WHAT'S NEW IN TODAY'S MODERN BATHROOMS — Color scheme of this new bathroom is green and white—light green walls, dark green floor and white curtains to match the tub. New, too, are the glass shelves for towels and cosmetics, the seagulls stencilled on the wall and the extra-large recess behind the tub for soap, sponge and washcloth. Gingham check is the pattern of the new plastic shower and matching window curtains. Plastic fabric by the yard is used to make the skirt of the dressing table with ruffled edging top and bottom—also a ruffled edging of plastic fabric around the mirror.

Three walls of this bathroom are in a medium blue—the wall behind the tub and the ceiling are in a delicate pink. Illustrated is one of the new plastic shower curtains with matching window curtains. The silk-screen pattern illustrated is "Sea Scape" with pink background, enlivened by gay tropical fish and graceful marine plants. Housewives admire these new plastic curtains because they are so quickly cleaned with a damp cloth, never need ironing, never rot or mildew.

Deep Sea Fishermen's Union to Draw up Program of Halibut Curtailment Measures

To prepare a program of recommendations for curtailment of halibut production in the interests of conservation, the local Deep Sea Fishermen's Union has set up a committee consisting of George Anderson, E. Greenstrand, H. Knutson, W. Lund and Olof Skog. The recommendations are to be ready for meetings of the International Fisheries Commission to be held in the near future for the purpose of considering possible amendments to the treaty governing halibut fishing during the coming 1948 season.

Business at the meeting of the local Union, where this important matter was considered, was otherwise of a routine nature. John Synes, president of the Union, was in the chair.

SKI CABIN BROKEN INTO

Oldfield Reported Oldfieln Reported

Vandals, who are believed to have entered the ski cabin belonging to Alex Mitchell at the top of Mount Oldfield about a week ago, damaged the building and furniture and made off with a quantity of ski clothing and other articles. Mr. Mitchell discovered the incident on Sunday.

Damage included the smashing of two windows, one of which was knocked out entirely, the breaking of the lock on the door and the chopping of the table and kitchen cupboards.

A pair of skates, considerable ski clothing and ski poles were stolen. Wet clothing was strewn around the floor.

Mr. Mitchell believes that the damage was done a week ago since he was up two weeks ago and found the cabin in good shape.

Part of the missing clothing has been returned by a youth who said that he had taken them after he had fallen through the ice while skating. The cabin had already been broken into at that time, he said.

This is the second time that the Mitchell ski cabin has been damaged by vandals within two years and Mr. Mitchell says he is getting a bit tired of it.

"If the remaining articles of gear are not returned in short order, I am going to turn the matter over to the authorities," Mr. Mitchell said.

IMPRESSED WITH PRINCE RUPERT

Impressed with the appearance and prospects of Prince Rupert is Robert Kane, superintendent of passenger service, Canadian Pacific Airlines, Winnipeg, who was a week-end visitor in the city, making his first official visit here. "It is a delightful city," he said "and I would really like to live here." Mr. Kane arrived in the city on Saturday afternoon's flight from Vancouver and left today on his return there.

ECHOES OF KIN AMATEUR NIGHT

The toughest job at Friday nights amateur night was held by R. G. Moore, custodian of the bell. The gong wasn't intended to indicate the contestants lack of ability, it was used merely to save time. Judges W. D. Smith, L. Felsenthal and G. A. Hunter didnt have a snap either with over 50 contestants offering a variety of talent that ranged from classical music to comical recitations. Andy McNaughton, who accompanied many of the young entertainers on the piano, had a busy night as did R. E. Montador, acting as master of ceremonies.

To the large crowd that packed the Civic Centre Auditorium the night was a long parade of local talent. They were given a chance to see what the young people of Prince Rupert could do on the stage as well as having the opportunity to hear the Borden Street School choir, the Annunciation School choir, the King Edward School girl singers, the Prince Rupert Civic band and Jimmy Reil on his accordian.
