Difference Between Government and Opposition.

In Alberta the farmers have had a convention and they have been passing resolutions, just as all other conventions pass resolutions. They have been asking for a number of things which they are not likely to get. Just one instance of what is asked may be enough to illustrate the point. They ask that a provincial bank be established and that the bank print enough notes to cover the amount required by farm borrowers. They seemed to have the idea that if the government printing presses were set to work there would soon be plenty of money for all.

Attorney General Brownlee made a plea for going carefully, especially at a time when they were finding it necessary to go to the money markets for thirteen million dollars to meet maturing bonds. He warned them that if they were not careful the government might have to cease business altogether.

It must be remembered that the Government of Alberta is a farmer government and in close sympathy with the aspirations and needs of the farmers but they are in office and find themselves imbued with the responsibilities of office. They have had to look at all sides of every question, to weigh the pros and cons, and to realize that rash action may be fatal. On the other hand the farmers at the convention, just as all other convention delegates, have not had the opportunity of weighing the consequences of any action they may take if it should be instrumented in legislation.

Danger Of Tampering With Money Standard.

The fallacy of supposing that to print more money would make it possible to get higher prices for crops, to secure loans on easier terms or to get higher wages with the same purchasing power, does not seem to have entered into the minds of the farmers. Many of them find themselves owing money to the banks, and the banks want to be paid. That is natural. The movement to print money seems to be for the purpose of getting back at the banks.

Government banks have been tried in some countries and in a few cases, it is understood, have been a success. Where that is true is where the state banks have been conducted on the same basis as the business of a chartered bank here. If they are careless in making loans and careless in making collections they lose money just as any bank under similar circumstances would lose money. If they do business on a proper businesslike basis they are not any better from the borrowers point of view than the banks we have. The worst danger in provincial or state banking is that politicians or political favorites may get privileges which other people cannot get. State ownership of utilities is not the solution of all our ills. There is as much injustice and hardship under a system of state ownership as under an individualistic system. As we develop we may evolve a system that will prove workable but at present it is unwise to enter into any dangerous experiments.

Look At Europe
For An Example.

We only have to look at Europe for an example of the printing of unlimited money. In the countries where it has been done, the countries have been isolated financially. It has been found almost impossible to import the necessities of life to which the people have been accustomed. Great hardship and poverty has resulted and today those countries are in an almost hopeless condition. Even where, as in the case of Germany, they are recovering their trade and commerce, the people are not getting the benefit. They have to work for low wages, considering the purchasing power of the money. They have comparatively few of the luxuries of life and they are lowering the standards of life throughout the civilized world by their cheap labor. It is always dangerous to interfere with the great economic forces. While we must have changes and doubtless many of them will be beneficial, the great danger is in making radical changes, in trying to reach the goal immediately instead of taking the natural process. Nature has been millions of years bringing us to the present point and she will take at least thousands of years carrying us on to a point where we shall find that we have that equitable temperament where we can all do justly and live in that utopian condition of which we sometimes dream.

Severe Kidney Trouble

Mrs. F. Rinehart, Campbellville, Ont., writes:

"I had trouble with my kidneys and very frequent urination. This was followed by pains which at times were very severe. The doctor said I had inflammation of the bladder and that an operation might be necessary. To this I refused, and began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. From the first few doses I felt the benefit. The pains left, urination was corrected, and I have had no recurrence of these ailments."

Alaskan Indians Once Came to Kill and Enslave Now Bring Message of Peace

CHOIR OF FORTY VOICES

Choir of Forty Natives Hold Evangelistic Services at Port Simpson

PORT SIMPSON, Jan. 24.—A band of natives from Ketchikan and belonging to the Klugeet tribe arrived here a few days ago. They are out on an evangelistic trip, and came as they say "to express their thanks to God and the missionaries who lived here earlier and especially Dr. Crosby." It was from the latter they first heard the gospel in the old guest house belonging to the Hudson's Bay Co.

