Contempt Charge Dismissed Against Reporter

MONTREAL (CP) — Mr. Justice Francois Caron has dismissed a charge of contempt of court against Mrs. Jacqueline Sirois Moore, Montreal newspaper woman, after she agreed to answer questions in Montreal's vice inquiry.

Mrs. Moore, staff writer for Weekend Picture magazine, was found in contempt July 3 when she refused to answer questions about bookies who gave her information for an article which appeared in the Montreal Standard in 1946.

Mr. Justice Caron is conducting the inquiry into charges that vice was allowed to flourish in the city during a 10-year period.

Prisoners Were Afraid To Speak Own Mind

By ROWLAND GOULD

SEOUL, Korea (Reuters) — Fear that the United Nations would give in to Communist demands on prisoner repatriation led many prisoners to choose Communism when they were screened, former inmates of Allied prisoner-of-war camps said today.

They are afraid of future imprisonment or death if they went on record as being anti-Communists. They said they thought the UN would eventually yield to the Communist demands that all North Korean and Chinese prisoners be unconditionally returned.

The sources for this information—a first look into what went on in the prisoners' minds when screening officers gave them their chance to choose which side of the Iron Curtain they wanted to live on—are South Korean civilian internees who have been released from the prison stockades.

Some of them were forced into the Communist areas at the start of the war and were captured by the Allies.

Several of the former inmates said other factors which made prisoners pretend they were willing to go back to Communism were:

1. Concern for their families in Communist territory.

2. Fear of the Communist commissars who had so much control inside the barbed-wire compounds.

3. A long-range view that the Communists would eventually dominate the whole of Korea, either through political manoeuvring or through outbreak of a third world war.

Nevertheless, more than half the men and women behind bars had turned down Communism, the former internees said.

(The UN has told the Communists that about 100,000 out of 170,000 prisoners would oppose being sent back north of the 38th parallel. The prisoners were screened to give them a choice of remaining in Allied Territory or returning home.)

Partner Catches Signal And Defeats The Contract

There are many variations of the suit preference signal. Mr. Masters made such a signal in today's deal by playing his clubs in an "unnatural" manner.

Mr. Champion was smart enough to recognize that the play of the clubs could not possibly be intended as any other kind of a signal than a suit preference. He played accordingly—and defeated the contract.

The opening lead was the singleton trey of clubs and Mrs. Keen won with dummy's queen.

On this trick Mr. Masters dropped the jack.

Sensing danger, Mrs. Keen disdained the trump finesse and led a heart to her ace. She continued with the queen of hearts and Mr. Champion was in with the king.

Here Mr. Masters had to make a discard. He was practically certain his partner had started with a lone club. If he could get a spade lead from Mr. Champion at this point, he could probably cash the queen and ace of that suit, then lead a club for his partner to ruff.

As you see, the largest spade he could spare was the trey and that wouldn't look much like a come-on. The smallest diamond he could play was the seven spot.

This might look like an encouraging discard and result in a diamond shift which was the last thing he wanted. In view of these considerations, Mr. Masters played the deuce of clubs.

Now follow Mr. Champion's reasoning. What did his partner's unusual play in the club suit mean? Mr. Masters doesn't make a play like this without a reason. Obviously, he didn't want clubs continued.

What else could it be but an attempt to indicate a preference for a lead in one of the other two plain suits. Since he had played his highest club first, apparently he wanted a lead in the highest suit, spades.

Therefore, after winning with the king of hearts Mr. Champion didn't have to guess as between spades and diamonds. He promptly led a spade. Mr. Masters got two spade tricks, then led a club which was ruffed for the setting trick.

Light Year Forecast For Polio

By The Canadian Press

This may be a light year for poliomyelitis.

A Canadian Press survey on Thursday showed that, except in British Columbia, Manitoba and Saskatchewan, there have been comparatively few cases. In those provinces, the situation is not considered alarming.

In Toronto, Health Minister MacKinnon Phillips of Ontario said polio strikes in alternate years. In Ontario last year it was heavy and this seems to be the off year.

To date, 21 cases have been reported in Ontario this year, compared with about 105 at the same time in 1951. There has been one death this year.

Two iron lungs are being flown from Toronto to Winkler, 60 miles southwest of Winnipeg, where 18 cases and three deaths are reported. Four other cases have been listed elsewhere in Manitoba this year.

Other provinces with cases to date: Alberta, 14 with one death; Saskatchewan, 25 cases; Quebec, three cases in Montreal, "a few" in Nova Scotia; British Columbia, 25 cases with three deaths. Saskatchewan had about 75 cases during the whole of 1951.
