YEAR OF THE PIG IS BAD FOR CHINESE AND THIS IS THE SEASON

SHANGHAI, Nov. 3.—Business conditions in China are not so good and Chinese merchants are undecided whether to blame politics or the jinx of the present year.

The Chinese calendar is divided into cycles of 60 years. According to their reckoning, there have been 77 of these cycles since time began, dating from 2697 B.C. during the reign of Huang Ti. The cycles are divided into twelve sections of five years each and each section is known by some special designation such as the years of the sheep, the years of the cock, the years of the monkey, the stork, the pig, etc.

This happens to be the last or fifth year of the pig. The years of the pig are always bad and the last year of the pig is especially bad. In the final year of the pig the last of the Celestial stems meets the last of the terrestrial branches, to use the terms of the sages.

No Surprises

Nothing could happen that would surprise the average Chinese in this year. Bad as it was the Japanese earthquake did not disturb the Chinese calm. Influenced by this old tradition Chinese merchants are buying only what they need to keep going. One Chinese banker pointed out that exports had virtually ceased and imports of foodstuffs greatly increased. Customs revenues, records show, decreased 4,000,000 taels during the first half of 1923. No improvement is shown in the spinning industry and even the mah jong business has fallen off.

On the whole the people are glum and resigned.

The Tramp with 7,000 pounds of halibut was the only fishing vessel in port today so no sales were held at the exchange. The catch will be held over and sold tomorrow.

SHIPBUILDING IS ON DECREASE TODAY SAYS SHIPPING NEWSPAPER

The shipbuilding returns of Lloyd's Register for the quarter ended September 30 show a decrease of about 67,000 tons, as compared with the figures for June, in the nominal amount of shipping under construction in Great Britain and Ireland, and of about 346,000 tons as compared with the corresponding figures of a year ago.

The present nominal amount under construction is 1,271,195 tons, but the Register points out that this shipping includes 242,000 tons on which work has been suspended for a long time or is in abeyance owing to the dispute now affecting the yards. Deducting this tonnage in order to enable comparison to be made with the figures for normal times, the tonnage actually under construction is reduced to only 1,029,000 tons, which is the lowest amount recorded for a period of nearly fourteen years. The average tonnage under construction during the twelve months immediately preceding the war was 1,890,000 tons, or more by 861,000 tons than the present total.
