WIDOWED BY GAME OF "RUSSIAN ROULETTE"-Inspector Forman of the Dearborn, Mich., police is shown with Mrs. Lloyd Gulledge, 18, whose husband, an army lieutenant, killed himself while playing a game of "Russian Roulette." The couple gambled with death, using a revolver with one loaded cartridge, after a drinking bout. Mrs. Gulledge played the first round, put the gun to her head and pulled the trigger. It clicked on an emptychamber. "Then Floyd took the gun, gave the sylinder an extra hard twirl, then placed it to his head and pulled the trigger." The hammer struck the one loaded chamber and Gulledge died.

Only Free Enterprise Can Save Britain Declares Wartime Chief

LONDON (CP)-Former Prime Minister Winston Churchill told the British people tonight that they could solve their grave economic crisis only through a system of free enterprise and asserted that acceptance of the Labor government's program would mean national disaster.

In a political broadcast to the nation, the Leader of the Opposition accused Clement Attlee's government of failing to solve the country's economic crisis.

"There can be no dispute about the Socialist failure or its gravity." Churchill declared. "The choice which lies before the British nation about the form of its society is between a system of competitive selection and a system of compulsion," the wartime Prime Minister added.
