Close Season For Halibut.

A closed season for halibut has been decided upon, a treaty drawn up and signed by the United States and Canada and this will have to be ratified by the United States Senate and the Parliament of Canada before it becomes law. As there is likely to be little opposition to this, the only feasible method of protecting the halibut during the spawning season, it is to be presumed that the Senate will pass it.

While it will tend to make the fishing ports of Prince Rupert and Ketchikan rather quiet during the three months when no halibut is coming in, it will stabilize the business and prolong the number of years during which halibut fishing may be carried on. As it has been in the past with the other banks, the fishing grounds would soon have been depleted and then we should have to look to other fish to supply the market.

Again and again the government has been asked to arrange for a close season and the Mackenzie King administration is to be commended for its prompt action.

John Fagan Engineer And Hero.

John Fagan, the engineer who saved two year old Violet Evans near Nanaimo, is a hero. His prompt and fearless action in breaking the glass shield of his cab and climbing out in time to throw the child from beneath the wheels of the big engine, ranks with the finest deeds of daring and quick response to the call of duty. Some recognition should be accorded a man who would act in that manner. He has an Irish name and the Irish people should be proud of him. So will all others. It is such resourceful men who make Canada great.

Kissing The Book Still Continues.

The pernicious habit of "kissing the book" in the courts of law continues in spite of numerous protests against it. In Ontario the member for Peterboro has introduced a bill into the Legislature designed to do away with the objectionable practice. It will be interesting to know if this passes and what will be the effect.

As a preventative of giving false evidence kissing the book has been a failure. Witnesses perjure themselves every day in the courts and get away with it. Anyone who has attended the sessions will realize this immediately. Even if it was effective, it is doubtful if the practice should be continued. To ask a clean young person to kiss the same book that some of the filthy lips seen in the courts have defiled, is asking too much.

Then again kissing the Bible smacks of idolatry. It is entirely opposed to modern conceptions of religion and life and tends to bring the courts into disrepute. It certainly should be abolished.

Are We Becoming Too Serious.

After the war there was a period during which after the strain of several years, the people threw restraint to the winds and entered into the wildest kinds of enjoyment. A dancing craze swept the country, wild parties were common and the wiseheads predicted that the world was bound in the direction of Hades at lightning speed. Now all that is changed and we are swinging to the opposite direction. The stress of hard times has had a sobering effect and we find a tendency to take life very seriously, perhaps too seriously. It must not be forgotten that when serious work is to be done, periods of relaxation are necessary. People must play as well as work, otherwise they become stale and lose vigor. Just now it seems necessary to issue the warning against being too serious and perhaps losing power through sticking too close to business.

Mother and Her Baby Are Relieved of Eczema

Mrs. Peter A. Palmer, Salt Burn, Sask., writes:

"Dr. Chase's Ointment has completely relieved me of eczema and piles. I also used this Ointment for my baby, who broke out in eczema. A few applications were all that was necessary in her case. Dr. Chase's Ointment has been worth a hundred dollars to me—before using it I had spent a great deal more than that in unsuccessful treatment from doctors. We have also used Dr. Chase's other medicines, the Nerve Food having restored my health after suffering from severe nerve trouble when a girl."

"The Little Girl Next Door" will explain spirit photographs, according to the announcements.

YOSEMITE IS SETTING FOR FARNUM PICTURE

When Dustin Farnum comes to the Westholme in "The Yosemite Trail," he will have a screen story particularly befitting his popular style of acting. The tale is set in the Yosemite Valley and the cameraman took advantage of the magnificent scenery throughout the picture. An exciting series of events rises to a stirring climax calculated to quicken the pulse of even the most blasé theatregoer.

The Yosemite Valley, aptly called the playground of the gods, is well chosen as the scene of conflict between huge men who struggle for the things of existence. Although portraying primitive elements, this photoplay possesses much interest for the most critical motion picture audience.

AMERICAN FILM MAN ALMOST CAUGHT IN IRISH REBELLION

Clarence Erickson, in charge of the British and European showings of "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," narrowly missed mixing into the Irish rebellion according to a letter just received from him at the Pickford-Fairbanks studios.

"I was trying my best to catch a train leaving Dublin for Belfast," he wrote, "but fortunately missed it. At the time I thought this was a piece of pretty tough luck. Next morning, however, when I saw pictures in the paper of the cars piled up in the ditch I realized that he who runs to catch a train sometimes lives to ride another day. Irish rebels had wrecked the train."

DOROTHY DALTON HAS HARD JOB IN NEW SEA PICTURE

Star in "On the High Seas" is Unconscious for Half An Hour

Dorothy Dalton recently accomplished the hardest task a motion picture director ever set for her. She had to be unconscious for half an hour!

