United States And League Of Nations.

According to press reports, President Harding, the man who was elected on a ticket opposed to the League of Nations, has now sent a request to Congress asking them to authorize American membership in a permanent court of international justice organized under the auspices of the League of Nations.

While there is no objection to President Harding changing his mind when he sees that he has been mistaken, the impression that flashes through the mind on reading the dispatch is that the anti-league campaign was just gotten up to defeat President Wilson and to elect Harding. Like many other election cries it was a wrong one and was conceived by the leaders and supported by them for no other purpose than electioneering.

What impresses thinking people when they read of these things, is that democracy is not yet a success. It is as easy to lead the people astray as it is for a smaller group to go astray or for a king to go astray. The mob is never infallible and in fact is very often wrong. Because they are wrong, however, does not mean that we should change back to the old system. The only recourse is to educate the people so that they may be able to think for themselves instead of following the mob. Individual education is necessary and also mass education. People may be educated in both ways. Individual education is carried on in the schools, in the homes, in the Sunday schools and in the night schools. Also through public lectures and group meetings. Mass education is carried on chiefly through the newspapers, the magazines and books and in election campaigns. Often a movement is largely psychological, caused partly by the influence of mind upon mind. We have seen religious movements spread through the country and also prohibition movements, war fever, labor movements, and various other more or less psychological waves that have affected the whole country. This can be used for educative purposes. Also it can be used to defeat good objects just as the move against reciprocity with the United States was largely a manufactured patriotism that caused, not only the overthrow of the government, which was a small thing, but the defeat of a measure that would today have been of inestimable benefit to those of us who live on the Canadian border and who might benefit very largely by United States trade.

Immigration Has Commenced.

Apparently immigration to this country has commenced. Also it seems as if the southward drift has pretty well stopped. We must look to Europe to supply us with new settlers to fill up this country. They will come, slowly at first, but in ever increasing numbers if they are encouraged. We have the land and the resources and these must be developed either by the white or the Oriental. If we refuse to admit the white then we must expect to be forced to admit the Oriental. Talking will not keep them out. It is absolutely immoral to tie up vacant lands and refuse to allow their use. No individual has any right to do that and neither has any country. The trend of the times is against any individual or nation being allowed to stand in the way of progress.

Mob Movement In Emigration.

Migration is largely the result of psychological mass movement. The recent southward drift to California was the result of the tendency of men to herd themselves like cattle or sheep and to move in the mass. There was no special attraction in California. Wages there are low and there is not work for all. Industry is crowded and with the breaking of the boom there will be much distress. Those who have gone will wish themselves at home in the north once more.

Nerves So Bad That She Would Sit and Cry

Mrs. Mary Hocking, Madoc, Ont., writes:—
"Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done me a wonderful lot of good. I suffered from general weakness and was so run down and my heart and nerves were in such bad shape that I would sit down and cry and not know what I was crying about. I also used to have weak spells. Thanks to Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, however, I am real well now. I shall always keep a box of the Nerve Food in the house, and recommend them to my friends; they are a wonderful medicine."
(Mr. J. W. Vince, Druggist, of Madoc, Ont., says: "I have sold Mrs. Hocking your Nerve Food, and the medicine has done her much good.")

Glimpses of the Moon is not an astronomical study. It is a love story done into a picture. Bebe Daniels is the star.

Jack London's Abysmal Brute has been filmed and is said to be a remarkable action story.

Priscilla Dean is leading lady in the original story written expressly for her "White Tiger."

"The Hottentot" is the latest horse race picture. It is a society affair and the big race is said to be so exciting that the women stand up in their seats and yell as the horses run neck and neck and the heroine wins. Of course the heroine wins. It is the wildest and hottest picture seen.

After taking a little vacation people are said to be once more turning to the movies for their recreation.

BRITISH COLUMBIA IN TOM MIX PICTURE

Beautiful Outdoor Scenes in Feature to Be Shown
Tonight

All Boy Scouts and all lovers of outdoor life will be especially interested in a picture that is coming tonight with Tom Mix, the famous Fox star. It is called "Up and Going," and the title explains the general character of the picture—full of action and running over.

Yet that is not the principal attraction that it holds. When William Fox assigned Mix to make this production, he told him he wanted some real northwest atmosphere in the country of the famous Royal Mounted Police. So Tom took his company up into British Columbia.

The result is the most beautiful picture from a scenic standpoint that Mix ever has turned out. There are water, forest and mountain scenes as a background for an exciting story, and followers of the wild trails will find many little tips on living in the open and how to meet emergencies that are bound to occur.

