WORKING ON IMMIGRATION

Vancouver Body Would Bring People from Britain

"While the British Columbia government is dilly-dallying with immigration, we are really doing something about it in Vancouver," said Harry Gregson, "News Herald" reporter and secretary of the B. C. Advisory Panel for Immigrants in Vancouver.

"We have formed our committee under the auspices of the Royal Society of St. George in Vancouver, made its objects known in the Old Country and, within three weeks, we have had nearly 400 applications for information from would-be emigrants from the U. K.

"These applications are being answered individually by the Royal Society of St. George, the Imperial Order of Daughters of Empire, the St. Andrews and Caledonian and other Old Country societies in our committee."

Every Friday the committee meets in the offices of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and examines letters received and arranges for replies.

"We get applications from barristers, chaplains, doctors and of course, largely from artisans, such as toolmakers, engineers, shipyard workers and miners. We see that the labor unions get letters which may interest them and, even where a job does not result immediately, we establish a personal contact between the would-be emigrant and people in Vancouver, which maintains intrest in Canada and will, we are sure, help to bring the tide of immigration this way.

"We hope eventually to extend our work to co-ordinate all enquiries from the United Kingdom which reach the Vancouver Tourist Bureau, the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and private firms.

The Board of Trade is very interested in our work and is collaborating with us.

The Committee would be very glad to hear from the Prince Rupert organizations which are interested in skilled labor in the United Kingdom now desirous of emigrating," said Mr. Gregson.

Enquiries should be addressed to, c/o Canadian Manufacturesr Association, Marine Building, Vancouver.

Harry Gregson, himself a recent immigrant to B. C., was intelligence officer, Eighth Army, during the war, and for one year edited "Eighth Army News." In pre-war days he was a well known contributor to "Illustrated," "John Bull," and other U. K. publications. He arrived by boat yesterday and left on the evening train for Prince George.

REQUEST AID FOR EGYPT'S ARMY—Egyptian ambassador to the United States, Mahmoud Hassaw, left, and Egyptian Prime Minister Mahmoud Nekrashy Pasha, second from left, are pictured as they were interviewed at Washington. They revealed that they have asked the United States for aid in modernizing the Egyptian army and air force. This request is expected to be approved.

MINK SHIPMENT FOR LOCAL FARM

Silver Blues and Half Bloods Brought Here as Foundation Stock

Fourteen silver blue and seven half blood mink comprised an interesting shipment which arrived here yesterday from Vancouver for the Star Mink Ranch which has been established on McNicholl Street in the Eleventh Avenue East area by Arvid Mattson and Charles Haan. First live silver blue fox ever to be seen in Prince Rupert, it is believed, they will be used as foundation stock for this establishment, known as the Star Mink Ranch, which was started up last fall with three standard mink.

Inspector H. H. Mansell of the provincial police is leaving at the week-end on a trip to Victoria on official business.

URGES VETERANS TO SETTLE DOWN

Word of Advice by Robert Nicol to Ex-service Men

It is high time that young ex-service men, now that war has been over for two years, should be settling down to permanent jobs and locations, said Robert Macnicol, public relations officer of the Canadian Legion for British Columbia, in a word of advice while here to veterans who might still be feeling footloose and unsettled.

Experience of the last war, Mr. Macnicol recalled, had been that the veterans who had progressed in life and made good for themselves had been the ones who had settled down. There had been recurring difficulties for those who roamed about the country from place to place and job to job.

Mr. Macnicol, afeer spending a few days here following a week in the Portland Canal district where he visited the Stewart and Premier branches, left on last evening's train for Terrace and, on his way back to Vancouver, will also visit the Smithers, Burns Lake, Vanderhoof, Fort Fraser, Prince George, McBride and Blue River branches of the Legion.
