CARIBOU TREK SOUTHWARD AS WINTER COMES

Dawson Season is Over and Last Steamer Has Left for Whitehorse

SILVER OUTPUT LARGE

DAWSON, Oct. 13.—The Dawson season is closed and the last steamer for outside has departed. The steamer Whitehorse left for Whitehorse yesterday afternoon carrying 50 passengers including a number of well known mining men who will spend the winter in the south.

Livingstone Wernecke, general superintendent of the Treadwell, Yukon's big silver mine at Keno Hill, is among them.

Tens of thousands of caribou are trekking southward for winter. Bands of them have passed through the outskirts of Dawson City and hunters have got a plentiful supply. For a hundred miles down, bands of caribou can be seen swimming the Yukon River and sometimes surrounding canoes and steamboats as they pass.

The winter output of ore at Keno Hill is expected to exceed 12,000 tons.

ALASKAN ATTACKED BY BALD EAGLE

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Oct. 13.—To be viciously attacked by a big bald headed eagle was the exciting experience of Tom Bevers, fireman of this city, recently. Bevers was hunting ducks on a mud flat and had just discharged both barrels of his gun when the eagle wheeled from the air at him. He hit the bird with the barrel of the gun but did not hurt it and it came back again with a lightning like swoop and with its talons widespread. Bevers was knocked down and had his clothes badly torn but he rose again and stunned the eagle with the stock of the gun. The bird fell to the ground and Bevers clubbed it to death.
