Premier Mine Carrying On

Looking for Miners—Dale Pitt Coming Soon—D. L. Coulter Resigns

With the dissolution of the Premier Gold Mining Co., Ltd., as from June 17, control of the famous Silbak-Premier mine, long the mainstay of mining activity in the Portland Canal area, passes from American Smelting and Refining Co. hands to the Selukwe Mining & Finance Co. of London, England. Operations at the mine will continue under the managing directorship of Dale L. Pitt, former manager of Premier Gold Mining Co., who will make his headquarters at Vancouver. D. L. Coulter, resigns his position as manager at Premier, remaining with American Smelting & Refining Co. with which he is an engineer.

With Mrs. Coulter he will be moving away from Premier for the last time on August 5. Mr. Pitt is expected to be going through to Premier on August 4 for a visit to the property of which he again assumes control.

With the departure of Mr. Coulter, this district loses an official who has been identified with Premier since June 9, 1923, when he started with the company as an assayer, continuing through various posts including mill superintendent and assistant manager until he became manager.

The crew at Premier at present consists of 180 men, there being a continuing shortage of miners for underground work. Latest reports to the shareholders of Silbak-Premier known ore reserves as 73,341 tons.

Courageous Love Theme

'From This Day Forward' At the Capital Theatre

The courageous love of two young married people is the theme of the offering, "From This Day Forwerd" this Wednesday and Thursday at the Capital Theatre. Joan Fontaine is starred as the young wife, and Mark Stevens is featured in the role of her husband.

Young Bill Cummings believes in security, and with the horrible example of Susan's in-laws before him, he doesn's want to marry Susan until he can promise it to her. Susan, however, holds that if they really love each other, nothing can hurt them. Bill gives in and they are married.

Bill doesn't want Susan working, especially when he is on a swing shift, and they hardly ever see each other. Sometimes, Bill is laid off and Susan's salary has to keep things going. This irks Bill, too, and on one occasion, he comes home drunk. This they survive, and also when Bill has a brush with the law. Then comes the war and Bill joins the army. They survive that too.

And now Bill is safely home. Susan is going to have a baby, and Bill has a job to get. But, they've shown courage when they needed it most, and nothing can hurt them.

"From This Day Forward" is well-spiced with humor. Miss Fontaine and Stevens receive fine support from Rosemary De Camp, Henry Morgan, Wally Brown and Arline Judge, among others. John Berry directed.
