A report from the board of works recommending the construction of a 15-foot roadway on Seventh Avenue between Hays Cove Avenue and Donald Street was adopted at last night's council meeting. Ald. Perry stated, in answer to a question by Mayor Newton, that this roadway would take the place of a sidewalk for which the residents had petitioned. The board had deemed the building of a road as economical as a sidewalk.

A letter from the Prince Rupert Ratepayers' Association protesting against the removal of plank roadway on Tait Street which it was claimed was the property of the owners who had paid for it was referred to the board of works by the city council last night. Mayor Newton explained that the board of works was offering the owners involved either a continuation of the Allin Avenue grading work or a new plank road on the local improvement basis.
