

ISLAND PILOT BUSY JOB AT CAMPS

Adventures Also in Flying Between Queen Charlottes and Mainland

SANDSPIT—Pilot Jim Loughed, who operates the Powell River Co.'s Goose aircraft between Sandspit and the pulp company's scattered camps on the Queen Charlotte Islands, has been having a busy time of it since the company air service went into operation three weeks ago.

Loughed is the connecting link between the Canadian Pacific Air Lines terminal at Sandspit and the Powell River Co. camps at Cumshewa, Beatty Anchorage, Aero Camp and Juskatla, and, so far, he has been averaging about 10 passengers and considerable freight and express a day, from Vancouver. With his eight-passenger amphibian he hops off the Sandspit air strip, landing on the water at the remote camps. So far, he has had one mercy flight to his credit.

Called from Sandspit, he stopped at Cumshewa and picked up an injured logger whom he flew to Beatty Anchorage for medical attention. They had a narrow escape as they approached Beatty Anchorage for a landing.

Approaching the bay between two high pinnacles at the harbor entrance, C.P. Airlines agent Bob MacKinnon went to the nose of the plane to act as lookout. Beneath them, apparently there was deep water. Suddenly, however, it shoaled, showing rocks just beneath the surface.

MacKinnon shouted warning to the pilot, who pulled the plane up, but not before it touched the surface with a tearing crash. MacKinnon and Loughed waited for the water to pour through the hull.

However, the hull was not damaged but the tire of one of the wheels which had been let down to protect the hull was torn completely around its circumference. The injured logger was ranged safely.

On the return flight to Sandspit, they were unable to use the runway and had to let down on the water which was extremely rough. They pitched around for an hour before a boat was able to reach them and tow them to the air port.

RADIO BEACON NEARLY READY

SANDSPIT—Work on the new radio range beacon for the Department of Transport has almost been completed by the R. A. Wassman Construction Co. of Vancouver. The company already has completed alterations to the Canadian Pacific Air Lines staff house which now provides comfortable accommodation for 21 passengers who might be grounded on account of weather.

Accommodations in the building are designed for 15 men and six women. They have been used several times when weather around Vancouver has cancelled the southern leg of the flight. In addition, the Wassman Construction Co. is building eight four-room residences for Department of Transport employees who will be stationed here.

PERSIAN SPINACH

Spinach is probably of Persian origin, introduced into Europe about the 15th century.

LOCAL MAN'S FATHER DIES

Ross Ingram, local business man, received word Monday, of the death at Vancouver Sunday night of his father, C. A. Ingram, who passed away at the age of 82. Mr. Ingram was a real pioneer of the coast, having lived at Vancouver since before the big fire in the middle '30's. He was pre-deceased by his wife 10 months ago. He is survived by six sons, four in Vancouver, and three daughters, two of which reside in the southern city. The late Mr. Ingram visited Prince Rupert only a few months ago.

Nick Kurulok returned to the city by air Saturday afternoon from a trip to Vancouver.

B.C. MASONIC HEAD COMING

Masonic lodges in Prince Rupert and Terrace will receive official visitations later this week from the Grand Master of British Columbia, G. Roy Long of Vancouver. Mr. Long is flying up from Vancouver Thursday and will visit Tsimpsean and Tye lodges here at a joint communication this evening. Next afternoon, Mr. Long, accompanied by a party of local Masons, will proceed by bus to Terrace to visit the lodge here Friday night, returning to the city early next morning so Mr. Long may catch the noon plane for his trip home to Vancouver.

Hazelton Woman Buried On Friday

HAZELTON—Funeral service for Mrs. Martha Turner, 32-year old wife of Eli Turner, who died at Hazelton Hospital last Tuesday, was held Friday afternoon at the Salvation Army hall here with Capt. Randall officiating. There was a large number of friends at the service. Deceased was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Muldoe, of Hazelton. She is survived also by her husband and three small children.

GARDEN NOTEBOOK

Simple Method of Vegetable Storage.

Vegetables which remain unused in the small garden after freezing weather has put an end to the harvest can usually be stored in a garage in good condition for several weeks and in most cases can be used up in that time.

Beets, carrots, potatoes, turnips and rutabagas should all be given the same treatment which is as follows:

Dig them up as late as possible before the ground begins to freeze and cut the tops off. Do not allow the roots to dry, but examine them carefully and store only those which you would consider in good condition for table use. Do not clean the dirt from them but place them in boxes and pack them in sand, loam and sawdust.

Vegetables which have passed their prime are not worth storing. Those which show evidence of disease or insect injury or which have been bruised will not keep well. Young vegetables are better than old for storing; they continue to mature in storage, though at a very slow rate.

The temperature at which these vegetables keep best should be between 35 and 40 degrees, sufficient to keep them dormant so that no sprouts develop and to prevent drying out, which causes them to shrink and lose flavor. They must be protected against freezing but the risk is not great in a garage until outdoor temperatures get much below freezing.
