Peace River, Prince Rupert Trip Delayed

John R. MacNicol, Progressive-Conservative M. P. for Davenport, Toronto, who has been taking an active interest in the possibility of a railway outlet for the Peace River country to the Pacific Coast, has been obliged to postpone a trip he had been planning this summer from the Peace River to Prince Rupert, according to word received by E. T. Applewhite, secretary of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, from Page Rideout of Peace River. Already some preparations had been organized by Mr. Rideout for the trip. Mr. MacNicol hopes to make the trip next year.

Mrs. G. J. S. Anderson, wife of the manager of the Bank of Montreal at Stewart, will be here aboard the Coquitlam tomorrow afternoon returning north after a visit in Vancouver.

LIFE in this Prince Rupert

by BIDDEE JINKS

Now that he is away, I think almost affectionately of those soapsack baths that never quite reach a dirty neck or the ears. Almost too, I regret relegating him and the larvae to an outside shed.

It was a dull, half-rainy day when he brought it in... a hornet's nest with the larvae just squirming into full horror. So they seemed to me, but to him it was a very beautiful sight. He was sure they would do better in the warmth of the house; and after they hatched we could always open windows—if we didn't want them!

Right then, I didn't want them. Right then they went out, but through the door. Then afterwards, particularly after he went to camp, I wondered why I hadn't waited to open windows. Twenty years from now it wouldn't seem so grim.

Getting ready for camp compares in many ways with preparation for the first year in school. I mean it starts away back in a parent's mind. You say and think all the routine things. You say, "When a child gets to this age they need school (or camp). They must learn self-reliance and group co-operation." All the time it hurts just a little but you know it is true so you go ahead, pushing the fledgling by degrees, out of the nest. He does not see it as more than a lark—which it is—but you know deeply that, when he returns, he will have learned a bit more how to live a life whose beginnings only lie with you—his parents.

Our hero's leave-taking was a speedy affair. Just a matter of minutes. It consisted of a phone call, and twenty minutes later a neighbor's car at the door. But those twenty intervening minutes were something. Underwear, socks, trousers, shorts, checkboards and checkers followed each other in quick succession into a case that grew balky. Oh yes—and mosquito oil!

Blessedly—for him—there was time to manage a man-sized lunch. And now that he is gone, the house is different. It feels different, it sounds different. Less, much less confusion than when two robust offspring struggled for the same towel. But even
