During Mr. Cooper's absence and with his mother busy with outside chores, Master Billy, four year old, decided to light a fire in the wood-box with the result that when Mrs. Cooper came in the interior of the house was a mass of flames. > Reports brought by local people from Brighouse, the Vancouver race track, indicate that this season is singularly free from outs and other floaters who have hitherto infested the track. The city of Vancouver is also almost free from the usual undesirable class that has formerly featured the racing season there. Loose women have somehow been chased back before they got far over the border or else have been sent back under pressing invitation by the police under dire threats of jail terms as vagrants. No instances of pickpockets have so far been reported and there has been an absence of the former lucrative industry of worthless checks passed for bets.

LIMB the mountain---stand on the peak---and before you there unfolds a panorama extending as far as your eye can reach. Stay in the valley, and your view is restricted by the surrounding hills.

This newspaper, properly used, will guide you to the mountain top. Read it and your vision is enlarged. You get a bird's-eye view of world events. You glimpse the doings of the day.

Fail to use it, and your view is limited--you remain in ignorance not only of events at home and abroad, but of much that concerns you even more vitally---news of the very things that have to do with your personal, everyday life.

Some one might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasureably to your comfort and well-being: or some better material for shoes or clothing---but you would never know, because of your restricted view.

You may read every line of the news columns, but if you overlook the advertising, you are still living in the valley. You remain uninformed about many things you ought to know in order to live a happy, useful, profitable life in this age of progress.

Climb out of the valley to the mountain top. Read the Advertisements.
