gressive improvements, he may, be-granted intermediate certificate of pre-emption and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of

DEATH OF MISS TOOMBS

Editor Daily News:

As I understand a letter left by my sister, Miss Nellie Toombs, has already become public property, I should like to ask you to publish a few further facts connected with the case.

Since last Christmas my sister has been troubled by different de-lusions and dreams. Some have taken an allegorical and spiritual form and others have been violent, sudden dislikes for and fears of people hitherto regarded with the utmost love and affection. At other times she has tried to trace to herself the blame for the series of accidents which befell us last year, with the result that she became firmly convinced that some great sacrifice was due from herself in compensation. All these feelings we naturally attributed to the fact that she was in a rundown, nervous condition. She had not regained her normal health and spirits after the operations on her broken arm before my other sister's accident and later her own came on her, meaning, of course, shocks and further worry and anxiety.

Seemed in Good Spirits

I entertained no serious idea of any mental derangement until Friday last, when a friend suggested that some actions were becoming unreasonable. However, I saw my sister on Friday and again on Saturday, and she seemed much better and in good spirits, and quite approved the plans I suggested for the next few weeks. Now in the face of what has later transpired I can have no doubt that her mental balance was in some way affected.
We could not at first think this possible, as there seemed no reason why it should be. She has always been remarkably clear-headed and calm, and been always so successful in any intellectual work she has undertaken. Recently she referred to an accident she met when a girl by stepping from a car before it had stopped, which threw her to the ground and rendered her unconscious for a time. Apparently it left no permanent injury and the matter had been forgotten until she herself mentioned it. I now think the fall on the ice last Christmas twelvemonth must in some way have aggravated this injury to her head, as she has never been quite the same since.

Correct Impression

I consider this letter is due from me in order to correct the impression created by the letter my sister left. It is necessary both on Mrs. Thomasson's account, who is absolutely happy in her home and work at the camp, and on Mr. Van Metre's account.
For a few days in January my sister was engaged to Mr. Van Metre and was very happy about it.
Then one of the strange, changeable moods came over her and she asked to have the engagement temporarily broken. This Mr. Van Metre instantly agreed to and later at my sister's request granted a full release.

In every way Mr. Van Metre has shown the utmost courtesy and consideration and given no grounds whatever for the fears expressed in the note my sister left. On the contrary, he has helped in every way possible to ease her mind, thinking as we did that this condition of mind was the result of her nervous
