BECOMING HUMAN

The government of Russia is gradually becoming humanized. It is adopting itself to conditions as it finds them in place of trying to make over the whole world. The action of the Soviet in arranging a treaty with France for mutual protection is a case in point. It is along the line of capitalistic diplomacy. Gradually, step by step, the republic is evolving or some regard it as devolving. At any rate it is changing rapidly to bring it more in line with its neighbors.

WAS HOWLED DOWN

Recently H. G. Wells addressed a communist group at Oxford University and, when he urged that instead of trying to force the issue they delay the inevitable as long as possible and study how to take care of the affairs of the country after the cataclysm, they howled him down.

Mr. Wells has been one of the most pronounced and prominent socialists in Britain. He has spent a lifetime as a propagandist for a change of system of government and incidentally in doing so, because of the intrinsic merit of his literary work, he has acquired some wealth. Possibly it was this that annoyed his hearers at Oxford. We are told that the controversy became so keen that furniture was thrown and the gathering broke up. There is something intensely capitalistic about this way of settling an argument. It is quite human.

A WORTHY CAUSE

It is doubtful if ever in the history of the country the Canadian people have been appealed to on the present scale to give of what they have for the needy. The long period of difficult times has reduced many people of all classes, from the professional to the laboring, to a state of want, and numerous organizations have sprung up all over the country to grapple with a situation that is unprecedented in its seriousness and acuteness. It will be impossible for all but a few to subscribe to all of the worthy objects that are calling for help but we believe that every citizen who has a little to spare will accept his responsibility and give what he can for the benefit of the less fortunate.

And at a time like this it is well for the average citizen to bear in mind this very important fact; tuberculosis causes poverty and poverty causes tuberculosis. The man who is stricken with the disease generally finds himself before very long dependent on other people; and the man whom misfortune has hit hard for any length of time may easily fall a prey to the tubercle bacillus.

The annual appeal to the public to buy Christmas seals has now been launched. The need for support of the serious work of fighting tuberculosis is greater than ever for assuredly that disease will be given an impetus by the difficult times the world is now going through and will still be a source of danger long years after the business depression has become an unpleasant memory.

Among the many worthy causes the public will be asked to support there is none more worthy than the tuberculosis Christmas seal sale.

Rights and Privileges of Labor
In Corporative State Regulated;
Private Property and Initiative

(By Victor Basso-Bert—Article 3)

The relation between labor and capital in the corporative state is regulated in a vast and elaborate enactment covering every phase of the process of production. The Magna Charta of Labor with its 30 declarations of policy regulates that delicate controversial matter. Here are some outstanding features:

"Declaration 6: Private initiative in the field of production is considered most efficacious and useful instrument in the interests of the nation. It is, therefore, connected with the concept of responsibility of the employers in the organization of enterprise face to face with the state, private organization being a function of national character.

"Declaration 7: It is, therefore, obligatory to promote in every way the increment and perfection of production and the reduction of costs. This is imposed on all the association of employers.

"Declaration 8: That in the case of proved insufficiency of initiative the state can, particularly when its political interests are at stake, substitute itself by way of intervention that assumes the form of encouragement or direct administration.

The labor organizations are framed along well known principles and are entirely free. (Declaration 2). Syndicate federations (Labor Unions), confederations and finally corporations form the base of the corporative state.

The abolition of the strike and lockout necessitates the institution of a magistracy of labor to regulate labor disputes.

In case of disputes and conflicts, labor and capital bring their case to court where the presiding judge has power to nominate an advisory board of specialists on the matter in dispute. The award of this court is final and enters as a base of agreement. Such agreements are made by trades, sometimes covering the whole nation.

Labor contracts, either entered into freely or by arbitration, are public and must be registered in court.

The subordination of all classes of producers to established society and state completes itself in the juridical equality of the parties—employer and employees. This is a categorical and invariable principle of the Fascistic state.

The gist of the corporative economy is the co-operation and collaboration of the classes, the subordination of selfish interests, of whatever nature they may be, to the supreme interests of the nation as a whole.

Miss Jessie Dellow Became Bride of Orval Kenney at Recent Ceremony in Vancouver

TERRACE, Nov. 30.—The marriage took place recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Dellow in Vancouver of Miss Jessie Dellow, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dellow, and Orval H. Kenney, only son of Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Sundal of Terrace.

A profusion of roses and chrysanthemums formed a lovely setting for the bride who was given in marriage by her father and who wore a gown of white satin with full ankle length skirt and sleeveless bodice, featuring a jacquette of white lace.

Her veil, which fell from a Juliet cap, joined a long train and she carried a beautiful bouquet of rosebuds in pastel shades and shaggy chrysanthemums.

Miss T. Cathart and Miss Violet Crowe were bridesmaids, both wearing frocks of peach taffeta and peach georgette which were fashioned alike and carrying bouquets of chrysanthemums.

Two dainty little flower girls, Mary and Rhoda Crowe-Swords, wore dresses of pink satin and carried baskets of pale pink and white autumn flowers.

George Dellow attended the groom.

During the signing of the register, Mr. Hill-Reid sang "The Yeoman's Wedding Song," accompanied by Miss Betty Warne, violinist, and H. W. Brooks, pianist.

At the reception which followed the ceremony, Mrs. Dellow wore a gown of navy blue georgette with a corsage bouquet of rosebuds. Mrs. Crowe-Swords, who wore a gown of black georgette with similar corsage bouquet, assisted the bridal party in receiving. Mrs. T. Coburn, Mrs. J. Fletcher and Mrs. Roberts presided at an attractively appointed tea table and, during the evening, a musical program was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenney have now arrived in Terrace to take up residence. For travelling the bride chose a dress of black and white tweed with black coat and hat.

GYRO CLUB HAS PARTY

Moving Pictures, Musical Program and Dancing Enjoyed at Gathering Last Night

An enjoyable dinner dance was held in the Boston Cafe last evening by the Prince Rupert Gyro Club, some twenty-eight Gyros and guests, including ladies, being present at the affair.

Following dinner, several reels of scenic moving pictures, loaned by the Canadian National Railways, were shown under the direction of President William Cruickshank. These proved highly interesting and included views in all parts of Canada from coast to coast and also of the West Indies.

There were vocal solos by Mrs. H. N. Brocklesby, accompanied by Mr. Brocklesby, and Mrs. William Cruickshank, accompanied by Mrs. W. M. Blackstock.

The evening's proceedings were brought to a close with a couple of hours of dancing, music for which was furnished by Charlie Balagno and his orchestra.
