WOLVES DON'T ATTACK HUMANS IN THE CANADIAN WILDS

Wolves Mitted Up With Man on Day of Capture and
Made to Work

WINNIPEG, Man., March 15.—The "big" stories of ferocious man-eating wolves that have come out of the north country during the past winter make good fiction but are far from the truth and are harmful in creating a false impression of the northland to newly arrived settlers. The wolf stories are having a terrifying effect upon the wives and children of newly arrived settlers, according to Rev. F. G. Stevens, a veteran missionary who has lived among the Indians for 25 years, and stationed for the past 15 years at the Fisher River, Manitoba, Indian reserve.

Make Good Reading
The thrilling tales of people pursued by wolves make good reading, said Mr. Stevens, a recent visitor to this city, but they have no place in fact for a person in the north country, or for a red, ever heard of a wolf attacking or killing a man. They are the most cowardly of beasts, more fearful of man than the lowest bred mongrel. The wolf is a very inquisitive animal, Mr. Stevens says, and often will follow a human being for several miles out of sheer curiosity, but turn on him, and he flees with his tail curled between his legs. Although these wolves are as large as a St. Bernard dog, they are frequently taken out of traps by the Indians, hitched in with a dog team and made to work the first day of their capture. Once in the power of a man, they are utterly bereft of courage. Singled-handed and armed only with a stick Indians have often chased and clubbed them to death.

During his three decades in the north he has travelled thousands of miles, musing it along the dog teams, and Mr. Stevens has never given a thought to the possibility of being attacked by a wolf. He has observed wolves killing him, like many others who have come back and told amazing tales, but he knew they were lies after his dogs. A timber wolf likes nothing better than meat, and pains must be taken to protect the teams at night. He howls hideously on the outskirts of the camp fire, but the sound of his interest invariably is found to be a joint of meat or a team of dogs.

Does Not Attack
It is the expressed opinion of naturalists that the American wolf does not attack human beings, and Mr. Stevens agrees he is fully persuaded by the Canadian timber wolf, his American cousin, has established no authentic record of having taken a human life.

FRIENDS SAY SUTTON MET WITH ACCIDENT

No Idea That he Took His Own
Life by Jumping Into the Sea

Friends of Captain W. Sutton, who is thought to have been drowned from the Gold Storage dock, declare that there is nothing to warrant the assumption that he had committed suicide. He had been drinking and at such times he had a habit of taking his clothes off.

Only that day he had been talking of his plans for the coming summer and did not seem like a man who would take his own life. The assumption is that he fell into the harbor from the dock.

Drugging operations in an endeavor to recover the body of the late Capt. Sutton have so far proved unsuccessful. Little hope is now held out of ever recovering the remains on account of the tidal current at the point where the tragedy occurred.

SHERLOCK HOLMES AT WESTHOLME TONIGHT

Everyone has read some of Conan Doyle's Sherlock Holmes detective stories and will know well what it means when it is announced that there will be a Sherlock Holmes play at the theatre tonight.

The screen version of the play is a true reproduction and loses none of its dramatic intensity by the lack of the spoken words. John Barrymore, who was seen here in Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, takes the leading part.

T. B. Hooper was a passenger for Stewart on the Prince Rupert last night.

LOCAL NEWS NOTES

Among those sailing last night on the Prince Rupert for Stewart were Pearl Peterson, Bertha Bard, D. A. Hoffman, J. W. Christian and W. A. Allan.

Col. J. H. McMullin sails tomorrow morning on the Prince Rupert for Victoria where he will take over his new duties as superintendent of police. Mrs. McMullin and family will not be leaving for at least a month.

Mayor Newton, Fred Gilhuly, Roy Barnes, Miss S. A. Mills, P. Laporte, Joe Brown, Harvey Fraser, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Self, Ben Crossell and Harry Astoria are among those who are accompanying the local basketball excursion to Anyox. The big party sailed for the north on the Prince Rupert last night and will return home on that steamer tomorrow morning.

COL. McMULLIN GIVEN SENDOFF

Rousing Smoker in Battalion
Headquarters Last Night in Honor of Departing Officer
Commanding

At a smoker given in the new headquarters in the former Land Registry office on Second Avenue, the North B.C. Regiment gave a rousing send-off last night to Col. J. H. McMullin, officer commanding, who is leaving this week for Victoria to take up his new position as superintendent of provincial police. Major J. W. Nicholls and Major John McGregor, V.C., occupied the chair in the course of the evening and those present included members of the battalion and their friends including His Worship Mayor Newton.

The affair was also in the nature of opening the new headquarters and occasion was also taken for the presentation of shooting trophies for last year to the respective winners. Col. McMullin made the presentations to the following marksmen: A. M. Davies, gold medal and spoon; William Brown, Regimental Cup, two spoons and silver medal; Charles Lemon, Royal Arms Cup and spoon; Malcolm Lamb, spoon.

Those contributing to the program were Dave Gay, R. H. James and Wright Davies, songs; W. H. Waldorf, exhibition of mesmerism, and Sergeant S. L. Warrior with a brief talk eulogizing the guest of honor.

Colonel Speaks

Col. McMullin, in replying to the honors done him, said he hoped the activities of the regiment would be carried on even more energetically and successfully in the future than in the past. He spoke of shooting competitions and expressed the hope that the range would receive further improvements and that more young men of the city would join up so as to widen the scope and interest of the battalion and keep things going in the right way.

Smokes and refreshments were served in abundance. The committee in charge comprised C. V. Evert, G. P. Tinker, R. W. Cameron and J. W. Nicholls.

MINERALS STOLEN

PETROGRAD, Mar. 14.—Four pounds of pure iridium and four pounds of osmium, two of the most valuable and rarest of precious minerals, were recently stolen from the Petrograd Metallurgical Institute. The robbers also succeeded in getting away with six pounds of platinum. All of the metals had been in the institute, as laboratory specimens, for many years.
