URGES PEOPLE BACK RAILWAY

George McNicholl Draws Attention of Rotary Club to Fact That Railway is Their's

Drawing attention to the fact that the Canadian National railway and steamships belong to the people and that they should patronize their own road and steamships, George McNicholl yesterday gave an interesting and humorous address before the Rotary Club. He said the people were shareholders in one of the oldest companies in Canada. The Grand Trunk was started back in 1852 and even in 1831 the Champlain and St. Lawrence Railway was commenced, linking the rail and water routes from Montreal to New York.

Telling of the Grand Trunk Pacific Mr. McNicholl said the baby was not allowed to grow to sturdy manhood. Its parent the Grand Trunk, unable to feed it, had turned it over to its godfather, the Canadian Government, and they in turn had turned it over to the foster parent, the Canadian Northern. However he expected it would soon grow to be as sturdy as any of the others.

Stock in Trade
"Our stock in trade is transportation," said Mr. McNicholl. "That is all we have to sell and behind the counter we try to have a pleasant smile. It is comparatively easy to get a passenger the first time but to keep him as a customer is more difficult. On the attention he gets depends whether he will ride a second time or a third time."

In regard to rate making it was often difficult to quote quickly. Some rates asked for had to go before the various roads affected and even to the railway commission and there was considerable delay. Of one thing, however, they might be assured and that was that when they got a rate it was the same as their competitors.

One good thing about modern railway business was the interchange arrangement. They were able to book to almost any part of the world and a ticket could be bought in Prince Rupert and delivered to a person, say in Europe, and that person would be taken care of and brought right here.

Resources Branch
Another important branch of railroad work was the resources branch. This was designed to spread information to all parts of the world in regard to the business opportunities along the life of railway and the lands open for settlement. He recalled getting a letter from a settler where there were eight children of school age wanting a teacher with four so that they could open with twelve pupils according to Government requirements. The school was now open.

The best advertising a road could get was satisfied passengers, said Mr. McNicholl. What he liked was to hear a passenger tell him he had just had the best trip ever and then bring others over the route. Such a man was an asset to the railway. He told some humorous stories of passengers who were assets to the railway and of others who were the reverse.
