NEWS OF THE MINES AROUND PRINCE RUPERT

Proposal Made to Smelt Britannia Ore at Anyox—
Stewart Asking For Customs Concentrator—
Pitt Goes South on Business

The possibility of smelting copper from the Britannia mine on Howe Sound on the lower coast at Anyox is being investigated by the provincial government in an attempt to keep copper mines of this coast in operation. According to latest advices from Ottawa, copper smelted in Canada but finally refined in the United States would enter Britain under the new Empire preference of four cents a pound. Thus Britannia copper, smelted at Anyox and refined at Tacoma, where it is now handled entirely, would receive the preference. Whether the Granby Co. would be prepared to handle outside copper at its Anyox plant is not known to the government as yet but will be determined by further enquiry. Meanwhile, the Canadian government, alarmed at the exclusion of British Columbia copper from the British market under the new treaty because it is mostly smelted in the United States, is making further representations to the British government. British Columbia is pressing for the original interpretation of the new Canadian-British trade treaty under which copper produced in Empire countries would receive the British preference, even if smelted in a foreign country. Meanwhile, the new requirement that Canadian ore must be smelted in Canada if it is to receive the trade treaty preference is threatening to have the effect of seriously curtailing, if not discontinuing, production of existing copper mines on the north coast. The Premier mine in the Portland Canal district is one of those which finds itself facing this position at present. Efforts are being made to have the smelting of ore in bond in the United States permitted for a temporary period or else to make new arrangements for the smelting in British Columbia smelters of ore which has been customarily treated in Tacoma, Selby or elsewhere in the United States.

STORY IS DRAMATIC

Freddie March and Sylvia Sidney Head Cast of "Merrily We Go to Hell"

The moving picture producers, in their wisdom, have changed "I, Jerry, Take Thee, Joan," the original title of the novel, to "Merrily We Go to Hell" for the name of the film starring Freddie March and Sylvia Sidney which will be the feature offering on the screen of the Capitol Theatre here for the first of this week. Despite the unattractive (to some) title, the picture drama, which closely follows the episodes of the original story, makes an admirable vehicle for the superior dramatic talents of these two popular players. It is the first time they have been combined at the head of a cast.

The picture dramatizes the story of married life in America's modern young group of irresponsibles. March plays the part of a brilliant but careless newspaper reporter who loves prohibited beverages while Miss Sidney has the part of Joan, the daughter of wealthy parents, who falls for March and marries him in spite of family objections. The experiences of the couple thereafter form the material of a dramatic story which, after many vicissitudes, at last has a satisfying climax.

Adrienne Allen and Skeets Gallagher have the principal supporting roles.

A movement is on foot at Stewart looking to the construction of a customs concentrator there. It is estimated that at least fifteen properties in the Bear River valley are sufficiently developed to mine and profitably ship ore if a local concentrating mill was in operation.

Dale L. Pitt, general manager of the Premier Gold Mining Co., left Stewart recently for a trip to Vancouver and elsewhere in the south on company business.

Living is no less an art than painting or sculpture; its raw material is human nature.—A. Huxley
