Should Not Live Too Much In Future.

We all live too much in the future. We ignore the present as being only a preparatory state for what is to come. We are not satisfied with steady growth but want to spring up like a mushroom in a night. A Chicago newspaper man who was here yesterday drew attention to that phase of our western life and rather deprecated it. We expect too much to happen and base all our calculations, not on what is here now, but on what we expect to be here soon.

We all want to make progress and we must all look forward to future developments but at the same time it is useless to risk the present in a vain looking forward to the things that might be. We are growing rapidly as a section of the country, and the growth of Prince Rupert is dependent almost wholly on the development of the district. If we get ahead of general development we are not on a sound basis.

German Capitalists

Fattened On Calamity.

German capitalists to a large extent fattened on the calamity which befell the nation. When they found the currency being debased they sent their earnings outside and invested them in foreign securities and kept their loose cash in foreign banks. In every case they protected themselves and refused to submit the scene on Monday afternoon at to adequate taxation. The result has been that taxes have been 4 o'clock of a pretty wedding much higher in the victor countries than in the country which when Mrs. Minnie Louise Embelwas supposed to have been beaten in the war.
