Spring Is Here
So Paint Up Houses.
 In a good many communities they have a clean-up and paint-up week. All the efforts of the community are then devoted to improving their houses and gardens, cleaning up their back yards and making the town more attractive to the visitor.
 Painting has to be done with some degree of regularity if places are to be kept in good condition. Lumber deteriorates very quickly if not properly protected. That is one reason for painting. The other reason is that the painted premises indicate the live merchant, the progressive householder. Keep the town looking fresh even if there is no rush of business. Nothing brings business to a town or to a store like keeping up a good appearance.
 Whether a clean-up week would be effective here it is difficult to say. At any rate it might be effective in drawing attention to a condition and in suggesting improvement.

Must Co-operate
With Outside Points.
 It is natural that we should all look out for ourselves. That is the primitive instinct of the race. Self-preservation makes us do many things we would otherwise leave undone and makes us leave undone many things which our finer instincts tell us we should do. There is always a contest between the crude instincts and the fine instincts. We must make a living; we like to make progress, but at the same time we must be considerate of our neighbor.
 As with people, so with communities. We each want to grab everything within our reach. Yet there comes a time when we begin to consider whether our neighboring community might not also be considered.
 In the north we are one big community and the good of one part is to a large extent the good of all. If one section of the community is injured, all suffer. Prince Rupert is the central point in this large community and if one place suffers Prince Rupert is the first place outside of the one directly affected to feel the effects. While we as a city have to fight our way in competition with our larger neighbors, yet at the same time we have to cultivate the goodwill of the whole northern community. It is our business to aid them whenever possible, for in doing so we are helping ourselves.

Just now there is a movement started to take settlers to Queen Charlotte Islands. They are going of their own initiative and are paying their way and have some money in their pockets. If we can help them to get established we shall at the same time be helping ourselves. It is not for us to criticize their judgment in making their home on the Islands. Many settlers go to the interior and do well, but all do not like that kind of climate. Some prefer the coast. Prince Rupert people prefer it or they would not be here. So these people who are going to the Islands have made their choice, and if we can help them to make good it is not only a duty but a benefit to ourselves.

Soaking the Cities
Saving the Country.
 An article reprinted from the Toronto Globe taking exception to the present movement to "soak" the cities for all the taxes and let the farmers go almost tax free brought forth an interesting remark from a Prince Rupert citizen yesterday. He said:
 "I am heartily in favor of soaking the cities. There are too many people in the cities and they should be in the country. The more cities are soaked the more the tendency will be for the people to live in the country. It suits me. I am with that policy. Soak the cities, I say, and drive the people into the country."

English People
And Coast Climate.
 In considering the migration of people from the British Isles it must be remembered that they have been accustomed to a mild, moist climate and often prefer that sort of climate to the rigorous, clear, cold and dry climate of the interior. Everything depends on individual taste. Many people would not live in a place where there is a heavy rainfall. On the other hand many will not live where the thermometer goes below zero and where the summer are hot and mosquitoes active. While one man will choose the prairies, another will look to the wooded valleys of British Columbia, and yet others will want to be near the sea. English, Scottish and Irish people have all lived near the sea. They have a seaboard climate in those islands, and if they happen to choose a similar climate when they come to this country we in Prince Rupert, at any rate, will not take exception to their judgment.

HAS NEVER FELT THE RHEUMATISM

Since Taking "Fruit-a-tives" The Famous Fruit Medicine
 P. O. Box 123, PARSBORO, N.S.
 "I suffered with Rheumatism for five years, having it so badly at times I was unable to get up. I tried medicines I saw advertised, and was treated by doctors but the Rheumatism always came back. In 1916, I saw in an advertisement that "Fruit-a-tives" would stop Rheumatism and took a box, and got relief; then took "Fruit-a-tives" right along for about six months and I have never felt my Rheumatism since."

