Small Industries Grow To Big Ones.

Small industries often grow to big ones. That is the chief reason why Prince Rupert people should be keen to see small BRITISH industries started in and around the city and should aim to help | SHOULD MOT DEPART FROM make it profitable. Just now there is room for many industries and these might be operated to the benefit of the owners of the industry and the city. The difficulty here in the past has been A Third of the Province's Annual that as soon as anything got going, people began to put spokes in the wheel. That was very clearly illustrated in the Prince Rupert mill. While it was running there was an everlasting snarling going on that they were getting their power too cheap, or that the wages they paid were not high enough or some other bia should be guided by business kick. Now we should all like to see the mill running and would principles. put up with even a loss on power if we could have the industry in the city.

Should Be Shingle And Lumber Mill Here.

There should be a shingle and lumber mill in this city. Cedar is taken to Ocean Falls from the islands and made into pulp even though the Ocean Falls mill does not want it. In and dustry in rents and royalties. around this city cedar can be secured for bolts and it would seem as if a shingle mill would be a profitable venture.

So it is with a lumber mill. If a mill can be operated in the country where supplies have to be hauled in and the lumber Columbia public are certainly do- "Brule cutoff"—a proposed line hauled out and handled twice, it surely ought to be profitable at the terminal point where all extra charges are eliminated.

This is the logical point for industries. Here is where they should be established. The only drawback is the lack of power but even that might be overcome.
