OPEN DAY AT BORDEN SCHOOL

The attendance at Borden Street School was increased by upwards of fifty per cent on Wednesday afternoon when more than one hundred parents and friends took the opportunity afforded by "Open Day" to visit the schools while in session.

Results of the teaching of the various subjects were in evidence as displays of work were on show. In addition to seeing progress in the fundamental subjects the visitors found something of special interest in each room. Mrs. Stone's Grade One had arithmetic charts and workbooks which impressed their parents. Their printing accomplishments on the blackboard were surprisingly good, while their singing was an unusually attractive feature.

In Grade Two's bright room Mrs. Rutherford's class had original written language work of high quality. On their sand-table the children had already begun modelling of the forthcoming Royal wedding in London, while in another part was more prosaic but realistic sculpturing in plasticine.

The Library Corner in Miss Foster's Grade Three was a very bright spot and evidently is in regular use by most of the pupils. Drawings of an original nature and the exhibit of Indian utensils and weapons supplemented by totem poles drew much favorable comment.

Correlation of the study of African life with the activities of the natives was a feature of Grade Four's work under Mrs. Morris. Models of native wooden canoes had been made, pottery samples were on view, basket-work such as was shown in pictures of native life had been started. But the highlight was the making of purses by the children. These were being made out of imitation alligator skin leather. Suitably lined they make a very desirable and useful purse and will be on sale in connection with Junior Red Cross activities later on. Several pairs of moccasins in various stages of construction were much admired.

Pupils of Grades Five, Mr. Cheeseman's division, and Grade Six Mr. Wilson's division were doing physical education. They showed very smart marching and were then taken over by Neil Ross, recreation director of the Civic Centre, and by Miss Margaret Slinn, assistant director. Under the capable guidance of these two, the boys and girls took part in dancing, their proficiency in a schottische, a minuet and the polka being very marked.

Graphic Art designs come under Mr. Cheeseman's direction and practical arts under Mrs. Rapp's instruction provoked much admiring comment. The school choir, under Principal J. S. Wilson gave several numbers, and the singing of this group of upwards of forty girls and boys gave much pleasure to a large audience. The accompaniments were all played by Olive Strand and this young pianist is to be highly complimented on doing such a fine job.
