ANYOX, Feb. 15.—The Recreation Hall on Friday night last was the scene of much enthusiasm in the many art of self-defence, the occasion being a smoking concert in which boxing and wrestling played a prominent part, staged under the auspices of the Anyox Community League. The attendance was large, and the entire program was splendidly handled. Floyd Hall, vice-president of the league, acted as chairman, while Jack Sherman and Ed Wall acted very capably as referees.

PACIFIC COAST HOCKEY LEAGUE

Situation Reviewed by Prominent Sport Writer—Difficulty in Getting Recruits.

Written for the Canadian Press by A. P. Garvey. VANCOUVER, Feb. 15.—The Pacific Coast League has for years been an outstanding factor in professional hockey frequently holding the Stanley Cup emblematic of world supremacy among the paid puck chasers. This season the British Columbia athletes will not only lay claim to this coveted trophy, but will also attempt to conquer the amateur field and carry off the Allan Cup which represents the Dominion championship in this class. The province west of the Rockies looms big in the hockey map and intends to be more outstanding than ever this winter.

Round 1. At the sound of the zong both men started in to box beginning at long range. Corkle landed two lefts on Morgan's nose, Morgan replying with right and left jabs to the body. The round closed with little to choose.

Round 2. Both men started in to mix things, getting into several clinches. In this round Morgan showed cleverness at in fighting and gave Corkle a few love taps on the body, which did not seem to stop the big fellow at all. Corkle made several wicked swings with his right to the head but fortunately for Morgan they did not land. Corkle landed twice on his opponent's nose. Both men finished fresh.

Round 3. At the start of the round both men got into a clinch. The exchanges of blows were well mixed. Corkle seemed to make a target of Morgan's jaw, but Morgan's headwork saved him each time. Corkle waded right in and was absolutely fearless in attack. Morgan landed several body punches but without apparent effect.

Round 4. This was an anvil and hammer round both men wading into each other with much vim. Both gave and received heavy body punches. Corkle kept up close to his man watching for a good opening but Morgan's defence was impassable. Corkle landed several hard body blows on Morgan while Morgan got in several good lefts. There was little to choose between the two.

Round 5. Blows were exchanged fast and furiously in this round, several clinches being indulged in. Both men broke on the word of the referee every time, and broke clean. Morgan seemed to make a mark of Corkle's nose, but the blows did not seem to upset the equilibrium of the miking artist. There was some pretty fighting in this round both men seeming to get in a fair share of exchanges. Both men landed hard body blows, and Corkle stopped a left which came into contact with his nose. Neither man showed any signs of fatigue at the end of the round.

Round 6. This was a "hum-dinger" of the bout. Both men sprang into action at the sound of the zong, and it looked as though someone was going to get hurt. Morgan made a terrific right arm swing at Corkle, which, if it had landed would probably have ended the fun.

However, Corkle was not to be caught napping and missed it with pretty head work. Corkle hammered at his opponent's body, and Morgan seemed to be showing signs of lung difficulty. However, Morgan kept putting out some rapid lefts with quite marked effect on Corkle's nose. This round was a very pretty one, and it was plainly seen that there was nothing to choose between the two.

At the close of the round both men shook hands with the best of sportsmanship, the spectators cheering them to the echo.

SKATE IN NORWAY

Canada and United States to Be Represented Next Winter. LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 15.—Canada and the United States will be represented at the skating events to be held in Norway next winter, according to the plans of J. T. Fitzgerald, president of the International Skating Union.

made good with the Seattle club and have been given ample opportunity to acquire experience. Fraser is probably the better man of the pair but Briden is rapidly showing class on the left wing. Victoria has Slim Halderman, former Winnipeg Falcon star. He is not a finished skater and gets around slowly, but Lester Patriek believes he will make good.

With the half way mark passed the coast clubs will be soon on the home stretch. At this stage it's anybody's gonfalon. Vancouver has probably shown more class than the opposing clubs and unless the dope goes astray the Millionaires will be in the championship play-off. Injuries have militated against the success of both Victoria and Seattle clubs during the past few weeks. Seattle has played many games with Roy Riekey, their defense star sitting on the bench, while Eddie Outman, Victoria's flashy captain, has been out of several games. The absence of these stars has been no small factor in holding the Seattle and Victoria clubs back.

No dates have yet been allocated for the coast play-off. The last league game is scheduled for Feb. 24. Then follows the home and home games between the leaders. Right on top of this classic comes the play-off with the winners on the prairie loop, the team coming through in this series making the trip east to play for the world's championship and the Stanley Cup. The series will start in the east not later than March 15.

