The manager of the store in the background put up the sign because he grew tired of answering inquiries.

BURGLARY STILL SMELLS THE SAME

"Beauty at any price" apparently was the motto of a thief who raided the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Scherk, Graham Avenue, this week. Ignoring a small amount of money and a valuable watch, he—or she—made off with three bottles of hand lotion, two lip-sticks, three bottles of nail polish, a powder puff and a jar of deodorant.

An Old Veteran

For the work I have done and the trail I have faced, I haven't much to show, I am nothing but a failure To some of the folks I know. I have played the cards and drew them,

Wherever the trail was in sight But there isn't a man I cannot meet And look him square in the eye I had my chance to stack the cards And win by a crooked deal,

I have seen the time when I could gather wealth If I wanted to lie and steal. But I always preferred to struggle

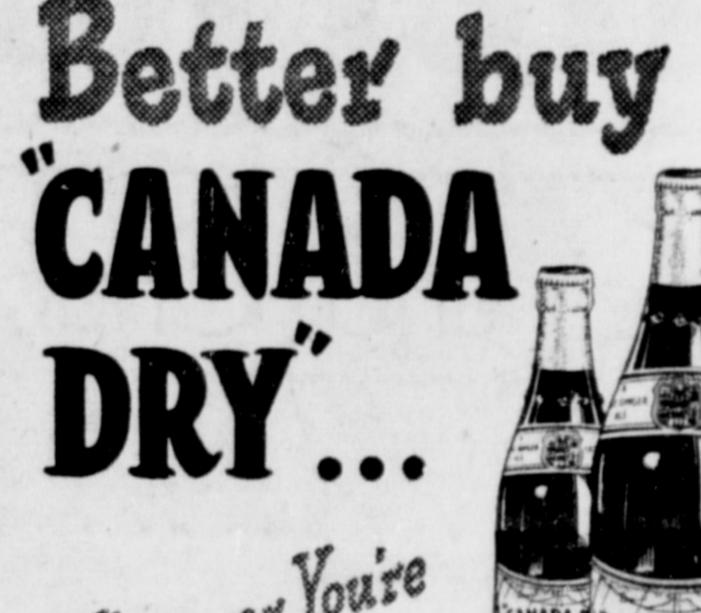

And toil for what I got And have had the glory of winning, Even if a modest lot.
