‘XMAS EYESIGHT CONTRIBUTIONS

Further Donations Received to Help Thomas Meillas Go to Vancouver

When Thomas Meillas entered the Pioneers' Home in 1940 he could see and read with the use of glasses. In the fire which destroyed the old Eventide Home two years ago he lost his glasses. Since then his eyesight has so deteriorated that he is now almost blind. Consultation with specialists and surgical treatment might at least partially restore his sight, doctors here believe, and it is to raise funds to help him make the trip to Vancouver for such treatment that a campaign has been instituted and is now meeting with increased response.

The fund has risen to $53.15 with the following further contributions to be acknowledged today:

FILM COUNCIL PLANS CONCERT

Moving pictures of scenes in Prince Rupert, the central interior and other parts of British Columbia and items being arranged by various schools of the city will be included in the program being arranged for December 5 in the Civic Centre to raise funds for the bringing of the facilities of the National Film Board to Prince Rupert through the medium of the recently organized local film council. Meantime, efforts are being made to awaken interest on the part of the public in the film council which has been suffering not only through lack of such interest but through shortage of funds. The council has set first and third Fridays for its regular meeting nights.

LITTLE GLAMOR FOR ARMY WIFE

Mrs. F. F. Worthington Hopes Her Twenty-first Home Will be Permanent

EDMONTON @ — There's no glamor in being a soldier's wife, said Mrs. F. F. Worthington when her husband—Maj.-Gen. Worthington, officer commanding, Western Army Command—recently bade farewell to a long army career.

"An army wife is a profession just like a soldier and it's tougher too because there isn't any glamor. But there are compensations—you make friends all across the continent and travelling develops a tremendous love of Canada—it, really is a lovely country."

Mrs. Worthington was born Larry Dignum in Toronto and attended Branksome Hall, a Toronto private school, before her marriage in 1924. Since that time she's had 21 homes and now, she says, "I'm looking forward to unpacking completely and entirely, for the first time in 23 years—and it's a wonderful feeling."

Petite and chic, she believes moving is hard on children but that they adapt themselves to it—"Army kids are well behaved."

A soldier is no good unless his wife is behind him, she says.

"I don't think people realize the job wives play. We, for instance, have always felt that the army came first and our own personal life second and I think that has to be the case."

Mrs. Worthington has lived in almost every city across the Dominion from Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver to Ottawa, Kingston and Toronto. But she confesses that she left her heart in the West and intends to make Vancouver her home.

A son, Peter, who served in the navy during the war, and a daughter, Robin, are now attending the University of British Columbia.

Waltzing Outdated, Says 101-year-Old

AUCKLAND, N.Z. @ — "Don't call me old or I'll knock your head off," declared New Zealand's most vigorous centenarian, Mrs. O. E. Nelson, in a speech to the guests at her 101st birthday party at Auckland. She proceeded to prove that she is old in years only by waltzing with Mayor J. A. C. Allum, and then demanded a modern dance — "because waltzing is too old-fashioned." Mrs. Nelson, who goes to church every Sunday, received a message of congratulations on her birthday from the King and Queen.

EX VICE PRESIDENT HAS WORD FOR IT

"Stop worrying. And the way to stop worrying is to forget all your troubles. They don't amount to anything anyway." That is the philosophy of this placid man who sits in the sun shucking pecan nuts in the backyard of his Tennessee home. He is John Nance Garner, vice president of the United States for two terms under F. D. Roosevelt. Today he'll talk about anything—except politics. When he quit politics in 1941, he said he was through. He has kept his word.

Glasgow University Buys New Property

GLASGOW @ — University of Glasgow is buying Garscube House, home of Sir George Campbell, and 125 acres of adjoining land to overcome a space shortage created by a sharp increase in student enrolment. "There is plenty of room there to meet the needs of the university for perhaps the next 100 years," said principal Sir Hector Hetherington. Garscube is about five miles from the heart of Glasgow. It will be used for residences, new scientific and medical stations and perhaps playing fields. The present city site is completely built up.

HOW CAN I ???

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I test a stain remover before using it on delicate material?
A. Always test it on some part of the garment where it will not show. If the remover does not affect the color, it will not harm the garment.

Q. How can I treat a new toothbrush so that the bristles will not come out so readily?
A. By soaking it for about 24 hours in cold water to which a little salt has been added.

Q. How can I prevent olive oil or salad oil from becoming rancid?
A. By adding a pinch or two of sugar to the oil as soon as it is opened.

Film Producer Asks Industry Be Probed

LONDON @ — An inquiry into the British movie industry was urged by Paul Rotha, film producer, addressing a teachers' conference. "I believe one would have been set up already if the film industry had not loomed so largely in Anglo-American trade relations," he said. Rotha said there had been "frightening examples of physical violence in British films." Recent gangster films shown in London were copies of American psychological

HORSE VS. EAGLE

STOCKHOLM, @ — A battle between an eagle and a horse occurred on the Swedish island of Oland in the Baltic Sea—and the horse won. The eagle, with a seven-foot wingspan, attacked the horse and tried to hack at its chest. The horse beat off the bird with its hoofs and killed it with a kick in the head.

crime thrillers, said Rotha, who quoted one producer as saying "Sadism is safe box-office for two years."

There's a proper light or lamp for every spot in the house

A torchère lamp provides a very attractive glow in a dark hallway or a dull corner of a room... but not to read by! Floor or table lamps placed to give a proper reading light to several people are both economical and cheerful. Make sure that you have plenty of wall outlets... use bulbs that provide a comfortable working light—neither too dull nor too glaring... use light-colour shades... dust lamps and bulbs frequently. Look around your home: is there adequate light for the children's study? For Mother's sewing, kitchen and laundry work? For your own reading requirements in the living room or in bed?