For instance, there is a scene in the picture when Mix as a mounted trooper comes across his pal, who has been shot by a gang of whiskey smugglers. Tom has two horses with him, and must get the man to a doctor quickly. His experience among the Indians has taught him what to do. Cutting down two strong saplings he passes these through the stirrups of each horse on each side, and covers the young trees between the horses with branches. On this improvised litter he places the wounded man. In this manner he carries his friend to town and to a physician.

ALF'S BUTTON NOW BOOKED WEDNESDAY

Alf's Button, the film that so many people wanted to see, and which was all the rage in the Old Country, is to be here on Wednesday. It is described as a bubbling cocktail of merriment straight from Piccadilly. It was because one of the Vancouver theatres wanted something extra good that they intercepted it from coming here last week. The play is said to contain seven reels of hilarious mirth that will make the sides ache.

Is One that Has Been Used Along With Way Down East at Capital Theatres

The Old Homestead is one of the big pictures of the day. It has been featured by the capital theatres throughout the country along with "Way Down East," and is said to be the finest picture of the two. In the story Uncle Josh Whitecomb owns the Old Homestead Farm near Ganzezy, New Hampshire. He is the genial patriarch of the surrounding country, beloved by everybody. Eph Holbrook, the richest man in town, holds a mortgage on Josh's farm. Eph's worthless son Lem, is in love with Rose the village vamp. Josh's son, Reuben, clerks in Holbrook's store. His sweet heart is pretty Ann, Uncle Josh's ward.

Rose comes to Lem and tells him he will have to marry her, and Lem, to provide funds to get out of town, steals money from his father's store. Reuben is accused of the theft and sent to jail. With Happy Jack, a genial resourceful tramp, he escapes from the lockup and flees town. Rose disappears at the same time, and Ann is broken hearted, believing Reuben has gone with her.

Soon the mortgage on the Old Homestead falls due, and Eph is determined to collect. Uncle Josh goes to New York to see an old friend who is now a millionaire to try to borrow money, but fails. He meets Happy Jack, who tells him that Reuben has fled to China. Struck by the old man's despair at this news, Jack determines to bring the boy back.

Returning to Ganzezy, Josh determines to auction off the Old Homestead. Meantime Lem, growing seared, admits to his father that he stole the money. Eph honest though hard, starts with him to the Old Homestead, to settle with Josh.

A cyclone sweeps the country, tearing everything up by the roots but the Old Homestead. In the midst of it, Happy Jack brings Reuben home—just in time to save Ann from throwing herself in despair over the cliff at Lover's Leap. And everybody is happy.

The Natural Wealth of Canada

Transportation

IN the matter of transportation the various industries of Canada are well served on land and sea. Nature has endowed this country with an abundance of navigable waterways, and these have been supplemented by extensive railway systems linking up every province. Both east and west there are excellent harbours and the leading steamship organizations of the world provide ocean services connecting Canada with every foreign market.

LOCAL YOUTHS INSTALL RADIO

Felix Ball and Norman Kinslor
Hear Kansas City and Other
Far Away Stations

For audibility and strength of receiving the amateur radio station erected by Felix Ball and Norman Kinslor, at the home of the former 429, Fifth Avenue, West is one of the most successful sets on the coast.

On one occasion, when the atmospheric conditions were particularly good, this station listened in on a radio concert given in Kansas City, in the Middle States, a distance of over 2,000 miles.

A Daily News representative listened in at his first radio concert at this station recently and the results were remarkably good. The weather was very stormy and interfered to some extent but in spite of that fact Portland, Oregon, was heard very distinctly.

The first item heard was a lecture given by the Radio department of the Portland, Oregonian on child welfare and the female voice of the lecturer was exceedingly clear, so much so in fact that it was possible to take the lecture down in shorthand. Gus Olson's jazz orchestra of the Portland Hotel was the next item and the selections "Some Day You Will Cry Over Some One," and "Together," were distinctly heard. In addition to these particular items several excellent vocal selections were heard from the same station.

Other stations picked up were Hale Bros. Inc., of San Francisco; The Province, Vancouver; Calgary Herald; Times, Los Angeles; and the Mercantile Trust Co. of San Francisco.

The aerial of this amateur construction station measures 50 feet high x 60 feet long and the receiving sets are of the Remler pattern unit system which can be added to at will. The receiving set consists of four instruments, strung in a line, three tuning units and one detector unit, known as the regenerative circuit. The advantage of the regenerative circuit over the non-regenerative circuit is that the former gives a greater range and more volume of sound. The four instruments have three switches and three dials on the face. The dials are numbered and have the same appearance as the combination lock on a safe. It is by turning and twisting these switches and dials that the station is tuned to the required wave length and the numbers on the dial enable the operator to obtain the best
