Submarine In Port...

Blueback two aviators who had been rescued by the latter, and proceeded to Subic Bay for refit, arriving there on March 27 after a patrol of 51 days. Award of the Submarine Combat Insignia was authorized for this patrol, with the following tonnage figures: sunk, one tanker of 10,000 tons, one large freighter of 7,750 tons two medium freighters of 4,00 0tons each; damaged, two tankers of 10,000 tons each.

On April 16, 1945, refit and training were once come completed and Blenny departed from Subic Bay for her third war patrol. This was conducted in two parts, the first off the Indo-China coast and the second in the Java Sea. The first part was largely spent in lifeguard duty for our army aviators, and no targets were seen.

On May 15 Blenny left for Subic Bay for more fuel; she arrived on May 16 and departed on May 18 for the Java Sea. On May 25 a small submarine chaser was sunk in a night surface torpedo attack off the north coast of Java. This attack was remarkable for the extremely shallow water in which it was carried out. The target was anchored close in to the beach and in order to get at her Blenny flooded down and backed in toward the beach, taking soundings from the stern with a lead line. At the time of firing she was in 25 feet of water and the screws were stirring up mud. Early in the morning of May 30, a small lugger was sunk by gunfire. Torpedoes were used later in the day to sink a small coastal steamer. On June 5 Blenny departed for Fremantle, where she arrived on June 9 after a patrol of 55 days. Award of the Submarine Insignia was authorized for this patrol with the following tonnage figures: sunk, one submarine chaser of 170 tons, one freighter of 520 tons and one lugger of 100 tons.

IN WATERS OF EAST INDIES

With refit and training completed, Blenny departed from Fremantle on July 5, 1945 to conduct her fourth war patrol in the Java Sea and off the eastern coast of Malaya. On July 11 she sank a sea-truck by gunfire. On July 16 a converted gunboat was sunk in a torpedo attack. Blenny then chased the small vessel which had been escorting the gunboat and engaged in a gun battle, but was unable to get close enough to do much damage. From this time until the end of the patrol many sampans, junks and miscellaneous small craft were sunk after a preliminary investigation in each case to determine that they were carrying contraband, and after seeing the crews safely clear. Several of these were sunk by means of a 12-guage shotgun which was fired at the bottom from the inside. On August 7 she recovered a boarding party which the U.S.S. Cod had put aboard a junk on the morning of August 1 and had been forced to abandon by an enemy plane and for which a strenuous search had been carried on for two days. On August 7 a dive bomber missed Blenny on the surface with a small bomb; he was not given a chance to rectify his mistake. On August 11 Blenny departed for Subic Bay for refit, arriving there on August 14 after a patrol of 41 days. Award of the Submarine Combat Insignia was authorized for this patrol with the following tonnage figures: sunk, one converted gunboat of 2,000 tons, 42 junks totalling 1,795 tons, 9 motor sampans totalling 240 tons, 3 sea-trucks totalling 850 tons, one tug of 250 tons, 4 barges totalling 500 tons, two schooners totalling 55 tons and one motorboat of 5 tons. One 550-ton escort vessel was damaged.

During the refit the war with Japan terminated. On August 29 refit was completed. On this date Commander Hazzard was relieved as commanding officer by Lieutenant Commander C. H. Fuller Jr., U. S. Navy. On August 32 Blenny departed from Subic Bay for Guam, arriving there on September 5. From that time until September 15 she was occupied in training.
