Curious Costumes at Parade Dance Last Night

A perfect end of a party for the children of the city gathered last night at the Home, Third Avenue, to see or watch a child-parade dance given under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild. It was indeed a scene of gaiety. The floor was crowded with little folks of all kinds of costumes, and the dances themselves afforded enjoyment for the spectators. Some of the costumes were most original and some were a difficult feat for the young performers who so bravely undertook. The winners were: Miss Nelda Hill, Miss David West, Miss Ernest Ratch, Miss Isador Lipsin, Miss Ada Kilgus, Miss Bert Morgan. Arrangements were executed by a committee of ladies composed of Miss Dobb, Mrs. W. Reid, Mrs. Bailey, Mrs. H. D. Johnson. The judging commenced at 8:30 and was led by Miss Dobb and Miss Dobb. The judge was H. F. Glassy. The orchestra provided by the judges were Hodgson, of Vancouver, and the U.S. Customs, J. Raymond.

All Children Entertained by Elks on Annual Flag Day at Acropolis Grounds Yesterday

Glorious sunshine blazed down on the Acropolis Hill grounds yesterday afternoon as the Elks staged their annual Flag Day for the children of Prince Rupert. There was nothing forgotten by the Brother Bills in their planning for the day and every element that is conducive to youthful glee and merriment was provided. The clowns cavorted around the field in their costumes of variegated hue, the Elks' band in no less array dispensed jazzy strains of music, ice cream and peanuts were distributed in generous quantities at the free booth, races were run and suitable prizes awarded and games of interest to the youngsters were played. It was a great day and will be a pleasing memory to each and every one of the thousand or so kiddies who attended until the year rolls around again for another Flag Day—an annual event which has now firmly established its popularity and place in the youthful life of the city.

The parade of children from the Elks' Home to the Acropolis Grounds was two full city blocks in length. It was headed by the band and the clowns and was marshalled by Fire Chief Dan McDonald and W. H. Derry.

The first ceremony on arrival at the grounds was the raising and saluting of the Union Jack after which the orchestra struck up "O Canada," the lusty voices of the hundreds of youngsters joining in enthusiastically.

Frank Dibb, who presided, then called upon Acting Mayor Collart. The speaker referred to the work of the Elks for the children and congratulated the members of the lodge on the success that had attended their efforts.

Address on Flag
Archdeacon G. A. Rix, delivering the address on the flag, explained how the Union Jack had been made up and what it stood for geographically and sentimentally. The archdeacon also extolled the Elks' Lodge for its activities of such generous and patriotic nature among the children. The singing of "God Save the King" closed the formalities of the occasion and the free booths were thrown open and the sports began.

There were several sets of races for the children. The starters were Fire Chief McDonald and Ald. George Munro and the judges Ben Self, Jack Judge and Frank Dibb. The prizes were distributed on the grounds by Archdeacon Rix and Acting Mayor Collart.

The intermediate baseball and football games then took place. W. H. Derry was in general charge of the proceedings of the day and L. M. Fuller was secretary.

Blind Man's Buff

EVEN in this age of enlightenment some folks spend their money blindly. They buy with their eyes shut. They grope in the dark as truly as if their eyes were bandaged.

And all the time a powerful light is being thrown on the very things they need and want!

Advertising is a beacon to guide you in buying. It shows you what to buy—where to buy— and when to buy. At the same time, it protects you against fraud and inferiority.

Merchants and manufacturers who advertise deliberately focus thousands of eyes upon their wares. Their values must be honest and their prices right, or they could not advertise successfully.

Don't play blind man's buff with the elusive dollar. Spend a few minutes each day running through the advertisements in this paper. Then buy the products that have proved up in the light of advertising.

ALL NIGHT STORM IN LONDON PICTURESQUE

Writer in London Times Tells of Electrical Effects

Though it may be rather late to refer to London's all-night storm, there is justification in the likelihood of its passing into history, says the London Times. By general agreement it was the greatest in living memory. Hour after hour the thunder and lightning were almost continuous. The frequency, indeed, was extraordinary—swift emanations of electric tints, one illumination following so soon upon another that the eye had not lost the impression of the first before the next and perhaps the next appeared. It was a presentation to the sight of the throbbing pulse of a galvanic battery; and it was the sinews of the sky that were wrenched with pain. There was no thunder at the very first and but "little for some time; only occasional rumblings like sounds of pain through tight lips. One magnificent, almost incredible, spectacle was a falling globe of lightning—the thunderbolt—believed in only by those who scarcely dare declare what they had seen. The late thunder made tall houses shake. After the worst of the storm had gone by, it returned twice. Or were these seeming returns but "secondary disturbances" in the wake of the first? Not a dog barked. The earth was very still and hushed and timid. Children woke and lights appeared—more than the common number of lights—in downstairs rooms to indicate if not conceal the grand terrors of the night. Men thought of France and war. The recollection in gear picked out these several sounds of musketry, machine-guns, field artillery, and bursting shells. Women thought of air raids and, partially reassured, made tea.
