BRITISH MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT TELLS OF GERMAN CONDITIONS

Says Whole Edifice Rocking and Likely to Crash; People are are Afraid

Josiah Wedgwood, M.P., in the course of a letter to the "Manchester Guardian," writes:

No one can pass through Germany today without seeing that the whole edifice is rocking. Presently it will crash, the most awful example of how civilizations end. The coming of the end is being watched with terror by 60,000,000 of passive, helpless people, whose whole existence depends on civilization. The nearer the edge they get the less they like the look of the abyss, the more they cling to what is left of the State. It has been said that the French action in the Ruhr and the helplessness of the German government are driving the voters into the extreme parties—Communist or Right. It may be so; but neither Communist nor Right wants to take any action, wants to replace Stresemann, wants to have any responsibility. They, too, are horribly afraid.

No Parties

It should be understood that there are in truth no parties in Germany today. Stresemann's government is united enough—from Independent Socialist to the Industrialihsts of the Volkspartei they are all for saving the country, if they only knew how. On either flank are, no doubt, men driven mad by want or injustice, who are screaming out imprecations against Jews or capitalists. But the danger is too deadly to allow of backchat amongst themselves. Ludendorf looking for a meal knows that Breidtscheid searching for a sausage is more akin to him than all those accursed foreigners at the Adlon and the Bristol.

Yet, while there are no political parties, there are growing ever more distinct and diverse in interest two ecopomic classes, bound together only by loyalty to their common German nationality. The peasants who own their land west of the Elbe and the Junkers who still own their vast estates east of that river—they are economically all right. Indeed, they never were better. They have new furniture, new clothes, new machines, and sacks of paper money. The peasant's daughter no longer goes out to service; his mortgage has been paid off with a postage stamp. On the other hand, packed in the towns, are the myriad children of a dying civilization, no longer wanted. The nearer the bread line, the more important is the provider of bread. If the provider of bread has all he wants, what have the disinherited to offer him in exchange for that bread? Bad paper money!

Three Things Necessary

I suppose it might be possible to save civilization still. For that, the German Budget must be made to balance. For that, three things at least are necessary. The colossal expense of paying wages in the Ruhr to 1,500,000 workers for doing nothing must be stopped. The payment of reparations must be postponed and the amount fixed. A dictatorship must be established over German finances, for there is no German statesman who would dare to impose the enormous taxes or to reduce the enormous establishments which will be necessary.

Now, let it be understood that the German government is prepared, even anxious, to end the "passive resistance" on the Ruhr. It is prepared to promise to pay any reparations, and to leave the amount possible and dates of payment to any tribunal. It is prepared to accept financial control, which means the abdication of self-government. They would hope for a loan, as in the case of Austria, but the Finance Controller would settle that. They think it impossible to work industries and railways with the Ruhr cut out from Germany; but again, the Finance Controller will have to see to that. All they ask is to be allowed to work—as helots. One other thing, perhaps, they ask: "Save us from occupation by French troops—at least, from more occupation by French troops."

your own party which will make guarantees as you yourselves demand," stated T. Ross McKay.

Oriental Question

Paddy Sullivan referred to provincial government expenses in the Old Country and the Oriental question. Mr. Nixon agreed that too much money was being spent by the government seeking immigration that was not required. There were too many trips to London at the government expense. He felt that Oriental question should be stopped. The present government had taken no action.

Mr. Casey then submitted his motion that a meeting of Labor be called to go into the question of affiliation. This was carried and the meeting adjourned. Mr. Nixon declaring that a step had been taken in the right direction. T. Ross Mackay was delegated to call the meeting.

Among the passengers sailing last night by the steamer Prince George for the south were: Geo. P. Hale, Dr. George Hanson, Mr. Harris, U. Fugiwawa, Miss H. Thorsen, J. W. Graler, Mr. Mardale, Mrs. J. H. Meagher, Mr. and Mrs. George McAfee, J. Slade Stevens, Charles Reid, W. A. Allen, G. Seiffert and A. Kyle for Vancouver; Mrs. Morte Craig for Victoria; Mr. Plattenberger and J. C. Bigham for Swanson Bay.

Sport Chat

Overshadowing even the excellent team play, the sterling work of the pitching staff and the uncanny field defence of the New York Yankees, American League pennant winners this season, were the performances of Babe Ruth, the year's star of stars in the major leagues. Ruth came back to the game this year with but one idea—to give his best. While he has not been the home hitter he was in 1921 with the all-time record total of 59, his all-round play has surpassed anything he has ever shown before. His batting record—close around the 400 mark this season—is filled with singles, doubles and triples—blows that came when men were on bases and runs were needed. He has been such a terror at bat that the number of intentional bases on balls given him by opposing pitchers has set a new record. Around Ruth—the new Ruth—the Yankee attack has been clustered throughout the season. Taking their cue from him, the other members of the team settled into perfect combination with the result that the club won the pennant with one of the greatest winning margins on record.

The record for long distance swimming is claimed by a Roman swimmer, Arnando Sanfibale, one of the water fans of the Tiber River. Sannibale swam a distance of 100 kilometers recently and contends that such a feat constitutes a record. The distance is roughly 60 miles and was swum on the Tiber from Rome to the sea. The time was 15 hours. His accomplishment seems phenomenal but it should be remembered that the Tiber is a swift running river, the current moving at the rate of two or three miles an hour.

Spaniards interested in the athletic standing of their country are turning their eyes towards Paris and the Olympiad of 1924 and considering what should be done to secure the best possible representation. A member of the Spanish Olympic games committee said recently that he thought Spain's chances were good for nine of the sixteen principal branches of sport—for the others he had little hope. Sports in which Spain believes she has chances of success are lawn tennis, horse riding, polo, football, golf, hockey, yachting, fencing and rowing. Those in which she admits she is poor are boxing, wrestling, swimming, cycling, running and other field sports, winter sports and Rugby football. King Alfonso is very enthusiastic about the Olympiad and says he will be one of the first to subscribe to a fund for the purpose of obtaining representation.