PROMINENT ANYOX MAN HAS PASSED

W. K. MacDonald, Pioneer Citizen, Succumbs to Pneumonia.
 Anyox lost one of its best known and most esteemed citizens of long standing when the death occurred on Sunday last, after a brief illness, of W. K. MacDonald, head powderman at the mine and a prominent figure in all departments of community life. The late Mr. MacDonald was stricken down on Thursday with what was at first believed to be influenza. He was taken to the hospital and the case was later diagnosed as pneumonia. He expired on Sunday.
 Deceased was a native of Granby, Quebec, and was about 55 years of age. He came west in 1899 and was connected with the Granby Company, Phoenix, B. C., until September, 1911, when he came to Anyox shortly after the company opened operations. Besides being well known and popular socially, Mr. MacDonald, as a strong Conservative, always took an active part in politics and in 1916 opposed the late Frank Mobley in the provincial election. Although not elected, he polled a strong vote on this occasion. He was a prominent Elk in the smelter town lodge and at the last election of officers was chosen esteemed leading knight. In religion he was a Catholic.
 Mr. MacDonald was a single man and is survived by two brothers in the east. The remains will arrive here by the Prince Rupert tomorrow night en route to Granby, Quebec, where interment will take place.

The Man in the Moon SAYS:-
 FOLLOWING the spring break-up, suckers are running up the streams and being caught by millions in eastern Canada. In the west there is an open season for suckers all the time.
 NOW that spring is here and the trout are sending out wireless messages to the local anglers, what about offering a prize for the longest imagination in town.
 MANITOBA is the place for optimists. Last week when there was a snowfall everybody was happy because they said it would be good for the crops.

Ten Years Ago in Prince Rupert
 April 5, 1912.
 The Hospital Board in Session yesterday afternoon approved the appointment of Misses Campbell, McLeod and Walker as probationers. They are the first nurses-in-training in the local institution.
 The police commission has granted two weeks' leave to Chief W. H. Vickers who has gone south to attend the assizes. Sergeant Merritt is acting chief.
 "Six months ago, Terrace was but a wilderness; now it has bloomed into the most promising town between Prince Rupert and Hazelton," says Dr. Trayner, of that town, who is visiting the city. "There is a hotel, sawmill, drug store, blacksmith shop, general store, real estate office and over twenty-five private residences. Real estate is selling like the proverbial hot cakes."

MOUNTED POLICE ANNUAL REPORT
Provides Interesting Statistics and General Information—Local Work.
 Some interesting statistics and general information is contained in the annual report of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police for the year ended September 30, 1921, which has just been issued from Ottawa.
 The report shows that on September 30, 1921, there were 70 officers, 1610 non-commissioned officers and constables and 795 horses in the Dominion. This showed a slight decrease in officers from the year preceding, a slight increase in the ranks and a decrease of 200 horses. In the province of B. C. there were 19 officers, 255 non-commissioned officers and constables and 165 horses.
 During the year covered, the mounted police in this province handled 954 cases under federal statutes, four under the criminal code and made 502 investigations at the instance of other departments. The number of cases dealt with in this province under federal statutes constituted about one-quarter of the total for the whole Dominion.
Chief Police Work.
 As is known, the chief work of the mounted police is the policing of the outlying posts of the Dominion. Thus the main activity in handling criminal cases has not been in the cities and organized districts but in the far northern expanses, where perhaps the most active work of the department has been carried on. In the province of British Columbia the principal duties of the department have been in dealing with the drug cases under Dominion statutes. In Vancouver the mounted police were called upon in the year covered in the report to prevent disorders in the way of riots which threatened on one oc-

BE THANKFUL
 A political rally was being held in a large hall in London. The speaker was a man who had rather a weak voice and similar political policies.
 A cockney up in the gallery cupped his hands behind his ears in a vain effort to hear, then shouted, "Oi cawn't hear! Oi cawn't hear!"
 Another cockney down in front of the platform rose to his feet and shouted back:
 "Ya cawn't hear? Well, thank Gawd, and sit down."

KETCHIKAN MERCHANT
Louis Hanson of the Bon Marche Goes East on the Train
 Among the arrivals yesterday on the Princess Mary was Louis Hanson of Ketchikan, owner of the Bon Marche at that town, and a property owner here. He went east on the train and will be away two or three weeks.
 Mr. Hanson says Ketchikan has been prospering. He thinks the cost of transportation between his city and this is too high. Having to pay exchange on his Canadian money also worries him. However he sees better things coming.