CANADIAN WELTER MAY FIGHT BRITTON

Offer Made by Promoter of $40,000 for Match Between Champions.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—The announcement is made that Hugh LeBlanc, local boxing promoter, has offered Jack Britton, welter-weight champion of the world, $40,000 for a match with Moe Herscovitch of Montreal, welter-weight champion of Canada.

meel tonight in a Trail Club Shield billiard competition. It will be the last tournament for the Elks and the second last for the St. Andrew's, they having to play the great War Veterans yet. There seems little likelihood of the standing of the two teams being changed although it is possible. However it would require a big victory for the Elks to displace the St. Andrew's from third place and take it themselves and the teams are too evenly matched to expect this. The line-ups are as follows:

At St. Andrew's G. McIlmoyle (Elks) vs. R. Robertson; Ben Self vs. S. D. Macdonald.

At Elks' Home—J. H. Pillsbury vs. R. Davie; E. Green vs. R. Andrew's.

At Wanderers—Bert McEvoy vs. A. Kinghorn; W. Balagno vs. J. A. Allen.

Sport Chat

Great interest is being taken in the elimination billiard handicaps which commenced on Monday night at the Prince Rupert Pool room. At the opening games there was a big attendance of spectators and some really interesting games were seen. There is said to be quite a good deal of betting going on as to the outcome. The surprise of Monday night's games was the defeat of O. Smith by J. Bond. Bond, after having received a start of 50 points, defeated his man 59 over and above his advance. The first round is in progress every night this week and is to be concluded by Friday night, the second round commencing as soon thereafter as possible.

The following is the list of names and players for the first round: Pat Burke vs. A. McTae; W. Brown vs. W. Balagno; George Waugh vs. Sam Howe; Aldridge vs. Jack Sudon; Dick Howe vs. Mike Chlenowski; S. Sugu vs. C. Balagno; S. P. McMordie vs. E. Fenelon; Jack Bond vs. E. Smith; K. Halliday vs. J. A. Bond; W. Duncan vs. George Mann; W. Harbour vs. Bert Morrison; J. Judge vs. Roi Barnes; A. Ensson vs. W. Blythe; Pat Burke vs. Sam Howe; F. Aldridge vs. Mike Chlenowski and O. Smith have already been eliminated.

Some of the heavy handicaps are as follows: Pat Burke, 50; W. Brown, 50; George Waugh, 40; Jack Sudon, 40; S. P. McMordie, 60; W. Harbour, 80; J. Judge, 50; W. Blythe, 50; The following bet has been posted for the first round: Harbour, Blythe and McMordie, 8 to 1; Waugh, Brown and Judge, 10 to 1; W. Balagno vs. Balagno, Bert McEvoy, J. A. Bond, E. Fenelon, 15 to 1; all others, 20 to 1.

The St. Andrew's and the Elks

Prior to the commencement of the bouts, Bob Armour, the genial president of the league, presented each spectator with a clay pipe, tobacco, cigarettes and matches, while the Community orchestra under the direction of Lyn Haden, hit a merry clip with raggy and jazzy melodies. The program was full of action from start to finish, and between each bout songs and instrumental selections were much enjoyed.

The Program. The main exhibition bout of the evening between Johnny Morgan of Ladysmith and Geo. Corkle of Anyox Mine, caused much excitement. These two exponents of the spirited art having met on two previous occasions, in both cases fighting to a draw.

The various preliminaries lined up on the program as follows: Cy. Greenwell versus Don Moore, three 2 minute rounds.

Tebro and Clay, two aspiring "heavyweights" of the Anyox public school, three 2 minute rounds. This item was particularly amusing, the youngsters giving quite a life-like portrayal of the old-fashioned windmills, their arms swinging in the air with the regularity of the sails of an old Dutch windmill.

Ernie Green versus Red McColl, three 2 minute rounds.

R. Evans versus J. Cameron, three 2 minute rounds.

Johnny Morgan of Ladysmith sang "Let The Rest of the World Go By" in a good, baritone voice.

A Hudson versus Barney Fitzpatrick, three 2 minute rounds.

Carl Salmon versus B. J. Fitzpatrick, three 2 minute rounds.

A comic bout was put on by four of the youngsters, Clay, Tebro, Morrison and Johnson, who being undisciplined were started out one at each corner of the ring, and much merriment was caused by their antics.

The Big Bout. The last bout of the evening between George Corkle of the Anyox Mine and Johnny Morgan of Ladysmith was undoubtedly the "hit bit" of the entertainment. Both men were in fine shape physically, and while perhaps Corkle had the advantage in height and reach, Morgan was very quick with his footwork and never got into any position
