The New Attitude

UDGING FROM STATEMENTS he made in an interview at Vancouver yesterday, W. R. Devenish, vice-president in charge of western lines, Canadian National Railways, who was in Prince Rupert last week, has also been inspired by the new outlook for this port and district as have been many other recent visitors of importance here. He predicted great expansion of northern and central British Columbia and of shipping through Prince Rupert in the next few years. It is encouraging to hear officials such as Mr. Devenish speaking this way. Their new and publicly expressed interest and optimism will, undoubtedly, inspire action on our behalf as far as it is within their power.

INTERNATIONAL LOAD LINE

IT WAS A LONG FIGHT that the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce had to have international load line restrictions on this coast amended so as to put Prince Rupert on a basis of equality with Vancouver. Of course, the matter has not been settled vet and will not be until the international convention on the safety of life at sea is held in London. However, it is to be assumed that, with the recommendation of the Canadian government, the necessary change will come as a matter of course. Thereby, another step will have been taken toward the goal of establishing this as a world shipping port. A discrimination, for which there was probably never any very good reason, will have been removed.

MEN WEAR CLOTHERS TOO

MOMEN'S CLOTHES are news. Much adver-VV tising is devoted to promoting the sale of things designed to be worn by women, from fur coats to garments of which men with proper Victorian upbringings used to be unaware. The women's pages of newspapers and magazines report the most trivial deviations in style. Fashion parades of women's clothes are held on the least excuse.

There is nothing wrong with this. Even a male can find some interest in such news and advertisements. Nor are men uninterested in clothes and men's fashions although a parade of men's fashions draws facile ridicule from the columnists and the occasional full-page newspaper advertisement of men's clothing does not emphasize novelty. No chatty little paragraphs about what men of distinction are wearing appear on the financial or sports pages.

Yet there is a news interest in men's clothes, or how would fashions ever change? A group photograph of 1910 will show the men looking as out of date as the women, and no matter how a man may affect to despise clothes he is peeved if his new suit is unnoticed.

It is possible to argue that men are more discriminating than women. A change of fashion in a man's suit may merely be a difference in the cut of a lapel or the width of a trouser cuff. To alter the fashion in women's dresses the designers have to add or subtract several inches from the length of the skirt and move the waist-line from the hips to the shoulders. Attempts to get men to accept more comfortable clothing succeed slowly, but a man dressed in the lightest tropical worsted suit is still carrying several ounces more weight than his womenfolk think requisite for either comfort or decency. Perhaps men would be better off if 1947. they gave more encouragement to the designers of their fashions. A little imagination applied to the business suit could work wonders.

$600 Norse Bounty Spurs Wolf Hunters

OSLO (P)-With a bounty of $600 per head, wolverines are being hunted in Norway as never before, the Norwegian government news bureau announces. atives from the village and Port Last year, doughty Norsemen) killed 80 of the savage animals and collected $56,000, the bounty then being $700 a head. Doubts have been raised as to whether Norwegian hunters, not overly careful as to international boun daries, might not have been bagging wolverines in Sweden or Finland, neither of which pay bounties. It has been ruled that the district sheriff must vouch for the hunter in those sections where the three countries join.
