SALVAGING VALUABLE CANNED FISH— Two streams from 12-inch hoses spout cans of salmon, soggy cardboard cases and other debris into Foss Launch and Tug Company barge which will haul this valuable canned fish saved from the wreck of the fishing vessel Diamond Knot, to Puget Sound points for recanning. The Diamon Knot sank last August at Point Angeles, near Seattle, Washington, after collision with another vessel, the Fenn- net. Victory. The salvage technique is nothing new, according to salvage director Walter L. Martingnoni, but it is the first time it has been used on such a scale and at such depths. The big siphon hoses are nosed right into the cutaway hull, with divers below to spot them on the cargo. The wrecked ship is in 120 feet of water.

Parliamentary Bombshell to Aid Nationalizing Of Steel

LONDON (CP)—Legislation to nationalize the gas industry and to amend the powers of the hereditary House of Lords was forecast in the Speech from the Throne read by the King at the opening of the third Parliamentary session of Prime Minister Attlee's Labor government.

The gas bill will bring under government control the last of the "fuel industries" since coal was nationalized at the government's first session and electricity at the second.

In the only reference to the Upper House, the Speech from the Throne said: "Legislation will be introduced to amend the Parliament Act of 1911."

Action on the House of Lords presumably to obviate possibility that the Peers might try to delay nationalization of the steel industry until after the next general election which must be held by 1950. It was last-minute action by the cabi-

Even without this bombshell, however, Parliament faces onc of the busiest sessions since the Attlee government was elected in 1945.

In brief reference to the international situation, the Speech promised continued efforts towards European reconstruction, expressed the hope that the foreign ministers' meeting in November would result in "measure of agreement" for the reestablishment of Germany and Austria on a sound basis and urged early conclusion of a Japanese peace treaty.

It was a big day for Princess Elizabeth who accompanied the King and Queen to the opening of Parliament, riding in a separate carriage and sitting in a special throne.

AYLMER, Ont. - "The railways of Canada have now reached the point where, with existing freight rates and in the face of rising costs and fixed charges, they face slow but sure strangulation," stated J. F. Pringle, vice-president, central region, Canadian National Railways, in an address Monday night before the Aylmer and district Chamber of Commerce. Accompanied by a group of regional officers on the occasion of "C.N.R. Day" here, Mr. Pringle spoke at a dinner which climaxed the visit.

"Railway management is dong and will continue to do its part in applying sound operating practices to all phases of operation but this is a point beyond which ingenuity and wit of management cannot go," the speaker declared. "There is no other form of transportation on land, water or in the air which can do the job the railways are doing, either physically or at such low cost. We have no quarrel with competition by road, air or water, provided the competition is on an equal basis of costs and regulation. The rails must take any, or all traffic offered, at rates fixed by governmental authority."