On the evening of the 20th Rev. Ed. Marsden from Metlakatla, Alaska, with over forty members of his choir landed here. They gave a sacred concert in Grace Church to a well filled house. It is gratifying to see and know that in the few years since the establishment of missions on this northwest coast the native tribes have been so transformed that the old heathen songs have been replaced by some of the best musical selections in the world, such as "The Messiah," "The Heavens Are Telling," "Gloria in Excelsis," "The Hallelujah Chorus," and many others. In the concert some of these were given while a native led the choir and another presided at the organ with an eschorn of knowledge and practise.

Great Change

The fact was mentioned by one of the visitors from Alaska that when they came in former years it was to enslave or kill but now good fellowship prevails everywhere.

On Sunday evening, Jan. 21, in Grace Church where every available seat was filled, Mr. Williams, a Klugeet Indian, preached in the Tsimpsian language, which he has acquired from contact with the people of Mr. Duncan's mission.

His subject was the words spoken to Hezekiah: "Put thy house in order." To all who could follow in the native language the discourse was interesting.

PRINCE GEORGE

The following officers have been elected by the Prince George Fair Association: President, W. R. Ogilvie; Vice-President, J. R. Blackburn; Secretary, Fred D. Taylor; Treasurer, John Savage. The 1923 Fair will be held on September 3 and 4, and an enthusiastic start has already been made in planning for it.

The following are the chairmen of the civic standing committees for the year appointed by Mayor Johnson: Finance, Ald. Patterson; Fire and water, Ald. Taylor; Light, Ald. Ogilvie; Public Works, Ald. McLean; Health, Ald. Saunders; Housing, Ald. Lockyer.

The Prince George school board has decided to levy $100 per year against the school districts for each student attending the high school of the city from the outside. The charge will be levied in the form of taxes on the school districts sending pupils.

C. P. Deykin is back from Vernon where he attended the conference of the B.C. Farmers' political party. Mr. Deykin is confident that the party will make such headway as to be able to control the next legislature.

J. B. Daniell has returned from Toronto where he has been engaged for some months as staff reporter on the Evening Telegram. He will resume his position on the Citizen staff here. O. St. C. Harris has left for Vancouver to accept a place with a business firm.

The Land Settlement Board office in this city is being reopened with R. G. Sutton in charge.

The Prince George Board of Trade is submitting a resolution to the Associated Boards of Trade of B.C. calling for the early completion of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

The Man in the Moon
SAYS—

WHEN times are bad
It makes me sad
About the past to think
What might have been
Had I but seen
Beyond the chasm's brink.

FORGET it, my friends, forget it.
Why revere when everything that is good is ahead of us and the now is not too bad.

BUT people are bound to be remiss sometimes. Here is a Winnipeg rhymer looking back with regret on what might have been.

SHE stood beneath the mistletoe,
'Twas then I saw my chance,
With eagerness I crossed the floor.

Then—asked her for a dance.
A WORD to the sick: think better and you'll get better.

COFFEE in the morning,
Come when you eat;
If you come all the time,
To live will be a treat.
Come on the street car,
Come on the bus;
If you'd know what come does,
You'd better look at us.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Chisholm sailed for the south on the Prince Rupert this morning. Mrs. Chisholm will make an extended visit with her brother in Los Angeles.

READY FOR ACTION

Ray, a very small boy with a very large gun, was standing in a country road.

"What are you hunting, bubs?" asked a passerby.

"I dunno," little Ray replied blankly. "I ain't seen it yet."

WONDERFUL DOG

Mitti Rescues Family from Burning Building then Goes Back for Mice

AKRON, Ohio, Jan. 23.—A three-month-old brown terrier is being proclaimed the hero of Akron. To the pup, which answers to the name of MITTI, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wilkins and their seven children, as well as two white mice, owe their lives.

When fire started in the Wilkins home Mitti aroused Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins by tugging at the bed clothes and barking. They carried their children to a neighbor's, after which George, their twelve year old son missed Mitti. Firemen found Mitti in the house trying to rescue the mice, her playmates.
