Speech From Throne Deals With Generalities.

It is customary of late years to deal with generalities in the speech from the throne. This year's speech is no exception to that custom. It commits the government to four things but unhappily these four are not all possible of realization.

The government, according to its announcement, would safeguard the interests of the consumers against extortion on the part of the producers and vice versa would protect the producer from unfair restrictions. If the government could do that they would produce a stable condition such as can hardly be hoped for in this generation. Stability would be a great thing for the farmers and the merchants. Only the big operators who manipulate the market for the benefit of themselves are interested in continuing the present condition of affairs.

The other matters such as the protection of the farmers against those who would tamper with the grades of wheat at the terminal elevators and the revision of the Bank Act allow all sorts of scope for useful legislation. The last mentioned subject, the matter of redistribution, is simply routine that has to be attended to every ten years by whatever government happens to be in power. It should have been done over a year ago before the election, but this was omitted and now the present government has to undertake the work.

Getting Settlers For The Land.

While securing settlers for the land is very important and this is announced in the speech as one of the new policies of the Dominion government, we are also interested in the encouragement of industries, something which is not a work of the Dominion. We would all like to see the interior lands settled, and it seems reasonable to think that in collaboration with the provincial government a good deal may be done with this end in view. There is certainly plenty of land in central British Columbia and it is fertile and close to transportation. It is good news that an effort is to be made to secure settlers. On the other hand Prince Rupert is vitally interested in building up industries from the natural resources of the north so that the farmers of the interior may find a ready market here and thus provide added inducement for settlement of the lands.

Secure Paper Mill For This City.

There is a big demand for paper throughout the world today and many are looking to this part of the country to provide for at least a part of the need. There is likely to be a sale before long of the local lumber mill and the timber limits that go with it. These last are situated largely at the mouth of the Nass River. When the sale is consummated, as it is pretty sure to be soon, the purchaser will look about him for the best means of developing the limits. Naturally we expect the saw-mill will be operated.

The question of a paper mill will then come up for consideration. The probability is that the purchaser of the estate will buy it with the idea of putting in a paper mill. The question that will arise will be the location for it.

There are a great many advantages in locating at a detached place in the midst of the timber or close to waterpower. It will remain for us to convince them that Prince Rupert provides the best site and that there are no disadvantages from locating in a city as against being miles away. Just what steps we shall take will require a great deal of consideration and it is mentioned now so that when it comes suddenly, as is likely to be the case, we shall all be prepared to discuss it intelligently.

Double Wages For German Workers.

Little by little the German mark has been depreciating in value until it has now reached a point where it is practically valueless outside the country of origin, and even at home its purchasing power is small. Naturally this affects the man who works for wages. Little by little he finds his purchasing power reduced until he can scarcely buy the necessities of life unless his wages are increased. This is apparently the case in the Saar Valley today. The workmen there are demanding double their former wages because the mark will buy less than half what it formerly was able to do. In the meantime the German employers have been getting the benefit of the change.

"I Can Now Do My Work Without Feeling Tired"

Mrs. A. Moffatt, Roxton Falls, Que., writes:

"I suffered from a run-down system and nervous debility. I could not sleep or rest at night, and felt so weak I could not walk any distance. I took several tonics, but they only helped me while I was taking them. Mother advised me to take Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and I felt great benefit from the first box, and continued taking several boxes. Today I feel like a new woman, and am able to do my work without that dreadful tired feeling."

that the Pacific Coast had been operating in the export trade for some time but Prince Rupert, through not having proper facilities, had not been able to participate. That condition was also to end soon, he declared, and then Prince Rupert would be in the export business like the south was at present.

Mayor Newton, in a welcoming address, said that though Prince Rupert was a small place at present no one could say that her citizens were dead ones. He referred to the great timber wealth of the district and predicted that some day the middle west dealers would have to come here to get their stocks. He trusted that at some time in the not too distant future the visitors of today would be coming here on business bent.

President Dutton

President Dutton, of the Western Retail Lumbermen's Association, in replying thanked the Board of Trade and the Timbermen's Association for the entertainment which they had enjoyed so much. It reflected a great spirit that such an entertainment would be put on not for business reasons but just because the Prince Rupert people wanted to help them have a good time. Though this did not seem to be a business meeting, he was glad to hear of the resources and potential possibilities of the north country. A good many of the people in the prairie provinces already knew much about this district and were watching it closely. The thing that struck him about this meeting was the quality of the men. The farther west they went, the better they found the people and Prince Rupert was the farthest West.

The Entertainment

Through the assistance of the City's Athletic Club three boxing bouts were put on in the course of the evening. They were three two-minute round affairs and were all lively encounters. The batters were as follows: Battling Kelly vs. Cyclone Warrior; Spider Frizzell vs. Tiger Buller, and Kid Fraser vs. Knockout Stewart. Eddie Griggs was referee and Joe Septt timekeeper. All were declared drags.

Vocal Solos were rendered by R. James, S. K. Campbell and Will Edmunds, the latter also contributing a cello solo. R. James and Tommy Smith gave recitations and the Elks' augmented orchestra were generous in the musical numbers provided. Community singing, under the leadership of S. K. Campbell, was another feature. Refreshments and smokes were abundantly provided throughout the evening. With the singing of the National Anthem and an exchange of cheers between the hosts and the visitors the concert came to end about midnight.

"Did you ever notice that if one of the family contracts a cold it generally runs to all the other members?"

Many people when they contract a cold do not pay any attention to it, thinking perhaps it will pass away of itself in a day or two. This is a great mistake for before they know it, it has become settled on the lungs.

Never neglect the first symptoms; get a bottle of and see how quickly your cold will disappear.

Mrs. A. Coghlan, Magnolia, Alta., writes: "Last winter we all had bad colds in our family, and I didn't know what to do. Some friends told me to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, so I went and got a couple of bottles, and in a short while our colds were all gone. Now we always keep a bottle on hand in case one of us might catch a cold."

Ten Years Ago
in Prince Rupert

February 2, 1913.

There is a phenomenal run of herring in Prince Rupert harbor this year. People are pulling them out of the water in buckets and the myriads of fish have actually moved small boats lying at anchor.

After a few months of absence W. J. Alder, of Victoria, is visiting the city. He says the development of the city is most remarkable and he has noticed great progress since he was here last.

Alex. Yule has returned to the city after having spent some time visiting with his family in Montana.
