Case of Hugh Dalton

A CHANCE MISPLACED confidence in a newspaper reporter has brought about a major political repercussion in Britain—the resignation on a point of honor of Rt. Hon. Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer and one of Britain's most important respected public men. Mr. Dalton has and is entitled to the sympathy which was expressed for him not only by Prime Minister Attlee but by Mr. Churchill. Mr. Dalton was indiscreet, no doubt, in revealing budget secrets, even in confidence, it is simply something that is not done, but despicable was the reporter who took advantage of the indiscretion.

The reporter discredited his journalistic profession for, contrary general supposition notwithstanding, the good newspaperman often possesses many confidences and information that he does not talk about, much less publish. Fortunately, such glaring incidents as this of breaking the code are so rare that they are sensational. In this case it was unfortunately tragically fatal to a good and valuable public career.

WAS NOTED AS ENTERTAINER

Funeral of Ulysses De La Ferre Held Here Wednesday Afternoon

Funeral of Ulysses De La Ferre, widely known entertainer, whose death took place in the Prince Rupert General Hospital a few days ago, took place Wednesday afternoon from the chapel of B. C. Undertakers to Fairview Cemetery. Rev. Fred Antrobus, pastor of First Baptist Church, officiated, and Mrs. J. C. Gilker presided at the organ to accompany the hymns. Pallbearers were E. A. Evans, Fred Barber, Capt. Earl Jarrett, G. E. Evans, Rev. Basil S. Prockter and C. J. Carter.

Widely travelled theatrical artist, illusionist and entertainer, the late Mr. De la Ferre was born in Bournemouth, England, and his funeral coincidentally, took place on his sixty-fifth birthday. He lived in Trinidad, British West Indies, and Dutch Guiana, South America, for a number of years and then came to Canada. After some time in Montreal and elsewhere, he moved west and resided in Vancouver for seven years. During the war he travelled up and down the coast, entertaining men of the various forces and was often

TELLS ABOUT SIKH NATION

How They Became Finest Soldiers of Indian Nation

The historic position of the Sikhs in India was explained to the Rotary Club Thursday afternoon by Col. A. Hamilton Grant, local Department of Veterans' Affairs officer and former member of the Indian Army in the Punjab. Col. Grant spoke at the club's weekly luncheon meeting in the Commodore Cafe.

A religious offshoot of Hinduism, the Sikhs have a long history of persecution which changed them from a harmless sect into a military group that eventually produced some of the finest combat troops in the British Commonwealth, he said.

The persecution originated with the Moslem moguls and continued through several dynasties of slaughter and torture. Eventually the sect organized itself on military lines in self defence with such success that when the British arrived in India they were the dominant group in the northern section.

Following the arrival of the British, the Spartan attitude of the Sikhs became reduced and the sect dwindled in numbers. Noting the fine military qualities of the Sikhs, the British recruited them into the army, requiring them to swear to the oaths of their religion, thus doing much to maintain the integrity of the sect and tapping a pool of fine fighting as well.

Today, they are in the unhappy position of being caught between the Moslems of Pakistan, their traditional enemies, and the Hindus. This has revived the ancient persecution.

Col. Hamilton Grant was thanked for his talk by club president Lee Gordon, who also welcomed J. E. Robertson of Vancouver as a guest.

DESCRIBES HIGHWAY

Prince Rupert-Terrace Section "Good"—Pleasant Memories Of Prince Rupert

An American tourist who recently made the trip from Prince Rupert to Vancouver in a jeep and trailer has written E. T. Applewhite, secretary of the Prince Rupert Chamber of Commerce, telling of his reaction to the highway. Condition of various parts of the road are different, according to the letter, the section between this city and Terrace ranking as "good."

"The road from Prince Rupert to Terrace is good," the letter says, "and on to Hazelton it is somewhat narrow with a few bad slides around Skeena Crossing. There is a section of bad road, narrow, winding and greasy, around the Perow area."

"I think the worst section is in the Cariboo, being between 83 Mile House and the Chasm, and the hill outside 100 Mile House. These spots are rough, choppy, greasy and just plain bad."

"However, they are straightening and fixing some of the spots in these areas and the new road will be open next year. The hard surface starts at Cache Creek and from there to Vancouver it is fine. There has been considerable straightening and widening along the Fraser River canyon."

The writer, recalling his stay in Prince Rupert, recalls with "fond remembrance the nice people" here.

WAGES AND PRICES

I guess just about the hardest thing to figure out is what part of the cost of things we consume is represented by wages and salaries. A lot of people would say about 50 per cent, and point to some particular company's figures to prove it.

But then what about the cost of the raw materials used in manufacture? About half their cost, too, went directly into wages and salaries.

And what about the cost of fuel? Most of that is wages and salaries. What about the cost of new machinery, of freight, of cartage, of mail, of taxes and a hundred and one other things that all went into the company's general costs? Weren't they all made up mainly of the cost of wages and salaries?

For that matter, since everything in business and industry is done by people who have to be paid for what they do if they're going to keep on doing it, what else enters into the cost of what we use other than wages and salaries?

"Ah," someone says, "Profits!" But the average profit of ALL companies over a period of years is only a little more than four per cent—nearly always less than six per cent. That's the cost of using saved-up capital, of buying the brains of people who run businesses. The rest (even taxes) goes to wages and salaries, directly and indirectly.

That must be the reason why the business of trying to jack wages up suddenly and not raise prices is about as profitable as chasing the weasel round and round the mulberry bush!
