COAL SCARCITY IN THE STATES

Profiteering Prices Follow Paucity of Supply and People Are Dissatisfied

LEGISLATION MAY FOLLOW

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19. — (By Canadian Press). — The coal situation in the United States, to use the language of a well known French physician now in America, does not "get better and better every day." On the contrary, the conditions with respect to coal are the subject of constant public complaint and are likely to remain so through the winter. Profiteering prices along with shortage of supply and in some cases poor quality of fuel, unite to make consumers much dissatisfied. Recent conferences of miners and operators in the bituminous field intended to obviate another strike next summer, have arrived at no settlement and while this does not mean necessarily that there will be another strike, it at least opens up that possibility.

The patience of the public over the coal situation was sorely tried last summer and again this winter. Another strike would cause a wave of demand for drastic action.

Legislation Expected

Conditions are combining to keep up a keen interest in the forthcoming report of the coal commission which is now investigating and which is expected to recommend legislation. It is not expected that a majority of the commission, which is conservative, will favor government ownership of the mines but it is expected to favor strict regulation. Nothing less than that will satisfy public feeling. In fact, unless the commission does recommend strict regulation, Congress is likely to ignore its findings and proceed to enact legislation of a regulatory character regardless of the commission.

Undoubtedly, when coal legislation comes up, as it inevitably will in the new Congress, government ownership and various plans of nationalization will be presented. Sentiment for government ownership of the mines is growing but a bill probably could not pass either house without a trial government regulation. The nationalization research committee of the United Mine workers of America has worked out a tentative plan for nationalization. It is not government ownership in the sense usually understood, although a form of it. The government would take over the mines and they would be operated by a joint commission, representing the financial, technical, and administrative heads of the industry; the miners and the local consumers.

Reflected in Canada

The unsatisfactory conditions in respect of coal here are reflected in Canada. Undoubtedly throughout the winter Canada will find the supply of hard coal from this country much below the normal supply. Claim for an embargo in some quarters, however, is not likely to result in anything.

The sawmill machinery of the Cranbrook sawmills which is to be set up on the Barney Keegan limits at Otway will arrive here this week. At the present time some fifteen men are at work making roads and doing other preliminary construction work.

The new city council was sworn in yesterday before the first meeting of the year.

The local Oddfellows' and Rebekahs' Lodges installed officers this week, a banquet following the ceremonies. E. R. McNamee is the new noble grand of the Oddfellows and Mrs. Gardner holds a similar post in the Rebekahs.

P. G. Coates, principal of the local High School, gave an address to the Great War Veterans' Association this week on chemistry.

J. W. Baird, who has been manager of the Royal Bank at Vanderhoof for the past three years, was in the city this week on his way to the coast. The Vanderhoof branch of the bank was closed at the end of the year.

QUEEN CHARLOTTE ISLANDS

(Special Correspondence)

Three logging camps, under the direction of Messrs. Engley and Jones Brothers, are in operation on Massett Inlet.

A large number of loggers are expected on Massett Inlet to open up camps, under the supervision of the Massett Timber Company, Ltd., of Buckley Bay.

Parents and friends of the scholars attending Massett school, provided a Christmas tree and other entertainment during the holiday season. A large number of residents attended the interview held with "Santa Claus."

A party of Evangelists from Hovekan, Alaska, are holding Revival Services on Massett Indian reserve. The visiting Haidas are above the ordinary natives, in intelligence, and are of the same nation occupying the Queen Charlotte Islands. These Haidas, with the Tlingit tribe, look up residence in Alaskan territory many years ago.

The opening up of the New Year showed increased activity at Buckley Bay, the townsite owned by the Massett Timber Co. The large sawmill is in operation turning out large timbers for shipment to Los Angeles, with one hundred and fifty men employed. A four-masted schooner passed out of Massett Inlet a few days ago, loaded with lumber for the company, en route to Seattle, for shipment to Eastern cities. A second four-masted schooner is now loading at the Buckley mills.

Naden Harbor Crab Cannery and Clam canning plant closed down for the winter months. Mr. and Mrs. Simpson after installing and conducting the plant for some years, have gone south on a well-earned vacation. The successful conduct of this enterprise, afforded employment for a large number of white and native fishermen and operators in the cannery. It is expected the plant will again be in operation on the return of the manager and Mrs. Simpson.

MASSETT

(Special Correspondence)

The steamer Prince John brought a full passenger list to Buckley Bay on Wednesday. The large majority of passengers will be employed in the logging camps and sawmill of the Massett Timber Company.

The election of Councillors of Massett Band took place last week. Alfred Adams was elected Chief Councillor, with the following members of the council for the ensuing year: Peter Hill, Jasper Amos, George Jones, Reuben Harris and Mark Ingram.

Twelve members of the Christian Endeavor Society, of Hydraburg, Alaska, arrived at Massett last week, where they are holding revival meetings. The president and members of the Society are all natives of the Haida settlement in Alaska and members of the Presbyterian Church.

Agnes Calder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tulio, died at Skidegate last week. The young woman was a much respected member of the Skidegate band of Indians. A large number of the residents of Graham Island attended the funeral, which was held at the Methodist Church on the reserve. Rev. William Allen officiating.
