BRITAIN IS CONFIDENT

Austerity Not Much in Evidence to Casual Observer, Says Fred Read

General living conditions in the Old Country, as actually existing, and impressions gained through letters, broadcasts, commentaries and correspondence and the press as a whole by no means agree.

This sums up the conclusions of Fred Read of the Capitol Theatre staff, who returned late last week from a five months' visit to England. Much of the time was spent in London. A sister is living overseas. "It was not my experience to notice anyone looking hungry," he remarked. Everyone appeared to have money and I can also say that, generally speaking, people were well dressed."

There are, of course, public questions such as the coal mining industry, modernization of the pits, the strike, food rationing and various other issues and problems for the government to cope with and which are inevitable as a consequence of war. Britain, however, is on the way back but, naturally, it will take time.

The public remain busy and full of confidence in the ability to restore the country to her old prosperity which, of course, is a large order indeed. Yet the people are in good spirits and manage to enjoy life just as far as circumstances will permit. Theatres are crowded and there are many fine new shows. Movies keep exceedingly popular and, whenever opportunity comes to get away from London on excursions, seaside trips or something like that, the most is made of the chance.

There are reminders of the war but not what one might expect. The marks of air raids are gradually becoming less obvious. There are numerous new and handsome cafes and a service that may be said to be the last word in courtesy and quiet efficiency. The average price of a meal is little more than a dollar, if that much. Entertainment, such as music, of course, costs a little more.

Speaking of liquor in the Old Land, he remarked that he failed to see anyone intoxicated while there.

The Labor government can remain in office until the end of next year anyway but, of course, changes could come before then. Winston Churchill, Leader of the Opposition, is just biding his time. He remains a commanding figure and there is no telling what situation might arise in which Britain's war leader could again be in the forefront.

TELLS OF LIFE IN FAR KENYA

A good sized congregation assembled in the Citadel last evening to meet Brigadier Annie Fairhurst, the Territorial secretary for the Salvation Army Women's Organization known as the Home League. She had arrived that afternoon from Vancouver, following a journey across Canada. There meetings in Manitoba, in Regina, Medicine Hat, Lethbridge and other prairie communities, all of them being most helpful and encouraging.

Last night's gathering was presided over by Mrs. Gillingsham.

Brigadier Fairhurst, in the course of her interesting career, spent some time in Kenya, East Africa, and described to the meeting life in that far away land, paying particular attention to home management and the responsibilities and duties of the native women and their families. Everything might be said to be on the primitive side. The comforts and conveniences taken as a matter of course in Canada were practically unknown. About everything given attention in home affairs was performed the hard way, mainly because no better method was known.

A feature of the program was the presentation of "Mothers of the Bible" among those taking part being Mrs. Scherk, Mrs. Timmins, Mrs. Levitt, Mrs. Waksdale, Mrs. Geo. Tenner, Miss Mary Calger, Miss Carlson and Mrs. Norden.

This dramatic sketch, shown in costume and telling again the Biblical stories which have come down through the ages and with which all are so familiar, was given with fine effect and received hearty applause.

Instrumental numbers were rendered by Sergeant - Major Waksdale, there was a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Scherk and solo by Mrs. Chambers. Miss Clara Pierce was pianist. The meeting

JUDGE DISSOLVES TWO MARRIAGES

Two divorces were granted by Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson in Assize Court Monday afternoon. He dissolved the marriage of Thomas Andrew Shaw, petitioner, and Fredella Shaw. Charles Robinson was co-respondent. The second divorce was that of Arthur Lloyd McKinley, petitioner, from Maxine McKinley. Robert Henry McFarlane was named co-respondent. The law firm of Brown and Harvey acted for petitioners in both cases.

door of room 72 when the proprietor entered.

Initial witness of the afternoon session was Mary McKinney, an 18-year-old native girl, who had been one of two Indian women with Eckels and Meehan in the hotel room.

She identified Eckels as the "Bill" she had been with in room 72 in the early morning of July 25. She said that she had "got to the door and got out" after Eckels had turned his attention from her to Jessie Clayton, who had been with Meehan since the four entered the room.

Corporal A. H. Taylor and Detective-Corporal A. T. Lashmar identified a written statement, admitted as evidence, but not read at Monday's session, as one which Eckels had made in their presence a day or so after his arrest. The statement had been completely voluntary, they both
