Looking On Bright Side

NISASTERS make news and peaceful plodding along doesn't. It would seem that life is becoming a series of explosions, collisions, fires, wrecks, plots and pillaging. Yet it cannot be as bad as all that. Sin hits the front page. Virtue does nothing of the kind. It is only when one loses a sense of balance and heeds only the sensational to the exclusion of about all else that he gets the wrong angle. The world is a pretty fair place to be in, despite the professional reformers. Get the right slant, and it is quite possible that millions of folks are happy and prospering. Anyway, if that is the viewpoint from which one looks, the chances are he may not be so far out in reality.

CHLORINATION

ECISION to return to the use of chlorinated Water appears to have aroused but languid interest in Prince Rupert. The Medical Health Officer's recommendation has been adopted by the city in a casting vote and there it is. Some consumers say they do not relish the flavor. Others say they are unaware of difference in taste, or of feeling any ill effect. The object, all sublime, is to safeguard the public health. So be it!

BRAZIL

T IS PERHAPS not generally known that Brazil, from which country President Truman has just returned home, is larger than continental United States. The American chief executive and party have been in Rio de Janeiro, helping honor an important anniversary, and the occasion was one of great goodwill and success.

Brazil has a population of some 50 million. Railways total more than 20,000 miles. The climate is tropical with heavy rainfalls. In exports, coffee, to Brazil, is what wheat is to Canada.

Rio de Janeiro is one of the world's outstanding cities, with a population of approximately 2,000,000 and a harbor of surpassing beauty and utility.

Yes, the Western Hemisphere has more than North America.

"DOLLAR SHORTAGE"

MAT IS KNOWN as the "dollar shortage" is VV occupying United Nations statesmanship just now. Sometimes John Public has only a vague understanding of what a problem or policy is or what it's all about. But he comprehends this one all right. He realizes, with crystal clearness, what it means. At least he thinks he does. It is put, rather boldly and has many thorny features not suggested in the phrasing. "Dollar Shortage" is correct, as far as it goes, but that's only the beginning.

ILLITERACY INEXCUSABLE

T IS NOT AN unusual experience still to discover someone unable to read or write. This illiteracy is not confined to age or sex. Perhaps there is an acceptable explanation but it would have to be good. There seems little excuse for one growing to maturity in Canada today without being able to read or write. And if one comes to Canada, ill equipped so far as even the rudiments of education are concerned, he or she need not remain that way. The cost of education to tax payers in Canada is heavy. And Canada wants something to show for her money.

JONES BILL OUT?

ALL INDICATIONS POINT to the Jones Bill 17 being on the way out, so far as Northern British Columbia and Prince Rupert are concerned: Already, American Senators are moving in that direction. By reason of the bill, which has been functioning for many years, both Alaska and this port have lost a lot. The time is long overdue for each to put more aggressiveness into natural advan-

TROUBLES EVERYWHERE

MATHAS A VIVID resemblance to large scale VV war is swiftly developing in India, now that the hand of Britain has been withdrawn. Call it intercommunal strife in Delhi and elsewhere in the north, if you like, but thousands have been killed and wounded, grave losses have been suffered, and mutual hatreds have grown.

There is no peace in Palestine. And there certainly was no goodwill on the Hamburg waterfront yesterday when a shipload of Jews, in a two hour struggle, went back to the Germany they hate and

FOREIGN NEWS IMPORTANT

Foreign news is particularly important in these days when so much that happens at home is linked in some way with far-off events. of true information. This last provision is important. It may be said that in order to attract the maximum audience the press emphasizes the exceptional rather than the representative, the dramatic rather than the significant; but increas. ing attention needs to be paid to seeing that the resulting picture is true. More people today than ever before are interested in knowing not only what is happening, but why it is happening. Newspapers aware of this trend have been attempting to provide interpretative material along with the news.
