Mrs. Fred Bingham, Swift Current, Sask., writes:—'I was bothered with palpitation of the heart, and my nerves were so bad I could not sleep. I was getting desperate and confided my trouble to a friend who recommended me to use Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I purchased a box and got such relief I would gladly recommend them to all who are troubled as I was.'

ARTICLES ON FASCISM

Yesterday many readers of the Daily News were much interested in the first of a short series of articles on Fascism written by Victor Basso-Bert of this city. At various times we have published articles on the Russian system but little, except of a critical nature, has been written of Italy under Fascist rule. Both Russia and Italy are carrying out intensely interesting experiments, the result of which promises to have a profound influence on the rest of the world.

One thing that must be borne in mind is that the Italian temperament is very different from the Anglo-Saxon temperament and that Russians differ from each of these. What appeals to one may not appeal to the other. Every nation has its own ideals, its likes and dislikes, its own problems to work out and its own way of enjoying life. Because Fascism is good for Italy does not necessarily mean that it would be good for Canada any more than would a Soviet system. Most of those who are moving for either of these systems are closely related to people who live under those systems and they must not be disappointed if we do not see eye to eye with them.

For many years Britain led the world in developing a social democracy. She led in popular education and British people will carry on in their own way, developing step by step until a better system is evolved from the present rather than by overthrowing the present system and trampling it under foot as had to be done in other countries where development had been slower or even non-existent. We suggest that all new systems be studied carefully with a view to aiding in the development of our own.

Inspiring Plea For World Peace By Enlightening Public Opinion is Made

about the Great War was that no single nation among the combatants could be said to have won the war—or even to have won out of the war. Not even the nations which were neutral had gained. Not a single object for which blood had been expended, and for which the expenditure was claimed to have been morally justified, had been gained. Militarism, slain in Germany to that nation's profit, continued its life in France. In England militarism died hard. In United States militarism today seemed synonymous with education. In Canada, even, militarism claimed a great deal of attention—there were as many military cadets in the province of Ontario as in all of England.

Not all the war memorials or cenotaph ceremonies could destroy the fact, as a distinguished preacher who did much to advocate the "fight to a finish" had come at last to say in St. Paul's Cathedral, that the Great War was a "regrettable and avoidable calamity."

What Has Been Accomplished

Certain facts should be known in regard to what or what not had been accomplished during the years from 1918 to 1932. Despite all the reductions supposedly achieved by conferences, the level of armaments remained as high, if not higher, today than ever. Out of every dollar of the world's money which was spent, 97c went to war—past, present or future. The other three cents was left to feed, clothe and educate the world. Did people realize that, since the close of the Great War, Britain had spent twelve million pounds on armaments? At every tick of the clock she spent $4 on armaments while she spent less than half a penny on the League of Nations. Of the leading forty-eight nations of the world, no fewer than thirty-seven maintained conscript armies. Belgium in 1913 had an army of 53,000 and today it was 85,000. Greece's army in 1913 was 29,000 while today it was 61,000. Italy's army in 1913 was 304,000 men and today it was 490,000. United States' army had increased from 92,000 to 139,000 men. All this was in spite of the growing sentiment in favor of disarmament and world peace.

There are many who believed it their duty in 1914 to take up arms who see clearly now that war will never end war," declared the speaker, "and that new methods of settling international disputes must be found if civilization is not to go under altogether."

Instead of war had given birth to the League of Nations. The world was slowly coming to believe in a real internationalism. "Without loving our own country less we are learning to care for other countries more and the brotherhood of man once a mere phrase, is becoming something of a reality. We are against war in the name of the dead. Let us not plan another Remembrance Day that will dwarf the present one by its great sacrifice!

War Not In Accord

"Let us believe that, at some time or another, if not in our time, there will emerge a generation which will recognize that war is not in accord with the kind of universe in which we live and move and that, in the Name of God, it must be repudiated. We are learning the great truth that peace must be won from a deeper source than economies, League of Nations, Scraps of Paper. These are only temporary expedients. Peace conditions can only be restored and maintained by the growth and power of individual thought.

"The safeguarding of the future is the duty of all people of goodwill. Instead of being wise after the event, the time has come to say: 'Never Again.'

"It is not by treaties, by agreements or by laws that the peace of the world will be secured," concluded the speaker, "but by an enlightened public opinion, a new spirit in the nations, a broad love of truth and justice and service inspired by the life, teaching and spirit of Jesus of Nazareth."

Sentiments Commended

The president, William Crutchshank, thanked Mr. Hollinworth, on behalf of the club, for his inspiring address. As one who had played a small part in the last war, he heartily subscribed with the sentiments which had been voiced by the speaker in regard to world peace.

The club decided to convert its luncheon of next week to an evening dinner meeting when a program of moving pictures will be shown and other entertainment arranged, the ladies to be invited on this occasion.

BASKETBALL PLAY KEEN

C. N. R. A. Defeated Grotto 40 to 31 Last Night

Hard fought games were played in the basketball card last night. In the Senior division the C. N. R. A. just outclassed the Grotto 40-31. The Railway boys outplayed the Grotto in combination and teamwork and well deserved their victory. The Grotto, taking long shots with a good majority going in, could not stand up to a real short passing game and the C. N. R. A. seldom miss when they get under the basket.

The Intermediate game started out well with little to choose between either team but, in the second half, the Merchants, a much heavier team, broke up the Tuxis guard and scored baskets at will to give them an easy victory, 41-28.

The Ladies' game was close and interesting with the Amazons outscoring the Cardinals by two points, 9-7. The girls are playing a much better game now.

In the Junior tussle the boys played a real good game and the Japanese well deserved their win over Boy Scouts, 17-10.