"It wouldn't have been so bad to play dead to the world," laughed Miss Dalton afterwards, "if I had been allowed an easy chair or couch and piece and quiet to do it in. But I was playing the role of the heroine in 'On the High Seas,' and the lady is supposed to suffocate in the smoke from the fire on ship-board. She remains blissfully unconscious while the flames are crackling close to her head, charred wood and sparks are flying around, the ship is sinking, and she is swept up by a couple of rough stokers and swung into a lifeboat."

"Imagine keeping one's eyes closed and remaining perfectly quiet through all that hullabaloo. Not to speak of the shouting director and the squealing extras! I think it was the hardest thing I ever did in pictures."

"On the High Seas," the picture in which Miss Dalton accomplished her Herculean task, is coming to the Westholme Theatre next Wednesday. It is a love-melodrama of the sea, written by Jack Sheldon, the famous playwright. Jack Holt is co-starred in the picture with Miss Dalton, and Mitchell Lewis heads the supporting cast.

Won't Shrink Woollens

—true, says MONARCH KNITTING CO.

The above firm, one of the largest manufacturers of woollens in Canada, investigated the best method of cleaning sweaters and they recommend Lux.

Here is their letter, which tells how sweaters should be washed.

Messrs. Lever Bros., Limited
Toronto, Canada

January 17, 1922

Gentlemen:

Sweater coats or blouses, where they are manufactured out of pure wool or silk, can be washed as satisfactorily and as easily as ordinary goods, provided the proper material and methods are used for the washing, and to-day there is on the Canadian market a product entirely suitable for our knitted goods and for our wools. We suggest to all women who buy these goods to wash them with Lux.

The slogan of the manufacturers—"Won't shrink woollens"—is true if proper washing methods are used. The thin, water-like flakes of Lux dissolve readily and there is no possibility of any pieces of solid soap sticking to the soft wool or silk and yellowing it, ultimately ruining the garment.

Children's sweater coats or suits are often ruined in the first laundering because they are improperly washed, but if Lux is used, they will wear longer and give more satisfaction to the buyer.

We also recommend that garments should be dried quickly and when drying, lay them out flat and straighten to shape. Never hang them up when wet.

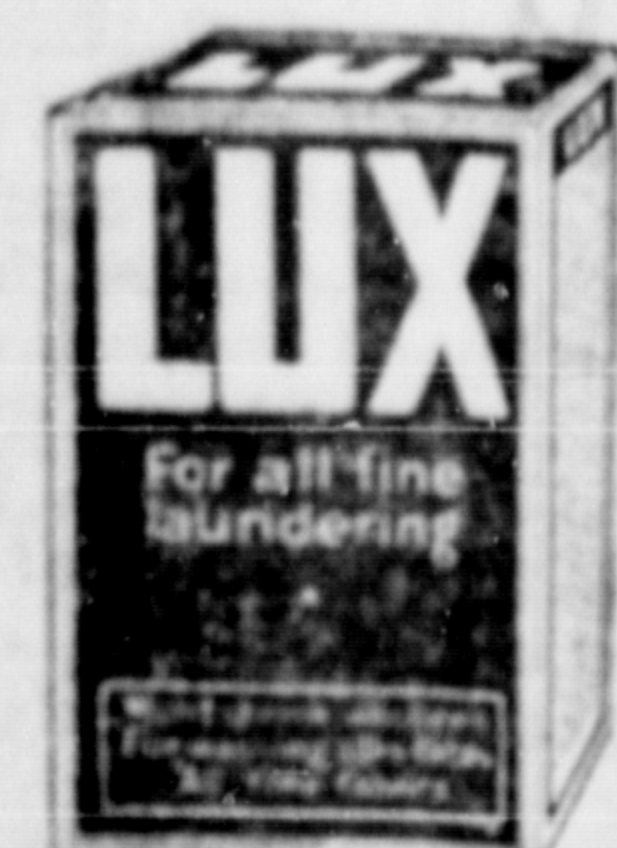

We are pleased to say that our silk and woollen sweaters, coats, skirts, suits, etc., in the most delicate colors and weights can be safely washed with Lux.

Yours very truly,

J. W. TURNER, Gen. Mgr.

FOUND WONDERFUL RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION BY USING

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills

Constipation is one of the most prevalent troubles the human race is subject to, and is the greatest cause of many of our ailments, for if the bowels cease to perform their proper functions all the other organs will become deranged.

Keep your bowels working gently and naturally by the use of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills, and thus do away with the constipation and all other troubles caused by it.

Mrs. A. R. Spence, Springhill, N. S., writes: "I have suffered for some time from constipation, and was advised by a friend to try Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills. After taking a trial of them I have found wonderful relief, and would advise all those who are constipated to give them a trial, for I feel sure they will also receive the same benefit I did."
