EDITORIAL

SOLEMN WARNING TO MEN WHO GO OUT HUNTING.

On the opening of the hunting season the Daily News issues a solemn warning to those who go out with guns to use every care in order that no tragic accidents may take place this year. Seldom does a season pass without someone being the sufferer. People who are hunting lose their presence of mind or are otherwise misled into mistaking a man for a deer or else shooting in a direction where there is a possibility of injuring someone.

Particular care should be taken with guns on boats to see that they are not left loaded and that when being handled the muzzle of the gun is turned away from other members of the party. To point a gun at a person is worse than criminal and should not be tolerated even though the gun be empty.

Hunting is one of the most enjoyable sports in this district but the fear of accident from careless shooting has made it a somewhat hazardous recreation. This year it is hoped that there will be a freedom from accidents. There is no need for them if ordinary care is taken by those who carry dangerous weapons.

Will Bring Desirable People Here and Take Care of Them as Well

TORONTO, Sept. 7.—"It is the intention of the Canadian National Railways to use every possible instrument in the Dominion of Canada and the British Isles not only to bring desirable people into the country but to take care of them after they arrive." Such was the earnest declaration of W. B. Robb, vice-president in charge of colonization, development and other departments of the Canadian National Railways, in a speech on transportation at the luncheon of the Canadian National Exhibition directors here today.

"The Canadian National Railways, since the advent of the present management, have been planning active and effective organization to deal with the important need of Canada for greater population. The policy of the Canadian National Railways must of necessity be regulated by that of the Dominion government and Canada's ability to absorb and assimilate new comers," he said.

Miss Marjorie Leeming, of Victoria, is British Columbia's leading tennis player. She has won three championships in the United States and Canada this year.

Miss Adeline Hendricksen is Officially Declared Winner of Exhibition Queen Contest

Miss Adeline Hendricksen, candidate of the Fishermen and Moose, will be queen of the Exhibition Carnival next week. It was officially announced this morning by W. F. Roberge, chairman of the contest committee. Besides presiding over the carnival and receiving other honors of the occasion, Miss Hendricksen will receive a trip to New York and return and $150 in gold. Miss Hendricksen received a total of 338,850 votes according to the final count.

Miss Kathleen Brown of Prince George comes second in the contest with a total of 116,400 votes. She will receive a diamond ring and will be a maid of honor at the carnival having her expenses paid from Prince George to the city and return as well as while she is here.

Miss Margie McDonald of Anyox is third with 87,575 votes. She gets a $45 ivory toilet set and will also be maid of honor with expenses paid.

Miss May Reid, the candidate of the Elks and Royal Purple, it is understood, comes fourth winning a $40 ivory toilet set. She will also be a maid of honor. Her total was 64,503 votes.

As final returns for Miss McRae, the Buckley Bay candidate, are not yet in, there is some question as to whether she or Miss Elizabeth Strachan of Smithers will be the fifth in the standing. The fifth candidate wins a $20 cut glass bowl and will also be a maid of honor. Miss Strachan's total is 29,375. There is a possibility that Miss McRae may even come fourth.

Miss Hendricksen also wins a district prize for having over 150,000 votes. This will be the choice of a 26 piece Community silver set, a 97 piece dinner set or an 888 Brunswick phonograph.

The Queen of the Carnival will be crowned at the Exhibition Hall by C. H. Orme, president of the Northern B.C. Agricultural & Industrial Association, on Tuesday afternoon immediately following the street pageant and the formal opening. Thereafter she will preside over the carnival activities at the Fair.

Rooms have been reserved at the Prince Rupert Hotel for the queen and her retinue of maids. Costumes for the queen, maids

Miss Grant Tells of Work of Prince Rupert Library When Addressing the Rotary Club

At yesterday's luncheon of the Rotary Club Miss Muriel Grant, librarian, gave a very clear exposition of the present public library situation and made an appeal for support not only next week during the big campaign for money with which to purchase books, but also throughout the life of the institution. T. Ross Mackay also spoke most interestingly on the need of a library in order that local people might keep pace with the trend of modern thought.

Dr. W. T. Kergin, in introducing the speaker, mentioned the value of such an institution to the city and at the close he thanked the speakers most heartily for their excellent addresses and urged support for the campaign about to be put on.

Miss Grant said she considered it a distinct honor to be allowed to address the Rotary Club but she would not have done so had it not been for the dire need of books and her keen interest in the success of the institution. The club had shown its interest in the library on former occasions, especially last week in giving a donation and she hoped the interest would continue through next week.

Outlining what had been done, Miss Grant said it was a year ago that she came to Prince Rupert to take charge of the work of organizing the first library in the province to be organized under the Public Library Act. She had at that time felt weighed down with the sense of the responsibility thrust upon her.

When the bylaw was passed it authorized the city council to set aside $2,500 for the use of the library. This amount had been used in remodeling the old building, in buying books and paying other expenses in connection with the organization. She felt that they were making it a success. The work had grown beyond the expectations of the most sanguine until today there were nearly 1300 borrowers and these members included all classes of the community. It also included lighthouse keepers and people from the canneries who paid a fee of $2.00 a year for the use of the books. Visitors to the city also made temporary use of the library. This summer it was used by tourists who when tired of sightseeing would sit and read when waiting for a boat or train. Their impressions of the library, she reminded her hearers, was part of their impressions of the city.

The library was now loaning an average of three thousand books a month, therefore it was easy to see how inadequate was the collection. Members had already read about all the books dealing with the particular line in which they were interested. This was particularly marked in the children's section, where she was continually being asked when they would get new books. The fiction was old.

Keep Costs Down
Miss Grant said they understood that just now it was their duty to adjust themselves to the conditions which obtained here. The library board had considered these conditions and had tried to cut the expenses as low as possible. They had considered it well and decided that $1,000 was the least amount with which they could carry on. The feeling of the board could be understood then when they were told that they were to get nothing at all (continued on page five)
