college education is of little help in this task, and she fails, temporarily. In the end, however, all ends well.

The picture is based on the big Broadway stage success of the same name and was purchased by Joseph M. Schenck especially for Constance Talmadge because it offers unusual opportunities for clean, wholesome humor and action.

The Story

The story relates to a young wife who had a gift for gaucherie. She meddled into everything with the best intentions, only to do something or say something that was exactly the wrong thing to do or say. Finally she was inspired with an ambition to help her young husband in his business affairs. Said young husband was well able to manage his affairs and was then on the point of putting over a merger very much to his advantage. But friend wife butts in and almost ruins him. It is only because a crusty old business man, appalled at her boneheadedness, finally decides that it cannot be possible for a young woman to be so much a dumb-bell, that her husband is not utterly ruined.

GLADYS HULETTE IN STORY OF DIVORCE

Gladys Hulette, who plays a dual role in the William Fox screen version of "Hoodman Blind," at the Westholme tonight, the venerable production of Wallace's theatre vintage in 1885, has ventured a suggestion concerning the modernization of the play, which amused her colleagues in the picture cast.

"When Jack Yuletta discovers that his wife, as he believes, is unfaithful to him, instead of running wildly away to condemn all women, he should graciously offer to furnish evidence for a divorce, arrange for alimony and then move down to his club. The children would be sent away to a finishing school.

"And Nance, his wife, instead of going into retirement and eating her heart out, would run down to Atlantic City, hire a press agent and come back with an offer to go into a Broadway show. As for Jess, the irresponsible half sister, who really was the woman Jack saw in the other man's arms, she would call up Jack at his club and they would have dinner together frequently, go to the theatre and perhaps even marry. But in 1885, of course, Jack and Nance had to be brought together again and poor Jess had to die. But it made a great show, anyhow.

RUGGLES OF RED GAP EXCRUCIATINGLY FUNNY

Shows Experiences of Hon. Geo. Basingwell of England's Valet in a Yankee Cow Town

"Ruggles of Red Gap," the week end theatre showing this week opens in the early days of Red Gap, a typical cow town of the Pacific Northwest. With the expansion of the commercial resources of the town comes wealth to the older inhabitants, among them the Flouds. Cousin Egbert is considered by the rest of the family as socially incompetent, and it is decided that it will be for the best to obtain a valet for him to see to it that he watches his p's and q's and to keep Egbert continually posted as to his social engagements.

So it is that Ruggles, one-time perfect valet of the Honorable George Basingwell of England, enters upon his new duties with the Flouds—but not as valet, for Cousin Egbert introduces him to some friends as "Colonel." In order that they may not be made the laughing stock of the town the Flouds are forced to accept him as "Colonel" Ruggles, their guest. The close of the picture finds Ruggles thoroughly Americanized, now a member, through marriage, of the family he had once served in the lowly capacity of valet. The picture is packed with laughs.

BUSINESS IS BUSINESS

"Did you ever try to stop boot-legging in Crimston Gulch?"

"No," declares Caetus Joe, "the local undertaker has such a political pull we're afraid to interfere with his business." — Washington Star.

The Duke of Wellington was accosted one day by a stranger, who, lifting his hat, said: "Mr. Ramsbotham, I believe."

YOU CAN EAT ANYTHING YOU LIKE AND NOT HAVE HEARTBURN

In all cases of heartburn there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by a disturbed appetite, as when too much food is taken into the stomach it is liable to ferment and become extremely sour, vomiting occurs, and what is thrown up is generally sour and bitter. When you are in this condition you will find that Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will give you relief right away.

Mr. Joseph H. MacDonald, Christmas Island, N.S., writes:—"Two years ago I suffered all the time from heartburn. I took one vial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and have never been troubled since. It is very nice to be able to eat anything you like and not have heartburn any more."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BUCKLEY BAY STORE MANAGER IS CHARGED

Being Tried Here on Three Counts of Misappropriating Goods

Facing trial on three charges of misappropriating goods to the value of $10,000, $91 and $45.45, Charles B. Strigley, manager of the Massett Timber Co.'s store at Buckley Bay, was brought to the city last night on the gasboat Pachena by Provincial Constable Saint. This afternoon at 2 o'clock preliminary hearing of the charges commenced in the provincial police court. W. A. Cantelon of Ladner & Cantelon, Vancouver, counsel for the Massett Timber Co., and W. O. Fulton of Palmore & Fulton, counsel for accused, also arrived on the Pachena as well as the following witnesses: J. MacDonald, accountant for the Massett Timber Co.; G. A. Cuddy of Seattle, auditor; J. R. McWilliams, wireless operator, and J. M. Grosart, mill manager. Stipendiary Magistrate Mallory of Port Clements also arrived.

The case was started before Magistrate Mallory but the defence asked for a change of venue which was assented to by the company's counsel.

Following investigations made by the company's auditor, it is alleged that large shortages were found in Strigley's accounts. These are said to be much larger than the actual charges that were laid. Strigley was put under arrest and is now in jail.

WILD AND TIMID RACE OF BEINGS IN NORTH INDIA

Bodies Covered With Dark Hair and They Use Crudest Tools and Live in Forest

CHICAGO, March 17.—A race of men living unclothed under rock ledges and overhanging cliffs, with a history that is not traceable and who speak a dialect that has no similarity to any known language, is described as existing in Pithoragarh, North India, by the Rev. M. Wells Branch, returned Methodist missionary.

Their bodies are covered with dark hair from living without shelter, are slightly Mongolian in type, small of stature and they never go armed. The use only the crudest tools beside their knives, yet they live in forests in which roam tigers, leopards, bears and wolves.

Like Shadows

"They are like shadows in the forests and will salute no one," said Rev. Mr. Branch, who lived

You need a PILOT

EVERY good ship, nearing port, takes on a pilot. Usually, the law requires it. The pilot knows the channel. With his capable hands at the helm, the vessel is safe. Without him, there is danger of the shoals.

When you set sail on a shopping tour you, too, should have a pilot. Everybody needs one. And well-informed shoppers always have one—ADVERTISING.

Advertising keeps you off the rocks of extravagance and waste. It takes you straight into the port of economy. It tells you plainly where to go for what you want. It shows you how to save steps—and money—and time. By watching it carefully, each day, you are able to buy to best advantage.

Often, the advertisements will keep you from making an unwise purchase by pointing out just why one article suits better than another. It points out for you the pick of the country's market and the selection of the particular kind, shape, size and color that best suits your taste and fits your pocket-book.

Whether you want food, clothing, furniture or a toy for the children, the advertisements can help you.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE STARS IN PHOTOPLAY

Duley, the Local Midweek Offering, is Full of Humorous Situations and Action

After college what? Marriage is not a bad climax to an educational career for a young woman, but for a photoplay it is rather an unusual beginning.

In "Duley," Constance Talmadge's latest comedy, the star is "married" in the very beginning of the picture.

As "Duley" she marries right after leaving college. She plays the role of a young society girl, full of the joy of being alive—a sparkling personality and just the type the fans love to see Constance portray. "Duley" is anxious to assist her husband in his struggles for success, but her

PARTIAL DEAFNESS IS CURED BY RADIO

RENO, Nev., March 17.—Radio eventually may cure partial deafness, in the belief of Norman Squires, of this city, who cites his own case as an illustration. Two years ago, Squires says, he was totally deaf in his left ear. Now, after constant treatments by radio, he declares he can hear a whisper across the room.
