A Lesson from 'Boss'

VICTORIA correspondent Jim Nesbitt made a point which has been too generally overlooked when he commended Premier Johnson for the honesty and courage of his politics, and for the dignity of his defeat.

When the heat has gone and the book is being written, the figure of the Boss will emerge in distinguished contour. The politicians whose names are remembered to their credit are usually those who are not particularly adept at politics. They reject the smaller game in favor of the larger purpose.

There is no better example of this than Premier Johnson's stubborn defence of hospital insurance. His earnest and challenging conviction of its rightness led him far along a lonely path. Yet, though the Premier fell, hospital insurance will not.

At the hands of a lesser man the program would have been eased aside long ago, or probably never attempted. The fruits of this advanced legislation would then have been lost to this province until the slow groundswell of public approval dictated otherwise.

Those younger men, such as Prince Rupert's Jack McRae, who were associated with the Premier in the last government could not have had a better schooling. From the close-up view their tutor's resolute kind of approach may not look as though it works in politics. But it does.

It is to be hoped that their lesson will be a source of encouragement, not despair, and that in years to come they will use it to the benefit of their province and country.

As I See It

by Elmore Philpott

Attlees Not Stalins

WHEN General Eisenhower was being introduced to the Republican convention, after his sweeping victory over Senator Taft, Chairman Joe Martin uttered a few words of ill omen. He warned against the world menace of "Socialism and Communism."

The majority of the people in all the main countries allied with the United States are supporters of democratic socialist parties. The United States must keep the friendship of these nations, if she expects their continued support in the face of the challenge of dictatorial Communism.

It seems a poor way "to win friends and influence people" by lumping in your chief allies with your great antagonist.

BRITAIN, Australia, New Zealand and do have Socialist governments at the moment. Yet, if the public opinion polls are an accurate guide, Socialist supporters now vastly outnumber the Conservative supporters in Britain.

Australia, New Zealand, Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France have all had Socialist governments before now, or are likely to have them within the tenure of office of the next President of the U.S.A.

General Eisenhower, just back from his job as NATO commander, is well aware that the continued support of democratic Socialists is necessary for the continued existence of NATO. Yet his close associates in the U.S.A. persist in talking as if there was no world beyond the three mile limit off their own shores.

IN A full page advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post for July 5 the Bohn Aluminum and Brass Company exhorts the people of the USA thus:

"Don't let anyone steer you the wrong way. Help guide America away from Socialistic schemes that might lead to Communism."

I think most thoughtful Canadians would reject the above argument totally. Let us consider the main "Socialistic schemes" that have been inaugurated by our own Liberal government in Canada in the past few years. They are Unemployment Insurance, Family Allowances, and universal Old Age Allowances, without means test.

Is there anybody in Canada who really believes that these Welfare State schemes are stepping stones to Communism?

The very reverse is true. Communism has made the most headway where conditions were most reactionary and backward.

THE ARGUMENTS that Republicans use against "Socialistic schemes" in the U.S.A. are nobody's business but Uncle Sam's. But it is very much the business of the allies of the U.S.A. when top American statesmen show such monumental ignorance, or crass bigotry, as indiscriminately to lump together "Socialism and Communism."

The only real issue on which the United States can hope to keep the support of the "Free World" is that of democratic freedom versus dictatorship.

Democratic freedom includes the free choice by any nation either to go socialist or stay capitalist.

9 Dead, Many Injured in Japan Quake

TOKYO (C)—At least nine persons died and 134 were hurt yesterday when they were pinned in buildings collapsed by an earthquake in central Japan, police reported.

At least 350 houses were knocked down by the tremor at 1:10 a.m.

The shock, felt throughout Japan's main island Honshu, was strongest in the thickly-populated Osaka-Kyoto area. It hit Tokyo with a rippling motion that lasted more than a minute.

Church Holds Classes in Summertime

TORONTO.—More than 800 church vacation schools opened in United churches across Canada this month. It was announced today by Olive D. Sparling, director of children's work and church vacation schools of the United Church of Canada. More than 30,000 children will attend these schools.

The church vacation school is the summer program of Christian education for many of the churches. From the coast of Newfoundland to the coast of British Columbia, these schools will be held, some in large cities, towns and villages; others in rural areas, mining, fishing and lumbering centres.

A band of some 3000 volunteer leaders, most of whom are the faithful workers in church groups during the year and many of them mothers of the children who attend, give their time, skill, experience and energy to teaching in these vacation schools. A period of extensive training for these leaders was carried on by local churches or by city or town church councils during May and June.

Another interesting feature is the vacation school work carried on by students and caravanners in areas where often the summer program provided by them is the only service of the church during the whole year. Two hundred students will be conducting vacation schools on mission fields of the United Church and about two hundred caravanners, young men and women who give their time voluntarily, will be conducting vacation schools in new housing, rural and semi-rural areas.

