NUERNBERG PRISON GRIM PLACE
AS MORE NAZI WAR CRIMINALS
WAIT THERE TO BE CONDEMNED

NUERNBERG (AP)—A little red-faced field marshal cracks rocks in a courtyard a mustached politician reads Goethe in a dim-lit cell an airplane designer draws pictures of baby carts. A Polish guard patrolling the corridor snaps to attention as a United States officer walks in. Doors clang at 12 noon sharp and 300 men trudge morosely past a cook doling out tin plates of food.

This is Nuernberg prison today—peopled by Hitler's second team, those too small to be part of the international war crimes trial and yet too big to go scot free.

There are field marshals and generals, state secretaries who wielded almost the power of cabinet men in the Third Reich, SS officers, gestapo agents, business men and judges. There are men charged with a million murders; others accused of knowing about perhaps only one.

Some, on trial now, know they're going to hang as much as anyone ever knows anything. Others live, and hope.

Industrialists, once worth mil- lions, mingle with Nazi killers when they have to; mostly they stalk around trying to look digni- fied in frayed pants.

SECURITY ASSURED

All have one thing in common, though—this is the one segment of Germany's population that knows where the next meal is coming from. They eat well on heavy workers' rations. They are dressed warmly—necessary in the unheated cells. The third problem for other Germans—transport—is of no concern to these. They're not going any- where, yet.

Collectively, they know what there is to know about Hitler's never-made scheme and just how he tried to make them work. In- dividually, many pretend they are ignorant. But American questioners ravine the way for war crimes trials have just about tapped the bottom of the well of information. They no longer worry about a recalcitrant—there's always another in a near- by cell who is willing to talk.

This makes all suspicious of

Love Affair of Madame Sun-Yat-Sen

Romance With U. S. Army Captain May Have Complications

A love story disturbed the gov- ernment of Great Britain not so long ago. Now something like this is happening again, only in another part of the globe.

China is worried. The anxiety all goes back to one woman and one man and the mutual affec- tion is becoming stronger. The powers-that-be try to hush up the situation but it won't be hushed. Madame Sun Yat-Sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese republic, middle-aged and regarded as beautiful, loves an Army captain from Balti- more. And he loves her.

To understand the apprehen- sion of the government, one must realize that Madame Sun Yat- Sen is venerated. Her home is a shrine. She holds the adoration of Nationalists and Communists of China alike. To learn of a match being in prospect cannot but have a shattering effect on Chinese public opinion and the

But Demand is Considerably Less Active This Year

The liquor vendor's store at Prince Rupert is well stocked for the Holiday trade said C. L. Youngman, vendor; this morn- ing. The goods include imported Scotch whiskey.

Liquor purchasing seems to be considerably less active than usual. The old line-ups are con- spicuous by their absence.
