TELEPHONE SPECIALS

Shop by Phone to Save Time and Money.

Convinced that by telephone we can sell for less than otherwise, we have decided to put our theory into practice by means of "The Telephone Special."

The special prices quoted in this ad. apply only on orders phoned in, as we have proven beyond doubt that the overhead cost of selling which is the largest item in the expense column of the retail grocery business today is reduced by more than one-half when orders are taken on the phone as compared to those taken on the floor of the store. In other words our records for the past six months prove that the average clerk on the phone can accomplish more than three clerks of average ability in the store, consequently we feel that it is only fair that we pass this saving along to those who shop by telephone.

Shop by Phone to Save Time and Money.

This method along the lines we have explained above, completely explodes many of the time worn and accepted trade principles of the past, and we venture to predict that just as modern inventions have supplanted the methods of olden days, effecting big reductions in cost of manufacture, so also will our policy of lower prices to those who shop by phone supplant the time-wasting method of personal shopping.

Every home should have a phone. No longer is the telephone considered a luxury. It is an absolute necessity, and no household can afford to not have a phone. Make the phone pay its way. It will save shoe leather, and possibly a big medical bill from exposure on a shopping trip when the weather is bad. It brings every merchant in this town right to your door, no matter how far away you live.

MAMMOTH IN ALASKA ONCE

Immense Creatures in Large Numbers Roamed Northern Country

A scant 25,000 to 40,000 years ago, as geologists mark off the eons of time, the long haired mammoth dominated the larger animals living in Alaska, say the Fairbanks News Miner. His supremacy depended not alone on number for, standing as he did, about nine and one half-feet in height, weighing at least two tons, and equipped with long spiral tusks with points directed inword, so fashioned as to catch an adversary for the deadly backward toss, he roamed the lowlands free from fear of any living enemy. For protection against a rigorous climate he had an undercoat of wool and an overcoat of yellowish brown woolly hair covering the entire body. Interspersed with these was a large number of longer and thicker hairs which formed mane-like patches on the cheeks, chin and flanks of the animal.

Rifle Useless

It is easy to read the description of animals of these proportions without actually getting a true mental picture of this great giant among all the quadrupeds. If these animals had persisted in Alaska to the present day and we should suddenly encounter one on the trail, the modern big game rifle would prove of little avail. The soft nosed bullet would be flattened and retarded in penetrating the thick tough hide and heavy flesh pads and only by chance would the vitals be reached.

But the mammoth did not survive and today we must visualize his great bulk from skeletal remains uncovered chiefly in the placers. Tom Smith of Nenana recently secured from near Manley Hot Springs an exceptionally well preserved thigh bone of one of these animals and this bone, which is now at the college, serves better than anything else to designate the gigantic bone structure of the mammoth. This thigh bone alone has a dry weight of about 45 pounds, is three feet in length and at the ball and socket hip joint is 34 inches in circumference. Its weight is just 15 times that of the thigh bone of a large horse.

Bones of Horses

This animal, in a day's travel, must have met many bison and wild horses, for those who have made a study of the problem are of the opinion that during the glacial period the mammoth exceeded in numbers any other large animal in the northern part of our continent. The bison ranked second and the wild horses and the caribou existed in lesser but important numbers. The placers of Alaska have not yielded any large quantity of horse bones and the impression has generally prevailed that the horse was rare during the time of the mammoth. On the contrary, however, he probably existed in considerable numbers but his grazing area kept him out of the stream bottoms much of the time and hence his bones would not often appear in the placers.

At Hot Springs, however, two well preserved horse skulls and several leg bones were found in close association with the thigh bone of the mammoth. From these remains the expert paleontologist would be able to accurately classify this horse and designate its general relationship to our present day horse.

Reassembled Skeletons

The College is securing an unusual collection of Pleistocene mammals and in time this collection will permit several of the species to be reassembled in skeleton form for museum and laboratory purposes.

Listen!

Have you heard about Peps? Peps is a scientific preparation put up in pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds, chest and throat troubles.

Peps contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapor, and are breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the lungs.

In a word, while no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and at once commence healing.

FREE TRIAL Cut out this article, write across it the name and date of this paper, and mail it (with 1c. stamp to pay return postage) to Peps Co., Toronto. A free trial packet will then be sent you. All druggists and stores sell Peps, 50c. box.