Reflects and Reminisces

Headline writers revel in a snap, this election. Eisenhower has too many letters for a single column word. But like hasn't. And as for Taft, that's equally handy.

NOTHING SURPRISING

Comic books today cost more than it did to dress a child 50 years ago. This is the impartial comment of an observer. But it would not be so bad if the children had better books to read.

The New United States president, whoever he will be, will also find a new White House. Taking practically a year, the entire interior has been rebuilt, with most faithful results. The bed in the Lincoln room, it might be said, cannot be much less than eight feet long.

There are lots of weather forecasts in Prince Rupert, and all have been read, more than once. Yet they are read, not because there will be enjoyment in so doing, but because it's a habit.

NOT EVEN A SOUL

Between strikes and layoffs, retail trade in British Columbia is becoming less. For example, talk in New Westminster is more candid. There, cash customers are becoming actually scarce. But the dry old Scot was heard to remark that New Westminster could never hope to rival Aberdeen where on tag day no one was ever seen on street or in store.

Two young men in the service of the Vancouver police department are suspected of being involved in the disappearance of

GO DOWN TO THE POTTER'S HOUSE

By REV. L. G. SIEBER, First United Church

"Arise, and go down to the potter's house, and there I will cause thee to hear my words."—Jer. 18, verse 2.

In another city, in the midst of my work, I often had an urge to visit men busy at their work. So I was led one day to a candy manufacturer; another day to a printing shop; and on another day I went down to the roundhouse.

In each of these places I always found something to think about.

As I watched and talked to the men working with sweet materials of fine and attractive fragrance, I thought that here was something that the sour and unattractive should consider. We are all to be engaged in such good works that they sweeten life and bring to the minds and the hearts of others praise to God.

As I watched and talked to the men in the Printing Shop, working with hand type and the linotype, I saw that they often made mistakes. Letters would be transposed in the line or in the slug. They would then recast the slug or reset the line. Would that we all so faced our mistakes in living and went about to set them right as the Great Printer would have us do.

And as I watched the men in the shop at the Round House, at the lathe and at the forge, work with exactness, I thought again of how careless we are in much of our living with others and God.

One day Jeremiah felt the urge to leave his house and go down to the potter's house. Looking back upon his experience there and his thoughts as he watched the potter at his wheel, he felt and knew that he had been led to this place. And these are the thoughts that came to him:

"Oh House of Israel, cannot I do with you as this potter? Behold as the clay is in the potter's hand so are ye in Mine hand." Jeremiah had seen the potter working on the wheels with the clay. He had seen how a vessel as he worked it was spoiled. Yet a thousand smackers. This cannot be blamed on the recent hot weather spell.

The beverage dispensers' union in Vancouver want a limit set to the size and loads of beer trays they must carry. The same idea might well be made apply to restaurant waiters. The number of dishes and cups of coffee a single hand and arm is sometimes expected to support is sometimes not believable. And often, a cranky customer is not so far away, or in a hurry.

VOLCANO DWELLERS
Despite the constant danger of the volcano Vesuvius, its fertile slopes have been densely populated for 25 centuries.

he took the same clay and moulded it over again. And so this thought came to Jeremiah, thinking God's thoughts:

"At what instant I shall speak concerning a nation and concerning a kingdom, to pluck up and to pull down, and to destroy and to build again, and to set up a nation against whom I have pronounced, turn from their evil, I will repent from the evil that I thought to do unto them. If I do evil in my sight, and obey not my voice, then I will repent of the good wherewith I said I would benefit them."

We are all led, where we are to think God's thoughts after Him if we would. The other day I happened to be going through our kitchen as my wife was making cinnamon raisin buns. They looked good and they were good. I was amazed at how things sitting in separate jars in the kitchen shelves could be put together to make one very useful and satisfying food. Then I thought: "Isn't that the way life should be?"

We take all kinds of little and great things and build them into one life, be at Pagan or Christian. If the life is Christian, the Spirit of God uses all things and events to make one good life. But we can work against the unity of life sought by the Spirit of God within us. We can leave the separate areas of life and activity in separate compartments. We can leave the flour in its can; the sugar, the raisins, the salt, in their jars; the batter and the yeast in their packages, and they are all good and attractive separately.

But, oh, how much more so when brought together in buns! Seeing such a parable in all our homes, we see not nor understand, I once was told that a certain man was very religious. He was a neighbor. And I discovered that I had to keep my garage locked. On Sunday he was very active about religious things, but on Monday he lived in another world.

There is a crying need amongst us all to allow the yeast of God to leaven the whole lump of our living.
