Reminiscences
By W.J. and Reflections
If new comers to Prince Rupert ever notice the height and number of retaining walls, they will be able to visualize what a job it was to even make a beginning in city building here. Consider, for example, the immediate neighborhood of Third Avenue and McBride Street. There used to be a good sized gulch there as well as a flinty hill that took plenty of sweat and dynamite to remove. It is perhaps not overstating the case to suggest that between the areas bounded by McBride and First Streets and Second and Fourth Avenues, the thousands of blocks of stones used in making these walls could have built "when knighthood was in flower" a substantial castle.
