Canadian Pacific Express Co. Leaving Local Field in Favor of Canadian National

In line with the policy of co-operation in elimination of duplication which is being adopted by the two major railway companies of Canada, the Canadian Pacific Express Co. will withdraw from business at Prince Rupert at the end of November, leaving the local field to the Canadian National Express Co.

Similar moves are being made by the express companies at all other competitive points in Canada, except the larger cities. It is understood. The company which has the smaller business at each point is withdrawing, leaving that place to the company which has the larger business.

The Canadian Pacific Express Co. has operated an office here ever since the very early days. H. B. Rochester having been the first agent. R. M. Smith is the present agent.

Harry C. Evans, well known pioneer resident of Prince Rupert, who followed the calling of a piano tuner in this city for more than twenty years, passed away at the Prince Rupert General Hospital at 5 o'clock this morning after having been a patient in the institution since last June. He succumbed to the effects of gangrenous diabetes. Some time ago it became necessary for surgeons to amputate one of his legs. Recently it had been realized that recovery could not be hoped for.

The late Mr. Evans was a native of New York and was 71 years of age. He was unmarried and, as far as is known, had no relatives hereabouts. He was of a genial and kindly disposition and had many friends who will regret his passing.

Funeral arrangements are in the hands of Haynor Bros., undertakers. Deceased was a member of the Eagles' Lodge.

Spiritual Source of Doctrine From Which Fascist State Emerged on Parting Company With Socialists

(By Victor Basso-Bert)

To elucidate, to discern and individualize the fundamental idea of the corporative state established in Italy by Mussolini it is necessary to make a short dissertation on the vast field of the various efforts made by men to find a way out of the present crude capitalistic system.

In 1848 at the Congress of the First Internationale, Marx and Engels, socialists, emerged victorious over Babouine, the anarchist, and Mazzini, the republican. Ever since then Marxism has been the dominating school of socialism but there have been other contributors to the main thought—Engels, with "Origin of Property," "Family and State;" Antonio Labriola, with "The Materialistic Conception of History," and countless others. As a result of the various schools, socialist parties were organized in practically every country. The labor organizations, imbued with Marxian philosophy and dialectic of the class struggle, were directed toward the political conquest of the state.

In some countries, labor organization has been purely economic. The great British trade unions were slowly permeated by the gospel of Marx and are now socialistic. In continental Europe the gospel created the fact of the organization while in Britain the fact moved to the idea.

A well differentiated branch of the school of socialism called Syndicalism was cohabiting in the international family of Socialism. This school was sponsored by Sorel Peguy and Lagardelle of the "Mouvement Socialiste" in France, Orano, Olivetti, Labriola, Leone and Mussolini in Italy. This particular school had a peculiar conception of its own to solve the social problem. It was aiming to organize production and control it through the syndicates of the various forms of labor in a centralized and unitarian way, without the mastodon bureaucracy that the socialist ownership of the means of production and exchange would involve.

As a point of reference Lenin and Trotsky were pure Marxian and the Russian revolution is a fruit of Marxian dialectic.

It is interesting to observe the spiritual source of the two great revolutions, one in Russia, the other in Italy, their march and the influence they will have on human destiny.

After assuming the reins of power in Italy, Mussolini immediately started his task. In the laborious and numerous sessions of the Fascist grand council, the new corporative state gradually emerged. One of its first laws, the basic and fundamental one, was comprised in the thirty declarations of policy of the magna charta of labor, now the corner stone of the corporative edifice.

While in the east Mr. Johnson said he had attended a number of dinners. He was present at the annual fish dinner in Montreal with 150 present including many notables. He had been given an opportunity to advertise Prince Rupert in a brief speech. Another fish dinner at Boston gave him another opportunity to bring publicity to Prince Rupert.

In Montreal he attended a Rotary luncheon at which Prince Rupert halibut was served.

A dinner given by the Canadian Club of Montreal was addressed by the Marquis of Reading, who discussed English political affairs and mentioned the recent little disturbance in London over the Meins Test. Lord Reading had said that the world was today full of inflammable material and it was the duty of each one to preserve a proper mental attitude toward peace.

In Ottawa Mr. Johnson met Oief Hanson M.P. and lunched with him and later listened to a debate in the House of Commons. One of the jokes he heard while there was a proposal to trade the Irish Free States for the Panhandle of Alaska.

Mr. Johnson brought best regards to Prince Rupert people from S. K. Campbell, formerly manager of the Bank of Commerce in Prince Rupert. He had recently been appointed assistant to the manager of the largest branch of the bank in Montreal and was on his way to take the position when he met him.

At the conclusion Mr. Johnson was thanked by President Woodland for his interesting address.

CONDITIONS BETTER IN CANADA THAN IN UNITED STATES; THIS COUNTRY IS MORE OPTIMISTIC

100,000 customers. From him he learned that the average purchase had in four years fallen from 57 cents to 37 cents. The number of customers had increased out of the turnover and the profit had decreased.

United States

In the United States Mr. Johnson found the east better than the middle or western part of the country. Many big hotels and apartment buildings had gone into the hands of receivers and business had been badly handicapped by bank failures. However, everywhere in Canada and the States he found people optimistic, although in many cases the optimism was not borne out by the facts. However, he took it that the mental attitude was a great thing. It was the beginning of a better era.
