Jack Donelly to Fore

During the week Jack Donelly, engineer in chief for the Booth 548,000 Fisheries, nearly figured in a frowning case. It happened this way. Jack was lowering an ice barrel with the regulation winch when a man got in the way of the drop with the result that the cope along or wear one of the old regulation trench helmets because accidents will happen.

Ringleader Roughs It

The Ringleader arrived in port on Thursday morning with 5,000 pound catch and, according to Second Mate Haines, the boat ran into a dirty sea while fishing in Hecate Straits. While the boat was there, the weather righted.
