TWO WORLDS

OLITICALLY there are two worlds. There is a world which is democratic and comparatively free, and another world which, whatever other merits it may have, is neither democratic nor free, says an editorial in Canadian Churchman.

Economically there are two worlds. There is a world of prosperity and plenty, and there is a world of starvation and want.

We in our oasis of plenty do not like to admit the existence of this other world of destitution and want. To do so troubles our conscience. If there were children naked and starving in our attic, we would be able neither to rest nor eat until they were clothed and fed. But shivering and hungry children five thousand miles away we can banish from our thoughts. They belong to another world. Not only politically and economically, but also spiritually there are two worlds. There is a world of Christian privilege and enlightenment, and there is a world of darkness, ignorance and despair. We who dwell in the former frequently but dimly comprehend the existence of the latter. This is why we so often look upon the Church, not as a rallying place for soldiers of the Crown, but rather, to quote someone's apt metaphor, as a sequestered retreat for spiritual Zombies.

But here surely is the crux of the whole matter. If there is ever to be one world, it will have to rest upon a spiritual basis. The foundation cannot be laid upon either wishful thinking or political planning. The supreme need is a cohesive power stronger than the disruptive force of hatred, suspicion, and selfish ambition.

CHRIST'S DEITY

(By CAPTAIN EARLE F. JARRETT, Salvation Army)

Topic: "Jesus Only" from Matt. 17:1-13.

The mountains of the Bible are full of interest-Moriah, Sinai, Carmel-the mountains associated with Christ's temptation. His proclamation of His law of love, His death and His ascension. Here is an impressive mountain scene with three disciples. He retires into a mountain to have fellowship with the Father and, while He talked with God, wonder at the things they saw.

First of all, these disciples had a vision of Christ's deity. Of course this was not His unveiled Godhead as God had said that no man could look upon that and live. You will remember that all Moses could hear was the after-shadow of God's glory the rock. However, they did get a glimpse of his Deity, although it was through the fleshly vei of the body of Christ. The Deity within Him was permitted to shine out. Many years after Peter speaks of having been a witness to His Majesty and John writes:

"We beheld His glory . . . as of the only begotten of the Father" fested in the flesh. The lowly Nazarene carpenter stood on the hill-top as a pillar of fire. Now the disciples could truly say:

Next they had a vision of the

REFORESTATION!

A MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE

OF BRITISH COLUMBIA - - -

To ensure that British Columbia's forest lands are kept continuously productive, it sometimes is necessary to reforest, artificially, those parts that have been logged over or burned over. That means, to plant the areas with young trees, grown in forest nurseries, instead of depending on natural seeding from seed trees growing in the vicinity. At the present time, the British ers after truth. Thy had been | trained to trust in Moses, to reverence prophecy, to offer sacrifices. Having had a glimpse of God and His glory, they wanted to build him three tabernacles, and to abide there. Then a Voice said: "This is My beloved Son . . . hear ye Him." The Jewish heart of Peter wanted to keep the law i and prophets as well but when they opened their eyes Jesus filled their horizon . . . They saw Jesus only. They now saw that everything, law, prophecy, etc. was superceded by Jesus.

all. That is the lesson we are to learn from this story from the Scriptures. A New Dispensation has begun-It is Jesus only now. Christ stands on the hill-top, the hope of the world, sent from God to fulfil the law and all the prophecies, to redeem and save mankind. He says: "Look unto Me, all ye ends of the earth; For I am God, and there is none else" (Isa. 45:22). while he was hid in the cleft of
