LUNCHTIME FOR "NUTSY"—Although the cat is the instinctive nemesis of the rodent, Lady Sylvia, a cat owned by Martha Coffman, of Baltimore, Md., adopted this orphaned squirrel and is mothering it with her own kittens. But "Nutsy," as the squirrel has been named, needs more than cat's milk for proper nourishment. And here Miss Coffman takes over the job of giving the youngster an eye-dropper full of cow's milk. The little chap grabs the dropper with both hands while irrigating his tonsils. Lady Sylvia and one of her progeny look on with what seems to be feline wonder.
