COMMITTEE TO SEE IF PRICE CURES ARE THE GENUINE THING

Representative Each from University, Ministerial Association, Medical and Legal Professions to Make Inquiry

EDMONTON, Oct. 18.—A committee to examine into the healing work now being done in Edmonton by Evangelist Charles S. Price has been appointed and will begin its investigations at once. The matter has already been before the ministerial association and the board of governors of the university, and a joint committee representing both bodies and the medical and legal professions in addition has been entrusted with the responsibility of conducting an impartial and unbiased inquiry. Its first meeting, for organization purposes, is being held at the university this afternoon.

Rev. G. A. Clarke, for the ministerial association; Prof. E. D. McFee, for the university; Dr. H. B. Logie, representing the medical profession, and a local barrister to be named by Chief Justice Harvey, will comprise the personnel of the committee. Mr. Price will be invited to meet with these committeemen and to give them necessary information about the nature of the cures that have been attributed to his missions here and elsewhere.

The purpose, as explained by Mr. Clarke and President Tory, is to make a strictly fair and thorough study of the cases referred to, in the hope of ascertaining facts that will, if established, be of acknowledged value to both the scientific and religious life of the time.

THE QUEERED EXCUSE

"I'm sorry your mother can't come, Winnie. What shall we do with the extra ticket?"

"Oh, give it to the man you go out to meet in the intervals, George; then he can come and sit with us!"—The Humorist.

SCHOONER BLOSSOM SAILING SOUTHWARD

Will Visit Polar Regions Seldom If Ever Seen by the Eye of Man

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 17.—While Capt. George Finlay Simmons has been scouring the country for a staff and crew to take the schooner "Blossom" into the South Atlantic and Indian Oceans, the ship itself has been prepared for one of the longest cruises ever undertaken by a vessel her size.

The expedition to the Antarctic islands which starts from New London this week for the Cleveland Museum of Natural History is said to be one of the largest ever undertaken for purely scientific purposes. Every one of the 16 men aboard ship, except the three ship's officers, is trained in some line that will aid in the collecting of animal and bird specimens and in taking notes on the zoology, plant life, sometimes human life, and climatic conditions in the regions that will be visited.

The Blossom will visit the least known portions of the world on her two year cruise. Explorers have gone over the Pacific islands and other tropic regions with fair thoroughness. Even the polar regions have been visited in recent years by men who have taken accurate observations of the lands through which they travelled. The South Atlantic islands, however, have been visited only by seal and sea elephant hunters, who brought back romantic stories, but little accurate information of scientific value.

LIQUOR VOTE ALBERTA SOON

Short Sketch of Legislation Leading up to Present Situation

EDMONTON, Oct. 18. — (By Canadian Press.) — Through a preferential ballot with four alternatives electors of Alberta on November 5 will decide whether there is to be a change in the provincial liquor laws. On the result the government will base its legislation, whether the people call for a system of government shops for the continuation and development of the present system of prohibition.

Alberta has had seven years' experience with varying degrees of prohibition legislation.

The change from the old liquor license system came into effect in Alberta on July 1, 1916. On July 23 of the previous year a referendum had been held on a liquor act submitted under the provisions of the direct legislation law by the Temperance and Moral Reform Association. It carried by a vote of 58,295 to 37,509.

The direct legislation law provided that in case of an affirmative vote the legislature should at the next session enact the proposed measure without substantial alterations and this was done. The sale of liquor within the province as a beverage was prohibited and a doctor's prescription was required for the purchase of liquor for medicinal purposes.

Under the act, as it was passed, the fact that a person had on his premises more liquor than was reasonably required for himself or his family, "not exceeding one quart of spirits and two gallons of malt liquor," was to be deemed prima facie evidence of unlawful sale. In March, 1917, after this clause had been variously interpreted, the legislature altered it to read that "no person within the province shall have or keep in his private dwelling house a quantity of liquor exceeding one quart of spirituous liquor and two gallons of malt liquor."

Right to Import

The right to import from other provinces was put an end to by federal order-in-council under the war measures act on April 1, 1918, but was restored when this order was revoked on January 1, 1920. On October 25 of that year the federal referendum on the question of whether this importation should be again stopped was taken and the vote stood 62,772 for and 44,176 against. On this occasion women voted, whereas they had not obtained the franchise when the vote of 1915 was taken.

During 1922 what was entitled "The Temperance Act" was drafted and a petition circulated asking the legislature to submit it under the direct legislation law. It provided for hotel and wholesale licenses for the sale of beer. When the legislature met early in 1923, a special committee was appointed to scrutinize the petition and reported that it met the requirements of the direction legislation act. Some members alleged that there were irregularities in connection with the petition, but on March 14 the House adopted the committee's report by a vote of 49 to 7.

Various Phases

It was then argued that, seeing that the province was thus required to incur the expense of a referendum, more than the question of whether the "temperance act" should come into effect should be submitted. Various methods of obtaining a more complete expression of public opinion were urged upon the government and on April 16 Premier Greenfield outlined the course which he proposed to follow. He would move a resolution calling for the submission of the "temperance act." If this carried, he would submit a second resolution which would read that it was "desirable that alternate questions based on other forms of liquor legislation should be submitted by plebiscite at the same time as the referendum on the proposed temperance act." This resolution, however, should not, the premier declared, be construed as embodying the policy of the government. It was "entirely concerned in obtaining the opinion of the House on this question." Should the second resolution pass, he would move a third, calling for the appointment of a committee of five

The Court of Last Appeal

YOU are the judge and the jury. Your verdict is final. There can be no appeal—for this is the High Court of Public Opinion

The wares of the world must appear before you—the product of every factory—the merchandise of every store. Those things that fail to measure up to your requirements are quickly condemned to oblivion

The manufacturer who advertises deliberately places his merchandise on trial. He openly courts your critical inspection. He invites comparison. He directs your attention to his goods and then forces those goods to stand on their own merits.

If he were not sure of his wares he would not dare to advertise. For advertising would put him to a test he could not meet, and thus hasten the end of his business career. It would be business suicide.

You can depend on the man who advertises. He knows his product is good.

That's one reason why it pays to read the advertisements you find in this paper. It is through advertising that you are able to keep in touch with the good things that progressive business men are spending their money to introduce and to keep before you.
