has applied to the minister of marine and fisheries, Premier Mackenzie King, and the two leaders of the opposition, laying his case before them personally, and says he is out to fight the matter through.

The customs department says that the alternative to refusing inspection will be to have the Narbethong tied up.

"If they are going to make an outlaw of me I intend to be a damned good outlaw," says the Captain.
